Rebels Are New Menace At Fortress

Second Outpost Seized Near Dien Bien Phu, Forces Filter Back to Airstrip Trenches

Hanoi, Indochina, April 19 (AP)—The French fought furiously today to hold back Vietminh assault troops stabbing toward the center of Dien Bien Phu's fortifications from the northwest.

The rebels were in a newly menacing position after weekend fighting widened their break in the northwestern rim of the fortress' defense system. They captured a second outpost yesterday and filtered back last night into trenches on the main Dien Bien Phu airstrip.

Vietminh pressure also was reported increasing against the southernmost strongpoint of the French-held plain.

Bayonet-wielding French infantrymen had driven the Vietminh from air field entrenchments for a few hours yesterday. But the latest infiltration reestablished their foothold in the shadow of the French headquarters bunkers, just 800 yards away.

Heavy Fighting Rages

A terse French army communique said heavy fighting in the sector still raged today. French tanks and artillery blasted at the Vietminh troops taking cover in trenches running across the northern part of the airstrip. French union troops charged them in hand-to-hand encounters.

French army spokesmen said thus far there had been "losses on both sides."

An army spokesman said the Vietminh still in the airstrip trenches "were not in considerable strength." But they were bitterly resisting attempts to dislodge them.

The spokesmen added that the French were continuing to bolster their defense barricades in the northwestern corner of the fortress and also those in the northeastern sector.

French Union patrols moving outside their barbed wire barricades on the eastern fringes of the fortress reported light clashes with the Vietminh.

80 Found Dead

They said they found 80 Vietminh apparently killed by French air attacks or artillery bombardments.

American civilian pilots operating flying boxcars dropped tons more ammunition and war materiel into the fortress.

The French pulled out of the shattered northwestern outpost yesterday after they counterattacked and smashed back a Vietminh attempt to wipe out the post's garrison. A French army spokesman said the loss of the position was not regarded as serious.

The Vietminh already hold a key height in this same sector, and have launched several infantry attacks from it. The French think much of the force of the next rebel mass assault they expect at any time will come from that sector.

There still is no indication when this expected all-out strike will come. It thought however, that the Communist Vietminh commanders will try for a major victory to influence the East-West Conference starting in Geneva April 26.

Close to Barricades

At all points around the Dien Bien Phu fortified plain, the enemy is now within about 1,000 yards of the main barricades.

The French forces were bolstered with the first delivery of Corsair fighter-bombers from America. An official announcement said the U. S. light carrier Saipan delivered the navy planes to a French air base on the central Indochina coast. The American pilots who ferried them in

Senator Is Against Single-Handed Move, Cites Korea

Washington, April 19 (AP)—Sen. Kuchel (R-Calif.) proposed today that America seek United Nations action and avoid any single-handed military attempt to save Indochina from the Communists.

Amid a growing controversy over Vice President Nixon's statement that this country might send troops to Indochina as a last resort, Kuchel said "I don't believe we can put fires out all over the world singlehandedly."

"We ought to take the case before the United Nations and ask for united action there," the California senator said in an interview.

"The 16 nations that signed the Korean truce," he said, "pledged themselves to a joint effort to prevent aggression and our allies should be called upon for help."

Thinks Withdrawal Unlikely

Nixon said to the American Society of Newspaper editors last Friday that he thought French withdrawal from Indochina unlikely. But that if that happened and other means failed the United States might have to send troops. France so far has opposed submitting the Indochina matter to the United Nations.

Although Nixon's statement indicated to many in Congress that the administration is resolved to hold Indochina even at the cost of going it alone, State Department officials insisted that the basic policy is one of "united action" such as Secretary of State Dulles called for in a March 29 speech.

In a statement issued Saturday, the department said Nixon had "enunciated no new U. S. policy toward Indochina." Secretary of State Dulles, returning to Washington yesterday from a brief vacation at Lake Ontario, had no comment.

Did Not Get Assurances

Despite this, there are reports that the administration asked for but did not receive assurances from Democratic as well as Republican leaders that if the worst comes to the worst they would back singlehanded intervention in Indochina.

Democrats were said to have backed away from giving in advance what some of them called a blank check for presidential action.

Sen. Knowland of California, the GOP floor leader, said in a weekend interview he is confident the President will ask prior approval by the lawmakers if it becomes advisable to use any American combat units in Indochina—including air and sea task forces.

"It is my belief that prior to the committing of any American armed forces, the President should and would come to Congress to lay the facts and his recommendations before it," Knowland said.

Former Assistant Called to Testify on Windfall Sums for Promoters of Apartments

Washington, April 19 (AP)—Guy T. O. Hollyday, ousted commissioner of the Federal Housing Administration, testified today he knew when he took office a year ago that "unscrupulous promoters" were active in the home repair loan field and he had tried to stop their "abuses."

He told investigating senators he put through new regulations, effective last Dec. 1, and was satisfied they "would go a long way toward preventing improper practices."

Hollyday was the first witness at an inquiry by the Senate Banking Committee into reports of multi-million dollar swindles in the government's housing program.

Unanimous Vote

When the committee convened, its first act was a unanimous vote to issue a subpoena to compel Clyde L. Powell, former assistant FHA commissioner in charge of rental housing, to testify at its inquiry.

Chairman Capehart (R-Ind.) announced that Powell had notified him, 25 minutes before, that he would "prefer not to appear without a subpoena."

Powell resigned his FHA post on April 5, effective as of April 16. The resignation was accepted, but one week after the disclosures of profiteering and "fleecing" of home owners came to light.

Housing and Home Finance Administrator Albert M. Cole promptly ordered that acceptance of the resignation be rescinded. This was done over Powell's vehement protest.

The questioning of Powell was expected to center on alleged "windfalls" which went to promoters of apartment houses prior

Brinkley Must Pay $1,500 For Assault With Shotgun

Man Who Confessed to Shooting Boggs Told to Settle Medical Bills, Other Items

Ulie Brinkley, Kingston, who became engaged in an argument with Richard Boggs resulting in an assault upon Boggs with a shotgun, will have to pay $1,500 hospital, medical and drug bills as a part of the terms of probation which was imposed in County Court by Judge John M. Cashin today.

Brinkley allegedly shot Boggs in the back following an argument downtown and then started to walk away. He was apprehended and charged with assault.

At the February term of County Court he entered a plea of guilty to second degree assault and sentence was deferred until April. Boggs sent a communication to the court asking that the court be lenient with Brinkley since an agreement had been reached whereby Brinkley would make payments to Boggs for his hospital and medical bills. Robert Ortale represented the complainant, Boggs. Louis G. Bruhn appeared for Brinkley.

All Over $50

Under the probation terms Brinkley will have to pay all his wage over $50 toward the bills. A 1½ to 3 year term at hard labor in Clinton prison was imposed but execution of sentence was suspended so long as the probation conditions are met.

Frank D. McConnell of Balmville entered a plea of guilty to a technical violation of Section 1897, Sub. 4, a charge of having possession of a firearm without a permit. He said he was taking the guns to a gunsmith at the time and they were not in condition for use. Imposition of any sentence was suspended.

A conservation law violation against Marcia Strock, Francis P. Carey, Viva Fichtner and Karl Fichtner, taking deer by means of artificial light, was moved for

Port Ewen Woman Hurt in Accident

Bus and Truck Collide at 3 A. M.; Atkins Held by Sheriff

A bus-truck accident in Port Ewen early today resulted in injury to one person and the arrest of another, according to a sheriff's office report.

None of the 35 bus passengers reported personal injuries, but Mrs. Theresa Atkins, 34, of Port Ewen, a passenger in the truck, was taken to Kingston Hospital for treatment of shock, the sheriff's office reported. Her condition later this morning was reported by hospital authorities as "fairly good."

Deputy Sheriff Albert E. Eisele arrested the truck driver, Harry A. Atkins, 48, of Port Ewen, on a disorderly conduct charge for his alleged actions following the accident. He was held for a hearing Tuesday evening before Justice of the Peace Francis Palen, Jr., of the town of Esopus.

Iron Workers Go Back to Bridges

Iron workers who walked off their jobs on the N. Y. State Thruway project near here last week were reported back on their jobs today after it was announced Saturday that an agreement had been made for them to return to work pending a conference Tuesday or Wednesday between union and thruway officials.

Samuel Doyle, business agent for Iron Workers Local, 417, AFL, Newburgh, said Saturday the men would return pending outcome of the meeting, and sources near the Route 28 traffic interchange, west of the city, said some, if not all, of the men were on their jobs today.

About 50 men walked off their jobs last Wednesday Doyle said, because of a dispute between a welder and a state inspector. The inspector, he said, should have reported any dissatisfaction to the job foreman, and should not have become involved in an argument with the welder.

Welders, Doyle said, must pass state tests to hold their jobs. This, he said, was not true of inspectors, and he announced after the walkout that the men would not return until a "qualified inspector" was placed on the job.

Parnell Thomas Will Try Comeback in Primary Vote

Newark, N. J., April 19 (AP)—A political comeback bid by former Rep. J. Parnell Thomas highlights tomorrow's New Jersey primary election, for which a light turnout at the polls is expected.

A lack of statewide issues accounts for the expected slack voting. Both the Republican and Democratic senatorial nominees are unopposed. Party battles exist in only eight of the state's 14 congressional districts.

Considerable attention is focused on bingo-raffles referenda, already legalized by constitutional amendment last November. In tomorrow's referenda, each municipality will decide whether it wants the games permitted within its borders.

Thomas, onetime chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee, has based most of his campaign on support of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R.-Wis.) and his objectives and methods. He is running against the incumbent, Rep. William N. Widnall, for the Republican nomination in the Seventh District. Widnall is backed by the party at state and local levels. He says he favors "fair procedures" in congressional probes and pledges full support of President Eisenhower's programs.

Thomas, 59, served seven terms in the House before he was convicted of padding his payroll while in office. He served a nine-month prison term and was pardoned in 1952.

The Seventh District Democratic candidate, Eugene B. Demarest, is unopposed.

The contest in the Sixth District finds seven Republicans seeking the nomination which would pit the victor against Democratic Rep. Harrison A. Williams, Jr., in November.

It was Williams who scored an upset triumph in the normally Republican district last November. Williams is unopposed in the primary.

Red China Unfit For UN, Is Charge

U.S. Ambassador Tells Associated Press Luncheon of 'Bribery' Attempt

New York, April 19 (AP)—Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., U. S. ambassador to the United Nations, said today Red China is giving substantial aid to aggression in Indochina and that it is "unfit" to join the United Nations.

He gave 10 reasons why the United States would resist any efforts of the Chinese Communists to "bribe" their way into the UN with promises of future good behavior.

His statement delivered at the Associated Press annual luncheon, significantly came only a week before the opening of the Geneva Conference. Red China will send representatives to the conference to discuss a Korean war settlement.

"I can promise you that the United States will steadfastly resist all maneuvers by the Chinese Communist regime and its advocates to bribe its way into the United Nations on mere promises of good behavior in the future," he said in a prepared address.

In his 10-point indictment of Red China, Lodge said "it continues to support aggression in Indochina, by giving substantial aid and by furnishing advisers and technicians to the Vietminh forces."

This was Lodge's only reference to Indochina in his prepared text.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon stirred up a controversy last week by saying it might become necessary eventually to send American troops to fight in Indochina.

Other Nine Points

The other nine points Lodge made against Red China were that:

It opposed the purposes and principles of the United Nations.

It was an aggressor in Korea.

It occupied "defenseless Tibet."

It sponsors guerrilla and subversive movements in Malaya and throughout southeast Asia.

It committed atrocities against Americans and others fighting in Korea.

It still holds 32 American civilians "under barbarous conditions without published charges."

It "wilfully fabricated and publicized false evidence of spurious germ warfare charges" in a hate campaign to blacken the United States.

It executed "millions of its

Rhee Will Attend Geneva Parley; Calls Move Final

Seoul, April 19 (AP)—President Syngman Rhee announced today that South Korea will attend the Geneva Conference opening next week. But he warned it is "a final time-consuming attempt" to unite Korea by peaceful means.

Rhee didn't say what his government would do if the conference fails. But there was a thinly-veiled threat in his statement that "we obviously cannot continue to sit idly by while the Communists exterminate or exile our people to the north and make a Red Chinese province out of half our country."

The peppery, 77-year-old president said "clear and encouraging" assurances from the United States "enable us to go to Geneva with confidence and considerable hope."

Rhee didn't elaborate on the assurances. But in New York You Chang Yang, Korean ambassador to the United States, said his nation had been assured (1) the United States will aid in greatly increasing the Republic of Korea's army and (2) a prime objective of the conference will be to re-unite all of Korea and eliminate all Red Chinese troops from that country.

A highly placed Korean source said the assurances were contained in a letter from President Eisenhower delivered to Rhee Sunday by U. S. ambassador Ellis O. Briggs.

In Augusta, Ga., presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty declined comment on the reports.

Foreign Minister Pyun Yung Tai, head of the ROK delegation to Geneva, said in Seoul he had two primary objectives; unification of Korea and "removal of the Chinese Communist aggressors from Korea."

Pyun said South Korea would not tolerate a buffer zone that would cut Korea in half. "Any buffer zone," he said, "must be north of the Yalu River." The Yalu is the boundary between Korea and Manchuria.

Iron Workers Go Back to Bridges

Iron workers who walked off their jobs on the N. Y. State Thruway project near here last week were reported back on their jobs today after it was announced Saturday that an agreement had been made for them to return to work pending a conference Tuesday or Wednesday between union and thruway officials.

Samuel Doyle, business agent for Iron Workers Local, 417, AFL, Newburgh, said Saturday the men would return pending outcome of the meeting, and sources near the Route 28 traffic interchange, west of the city, said some, if not all, of the men were on their jobs today.

About 50 men walked off their jobs last Wednesday Doyle said, because of a dispute between a welder and a state inspector. The inspector, he said, should have reported any dissatisfaction to the job foreman, and should not have become involved in an argument with the welder.

Welders, Doyle said, must pass state tests to hold their jobs. This, he said, was not true of inspectors, and he announced after the walkout that the men would not return until a "qualified inspector" was placed on the job.

Senator Is Against Single-Handed Move, Cites Korea

Washington, April 19 (AP)—Sen. Kuchel (R-Calif.) proposed today that America seek United Nations action and avoid any single-handed military attempt to save Indochina from the Communists.

Amid a growing controversy over Vice President Nixon's statement that this country might send troops to Indochina as a last resort, Kuchel said "I don't believe we can put fires out all over the world singlehandedly."

"We ought to take the case before the United Nations and ask for united action there," the California senator said in an interview.

"The 16 nations that signed the Korean truce," he said, "pledged themselves to a joint effort to prevent aggression and our allies should be called upon for help."

Thinks Withdrawal Unlikely

Nixon said to the American Society of Newspaper editors last Friday that he thought French withdrawal from Indochina unlikely. But that if that happened and other means failed the United States might have to send troops. France so far has opposed submitting the Indochina matter to the United Nations.

Although Nixon's statement indicated to many in Congress that the administration is resolved to hold Indochina even at the cost of going it alone, State Department officials insisted that the basic policy is one of "united action" such as Secretary of State Dulles called for in a March 29 speech.

In a statement issued Saturday, the department said Nixon had "enunciated no new U. S. policy toward Indochina." Secretary of State Dulles, returning to Washington yesterday from a brief vacation at Lake Ontario, had no comment.

Did Not Get Assurances

Despite this, there are reports that the administration asked for but did not receive assurances from Democratic as well as Republican leaders that if the worst comes to the worst they would back singlehanded intervention in Indochina.

Democrats were said to have backed away from giving in advance what some of them called a blank check for presidential action.

Sen. Knowland of California, the GOP floor leader, said in a weekend interview he is confident the President will ask prior approval by the lawmakers if it becomes advisable to use any American combat units in Indochina—including air and sea task forces.

"It is my belief that prior to the committing of any American armed forces, the President should and would come to Congress to lay the facts and his recommendations before it," Knowland said.

Subpoena Is Ordered for C. L. Powell

Former Assistant Called to Testify on Windfall Sums for Promoters of Apartments

Washington, April 19 (AP)—Guy T. O. Hollyday, ousted commissioner of the Federal Housing Administration, testified today he knew when he took office a year ago that "unscrupulous promoters" were active in the home repair loan field and he had tried to stop their "abuses."

He told investigating senators he put through new regulations, effective last Dec. 1, and was satisfied they "would go a long way toward preventing improper practices."

Hollyday was the first witness at an inquiry by the Senate Banking Committee into reports of muiti-million dollar swindles in the government's housing program.

Unanimous Vote

When the committee convened, its first act was a unanimous vote to issue a subpoena to compel Clyde L. Powell, former assistant FHA commissioner in charge of rental housing, to testify at its inquiry.

Chairman Capehart (R-Ind.) announced that Powell had notified him, 25 minutes before, that he would "prefer not to appear without a subpoena."

Powell resigned his FHA post on April 5, effective as of April 16. The resignation was accepted, but one week after the disclosures of profiteering and "fleecing" of home owners came to light.

Housing and Home Finance Administrator Albert M. Cole promptly ordered that acceptance of the resignation be rescinded. This was done over Powell's vehement protest.

The questioning of Powell was expected to center on alleged "windfalls" which went to promoters of apartment houses prior

Ryan's Series On Indochina Vivid Story

By The Associated Press

A terse rundown of terms in the news from Indochina:

INDOCHINA — 286,000 square miles (slightly bigger than Texas); 27 million people (two million more than Korea).

ASSOCIATED STATES — The Republic of Viet Nam and the Kingdoms of Cambodia and Laos which have been granted theoretical independence within the French union, an association of French overseas territories. The three states make up Indochina.

VIET NAM—Means "and of the south." The northern province of Tonkin, the narrow coastal strip of Annam and southern province known as Cochin China make up a nominal republic headed by the former emperor of Annam and Tonkin, Bao Dai. Annamites are the majority race in most parts of Viet Nam. Viet Nam has most of Indochina's population, about 22 million.

LAOS—"Land of the millions of elephants," and inland belt of territory bordering Annam on the west, with about 1½ million people ruled by King Sisavang Vong.

CAMBODIA—The southwestern part of Indochina. It has about four million people ruled by King Norodom Sihanouk.

VIETMINH—Means "league for the independence of Viet Nam." A political movement led by Ho Chi Minh, who received his tutoring in Moscow, and which, at the beginning in 1945-46, at least, included many Nationalists as well as Communists.

TONKINESE—The people of Tonkin, the northern part of Viet Nam. There are about 10 million of them in the 44,670 square mile area—about the size of Louisiana. Tonkin includes the vital Red River delta area and the city of Hanoi, the provincial capital. Tonkin is bounded on the north by Communist China.

Parnell Thomas Will Try Comeback in Primary Vote

Newark, N. J., April 19 (AP)—A political comeback bid by former Rep. J. Parnell Thomas highlights tomorrow's New Jersey primary election, for which a light turnout at the polls is expected.

A lack of statewide issues accounts for the expected slack voting. Both the Republican and Democratic senatorial nominees are unopposed. Party battles exist in only eight of the state's 14 congressional districts.

Considerable attention is focused on bingo-raffles referenda, already legalized by constitutional amendment last November. In tomorrow's referenda, each municipality will decide whether it wants the games permitted within its borders.

Thomas, onetime chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee, has based most of his campaign on support of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R.-Wis.) and his objectives and methods. He is running against the incumbent, Rep. William N. Widnall, for the Republican nomination in the Seventh District. Widnall is backed by the party at state and local levels. He says he favors "fair procedures" in congressional probes and pledges full support of President Eisenhower's programs.

Thomas, 59, served seven terms in the House before he was convicted of padding his payroll while in office. He served a nine-month prison term and was pardoned in 1952.

The Seventh District Democratic candidate, Eugene B. Demarest, is unopposed.

The contest in the Sixth District finds seven Republicans seeking the nomination which would pit the victor against Democratic Rep. Harrison A. Williams, Jr., in November.

It was Williams who scored an upset triumph in the normally Republican district last November. Williams is unopposed in the primary.

Rhee Will Attend Geneva Parley; Calls Move Final

Seoul, April 19 (AP)—President Syngman Rhee announced today that South Korea will attend the Geneva Conference opening next week. But he warned it is "a final time-consuming attempt" to unite Korea by peaceful means.

Rhee didn't say what his government would do if the conference fails. But there was a thinly-veiled threat in his statement that "we obviously cannot continue to sit idly by while the Communists exterminate or exile our people to the north and make a Red Chinese province out of half our country."

The peppery, 77-year-old president said "clear and encouraging" assurances from the United States "enable us to go to Geneva with confidence and considerable hope."

Rhee didn't elaborate on the assurances. But in New York You Chang Yang, Korean ambassador to the United States, said his nation had been assured (1) the United States will aid in greatly increasing the Republic of Korea's army and (2) a prime objective of the conference will be to re-unite all of Korea and eliminate all Red Chinese troops from that country.

A highly placed Korean source said the assurances were contained in a letter from President Eisenhower delivered to Rhee Sunday by U. S. ambassador Ellis O. Briggs.

In Augusta, Ga., presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty declined comment on the reports.

Foreign Minister Pyun Yung Tai, head of the ROK delegation to Geneva, said in Seoul he had two primary objectives; unification of Korea and "removal of the Chinese Communist aggressors from Korea."

Pyun said South Korea would not tolerate a buffer zone that would cut Korea in half. "Any buffer zone," he said, "must be north of the Yalu River." The Yalu is the boundary between Korea and Manchuria.

Dulles to Confer With President on Aid to Indochina

Augusta, Ga., April 19 (AP) — President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles confer here today on American efforts to bolster Indochina against the Reds and save the rest of southeast Asia from Communist aggression.

The President sent his private plane, the Columbine, to Washton for Dulles and the cabinet officer's first hand report on his London and Paris negotiations last week to work out a Pacific defense alliance.

Dulles was scheduled to arrive at Bush Airport at 12:10 p. m., and go immediately to the President's Easter holiday headquarters at the Augusta National Golf Club. They planned to talk at lunch and afterward, the secretary plans to fly back to Washington in the late afternoon.

May Review Statement

One aspect of the Eisenhower-Dulles conference may be the controversy touched off in Congress by Vice President Nixon's statement Friday, in reply to a hypothetical question, that American troops might have to be sent into Indochina if the French withdraw. Nixon prefaced his answer, however, by saying he doesn't think the French will pull out.

The vice president spoke at a meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors and stipulated at the time that his remarks were not to be attributed to him. But the identity of the speaker later leaked out.

Eisenhower's headquarters has declined comment on whether Nixon's statement represents administration policy. James C. Hagerty, presidential press secretary, refused comment specifically last night on a demand by Sen. Gore (D-Tenn.) that Eisenhower made his policies clear with respect to Indochina.

The State Department, in a statement Saturday night prompted by Nixon's remarks, said it is "highly unlikely" that U. S. forces will have to replace French forces in Indochina. But the department backed up the vice president's stand that southeast Asia must be saved from Red aggression.

Warned Against Losses

Eisenhower himself declared at a recent news conference that the free world can't afford further losses to the Communists in southeast Asia.

In his talks with the British and French last week, Dulles won agreement they would join with the United States in working toward a Pacific defense alliance. Dulles' goal is a 10-nation pact similar to the North Atlantic Collective Security Program.

Hoover Promises Plan

Washington, April 19 (AP)—Former President Hoover says his Commission on Government Reorganization will reveal in a few months a plan to cut federal spending five to seven billion dollars a year—a step that could result in a balanced federal budget. Hoover urged that all postponable spending be delayed until his commission reports on a study aimed at streamlining federal functions and cutting costs of government. Addressing the American Society of Newspaper Editors Saturday Hoover said next year's federal budget deficit may reach "7½ billion dollars or more"—an eventuality he described as "the surest road to disaster."

Suffers Knee Injury

Police were notified Sunday afternoon that Mary Bonanno, 52, of 298 Hasbrouck avenue, an employe of the N. Y. Telephone Co., suffered an injury of the left knee, when she fell over a rope between two cars on West O'Reilly street at about 8:05 p. m., Saturday, as she was leaving the telephone building. The rope, she said she learned later, was being used by one car to pull another, and both were stopped for a traffic light. Arne Lillimagi, of 142 Broadway, reported later that he was towing the car of Walt DeGraff, of Third avenue, at the time of the mishap.

Yoshida Sticks to Post

Tokyo, April 19 (AP)—Embattled Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida held on grimly to office today amid louder and louder demands that he and his administration resign en masse in the midst of Japan's shipbuilding graft scandal. With suspicion pointing at his two top Liberal party leaders, Yoshida may soon have to reshuffle his cabinet or purge the party to satisfy the outcry.

Late Bulletin

United Nations, April 19 (AP)—Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky said today the Soviet Union has "built the hydrogen bomb," but still demands prohibition of all atomic and hydrogen weapons.

He appeared to foredoom any agreement on arms control in the UN by announcing that nothing useful would come from a subcommittee of the big powers unless Red China, India and Czechoslovakia were included.

The West wants a subcommittee of the UN Disarmament Commission to be composed of the United States, Britain, France, the Soviet Union and Canada. Sir Pierson Dixon of Britain insisted in the Disarmament Commission on cofining the smaller group to those countries and urged Vishinsky to go along with the commission in an attempt to get the talks going promptly.

UN Action

Committee, said Eisenhower had assured his group that Congress would be consulted if sending troops to Indochina is deemed advisable.

Speaking on a television program last night, Judd added that "every step" of the administration's foreign policy actions toward Indochina "has been talked over with both Republicans and Democrats in my presence."

Sen. Douglas (D.-Ill.) said on the same program that "there has been so much conflicting testimony . . . I think it would be very helpful if the President would appear before Congress and tell us what the situation in Indochina is and what to do about it."

In Huntsville, Ala., Sen. Sparkman (D.-Ala.), issued a statement yesterday calling on the administration to "reestablish bipartisan action toward working out this present dangerous situation" in Indochina.

Would Not Wait

Sen. Gore (D.-Tenn.) said in an interview that he doesn't want to await an emergency before getting the facts and a public declaration of administration policy. He said the country ought to know if Nixon was outlining White House policy.

"The vice president has no constitutional responsibility in this matter and neither does he have the authority to speak on policy unless it was delegated to him," Gore said. "It is imperatively incumbent on the President to make his policies clear with respect to our possible further involvement in Indochina. The country desperately needs clarification and the President is the only one who can give it."

At Augusta, Ga., where Eisenhower is vacationing, presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty said "no comment" when advised of Gore's statement.

Requests Called Rare

Washington, April 19 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson and the chiefs of the armed services have told Sen. McCarthy (R.-Wis.) they get only "rare" requests from congressmen for special consideration for individuals in service. The Wisconsin senator is embroiled with the army over charges that he and his aides applied pressure in an effort to get preferred treatment for Pvt. G. David Schine, a drafted former unpaid member of the staff of McCarthy's investigating committee.

Tuna Is Condemned

Tokyo, April 19 (AP)—Health officials at the giant Tsukiji Japaneses fish market here condemned 3,000 pounds of tuna from the mid-Pacific catch brought here today. The fish showed signs of harmful radioactivity. The remainder of the 106,000-pound catch was declared safe for human consumption. The fishermen said they had been operating east of the Marshall Islands, site of recent hydrogen bomb tests.

Large Attendance Due on Wednesday At C of C Parley

An unusually large number of Chamber of Commerce members and officials are expected to attend the annual membership meeting Wednesday at 8 p. m. at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

In making this prediction today, Chamber President N. Jansen Fowler also said that routine business will be kept to a minimum to allow most of the evening for a discussion of the subject of tax equalization ratios and assessments, with ample time for the answering of questions asked by the audience. As previously announced J. Russell Thorne of Albany, executive-director of the State Board of Equalization and Assessment, will be the principal speaker.

Questions will be answered by a trio of experts including Thorne, James A. Simpson and Homer E. Scace of the Empire State Chamber of Commerce.

Others Are Invited

Fowler also renewed his invitation to all officials in Kingston and Ulster county, such as assessors, supervisors and aldermen to attend the meeting and said that attendance is not limited to Chamber members.

Chamber business to be transacted will be voting on the change of name as recommended by the Board of Directors. It is proposed to change the corporate name from Kingston Chamber of Commerce, Inc. to the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce, Inc. The only other regular business will be a brief report by the executive-secretary, Albert Kurdt. Fowler urged all members who find it impossible to attend the meeting Wednesday night to return the signed proxy included with the meeting notice. Over half of the membership must vote favorably on the question of changing the name.

May Check Tax Returns

Augusta, Ga., April 19 (AP)—President Eisenhower today gave the Senate Banking Committee access to income tax returns for use in its investigation of the FHA housing scandals. Eisenhower acted after Albert M. Cole, chief of the housing and home finance agency, disclosed that one unnamed official involved in the inquiry has been accused of receiving money for favors, presumably to builders. Eisenhower's order gives the committee access to income tax returns in connection with FHA loans under section 608 of the National Housing Act. That section covers insured loans for apartment projects.

Troopers said one of the automobiles involved was driven by Peter Eskey, 26, and the other by Raymond Decker, 18, both from Pine Bush.

Dulles to Confer With President on Aid to Indochina

Augusta, Ga., April 19 (AP) — President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles confer here today on American efforts to bolster Indochina against the Reds and save the rest of southeast Asia from Communist aggression.

The President sent his private plane, the Columbine, to Washton for Dulles and the cabinet officer's first hand report on his London and Paris negotiations last week to work out a Pacific defense alliance.

Dulles was scheduled to arrive at Bush Airport at 12:10 p. m., and go immediately to the President's Easter holiday headquarters at the Augusta National Golf Club. They planned to talk at lunch and afterward, the secretary plans to fly back to Washington in the late afternoon.

May Review Statement

One aspect of the Eisenhower-Dulles conference may be the controversy touched off in Congress by Vice President Nixon's statement Friday, in reply to a hypothetical question, that American troops might have to be sent into Indochina if the French withdraw. Nixon prefaced his answer, however, by saying he doesn't think the French will pull out.

The vice president spoke at a meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors and stipulated at the time that his remarks were not to be attributed to him. But the identity of the speaker later leaked out.

Eisenhower's headquarters has declined comment on whether Nixon's statement represents administration policy. James C. Hagerty, presidential press secretary, refused comment specifically last night on a demand by Sen. Gore (D-Tenn.) that Eisenhower made his policies clear with respect to Indochina.

The State Department, in a statement Saturday night prompted by Nixon's remarks, said it is "highly unlikely" that U. S. forces will have to replace French forces in Indochina. But the department backed up the vice president's stand that southeast Asia must be saved from Red aggression.

Warned Against Losses

Eisenhower himself declared at a recent news conference that the free world can't afford further losses to the Communists in southeast Asia.

In his talks with the British and French last week, Dulles won agreement they would join with the United States in working toward a Pacific defense alliance. Dulles' goal is a 10-nation pact similar to the North Atlantic Collective Security Program.

Hoover Promises Plan

Washington, April 19 (AP)—Former President Hoover says his Commission on Government Reorganization will reveal in a few months a plan to cut federal spending five to seven billion dollars a year—a step that could result in a balanced federal budget. Hoover urged that all postponable spending be delayed until his commission reports on a study aimed at streamlining federal functions and cutting costs of government. Addressing the American Society of Newspaper Editors Saturday Hoover said next year's federal budget deficit may reach "7½ billion dollars or more"—an eventuality he described as "the surest road to disaster."

Suffers Knee Injury

Police were notified Sunday afternoon that Mary Bonanno, 52, of 298 Hasbrouck avenue, an employe of the N. Y. Telephone Co., suffered an injury of the left knee, when she fell over a rope between two cars on West O'Reilly street at about 8:05 p. m., Saturday, as she was leaving the telephone building. The rope, she said she learned later, was being used by one car to pull another, and both were stopped for a traffic light. Arne Lillimagi, of 142 Broadway, reported later that he was towing the car of Walt DeGraff, of Third avenue, at the time of the mishap.

Yoshida Sticks to Post

Tokyo, April 19 (AP)—Embattled Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida held on grimly to office today amid louder and louder demands that he and his administration resign en masse in the midst of Japan's shipbuilding graft scandal. With suspicion pointing at his two top Liberal party leaders, Yoshida may soon have to reshuffle his cabinet or purge the party to satisfy the outcry.

J. D. Schultz Dies

Schultz, a native of Chester, N. Y., retired from the Times Herald several years ago. He is survived by his wife, Ethel.

Late Bulletin

United Nations, April 19 (AP)—Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky said today the Soviet Union has "built the hydrogen bomb," but still demands prohibition of all atomic and hydrogen weapons.

He appeared to foredoom any agreement on arms control in the UN by announcing that nothing useful would come from a subcommittee of the big powers unless Red China, India and Czechoslovakia were included.

The West wants a subcommittee of the UN Disarmament Commission to be composed of the United States, Britain, France, the Soviet Union and Canada. Sir Pierson Dixon of Britain insisted in the Disarmament Commission on cofining the smaller group to those countries and urged Vishinsky to go along with the commission in an attempt to get the talks going promptly.

UN Action

Committee, said Eisenhower had assured his group that Congress would be consulted if sending troops to Indochina is deemed advisable.

Speaking on a television program last night, Judd added that "every step" of the administration's foreign policy actions toward Indochina "has been talked over with both Republicans and Democrats in my presence."

Sen. Douglas (D.-Ill.) said on the same program that "there has been so much conflicting testimony . . . I think it would be very helpful if the President would appear before Congress and tell us what the situation in Indochina is and what to do about it."

In Huntsville, Ala., Sen. Sparkman (D.-Ala.), issued a statement yesterday calling on the administration to "reestablish bipartisan action toward working out this present dangerous situation" in Indochina.

Would Not Wait

Sen. Gore (D.-Tenn.) said in an interview that he doesn't want to await an emergency before getting the facts and a public declaration of administration policy. He said the country ought to know if Nixon was outlining White House policy.

"The vice president has no constitutional responsibility in this matter and neither does he have the authority to speak on policy unless it was delegated to him," Gore said. "It is imperatively incumbent on the President to make his policies clear with respect to our possible further involvement in Indochina. The country desperately needs clarification and the President is the only one who can give it."

At Augusta, Ga., where Eisenhower is vacationing, presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty said "no comment" when advised of Gore's statement.

Requests Called Rare

Washington, April 19 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Wilson and the chiefs of the armed services have told Sen. McCarthy (R.-Wis.) they get only "rare" requests from congressmen for special consideration for individuals in service. The Wisconsin senator is embroiled with the army over charges that he and his aides applied pressure in an effort to get preferred treatment for Pvt. G. David Schine, a drafted former unpaid member of the staff of McCarthy's investigating committee.

Tuna Is Condemned

Tokyo, April 19 (AP)—Health officials at the giant Tsukiji Japaneses fish market here condemned 3,000 pounds of tuna from the mid-Pacific catch brought here today. The fish showed signs of harmful radioactivity. The remainder of the 106,000-pound catch was declared safe for human consumption. The fishermen said they had been operating east of the Marshall Islands, site of recent hydrogen bomb tests.

On the call of the civil calendar two actions were announced settled, No. 87, Etienne F. Messinger against Davis Rosenzweig and another, action to recover for professional services. A civil calendar was made up to follow the criminal case.

Large Attendance Due on Wednesday At C of C Parley

An unusually large number of Chamber of Commerce members and officials are expected to attend the annual membership meeting Wednesday at 8 p. m. at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

In making this prediction today, Chamber President N. Jansen Fowler also said that routine business will be kept to a minimum to allow most of the evening for a discussion of the subject of tax equalization ratios and assessments, with ample time for the answering of questions asked by the audience. As previously announced J. Russell Thorne of Albany, executive-director of the State Board of Equalization and Assessment, will be the principal speaker.

Questions will be answered by a trio of experts including Thorne, James A. Simpson and Homer E. Scace of the Empire State Chamber of Commerce.

Others Are Invited

Fowler also renewed his invitation to all officials in Kingston and Ulster county, such as assessors, supervisors and aldermen to attend the meeting and said that attendance is not limited to Chamber members.

Chamber business to be transacted will be voting on the change of name as recommended by the Board of Directors. It is proposed to change the corporate name from Kingston Chamber of Commerce, Inc. to the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce, Inc. The only other regular business will be a brief report by the executive-secretary, Albert Kurdt. Fowler urged all members who find it impossible to attend the meeting Wednesday night to return the signed proxy included with the meeting notice. Over half of the membership must vote favorably on the question of changing the name.

May Check Tax Returns

Augusta, Ga., April 19 (AP)—President Eisenhower today gave the Senate Banking Committee access to income tax returns for use in its investigation of the FHA housing scandals. Eisenhower acted after Albert M. Cole, chief of the housing and home finance agency, disclosed that one unnamed official involved in the inquiry has been accused of receiving money for favors, presumably to builders. Eisenhower's order gives the committee access to income tax returns in connection with FHA loans under section 608 of the National Housing Act. That section covers insured loans for apartment projects.

Wolven Is Fined

Eugene Wolven, Jr., 16, of R.D. Box 316, Kingston, was fined $5 on a charge of operating a motor vehicle without a license when he was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Edward Brodsky of the town of Rosendale this noon. He was arrested by Ray Winne, special deputy at the Thruway construction project on Route 32, and regular Deputy Sheriff Arthur B. Smith.

Treated for Lacerations

Theodore Rozoski, 28, of Pine Bush was treated for minor lacerations after a two-car collision on Route 52, two miles west of Pine Bush about 6:45 p. m., Sunday, state police of Ellenville reported. Troopers said one of the automobiles involved was driven by Peter Eskey, 26, and the other by Raymond Decker, 18, both from Pine Bush.

Hurley Firemen Called

The Hurley Fire Department was called about 9:30 a. m. today to extinguish a small fire in the wiring of an automobile on Lucas avenue extension. Damage to the automobile appeared to be slight.

60-Mile Speed Set for Thruway; Buses, Trucks 50

Albany, April 19 (AP)—The State Thruway Authority has announced speed limits for the 427-mile New York-Buffalo expressway—60 miles an hour for passenger automobiles and 50 for buses and trucks.

The Authority said Saturday the limits would become effective June 24, when a 120-mile stretch in central and western New York is to be opened for toll traffic.

Authority Chairman Bertram D. Tallamy called the speed limits "realistic." They will be, he said, "high enough to afford substantial time savings by reason of non-stop travel, yet low enough to insure safety."

Tallamy said the 50-mile limit for buses and trucks had been arrived at after consultations with trucking representatives and was "entirely acceptable" to the industry.

A special detail of state troopers will enforce the speed limits, the Authority said. The thruway will pay all costs of equipping the patrol, including salaries.

Speeders will be subject to fines up to $50, jail terms up to 30 days, or both.

Tallamy estimated that when completed the thruway would cut an hour and 45 minutes from New York-Buffalo driving time. The passenger car toll for that trip will be $5, somewhat less than the rate of 1¼ cents a mile announced last Friday.

Think It Through

By EDWARD F. HUTTON

I have a word of advice for the Republican Administration.

A public works program as a "cure" for a business decline is one of the oldest "fall backs" of Government. It's as old as the Emperors of Rome, the Pharoahs of Egypt. And how the New Deal used it! But actually, such programs solved nothing. In the end the taxpayers "got the works."

Mr. Hutton

Here are my reasons:

If you get the money to run these programs through taxes, the people have that much less to spend.

If you get the money inflating the currency, it decreases the value of every dollar the people hold.

As far as unemployment is concerned, we had it through the New Deal and we have had it since. We probably shall always have unemployment, mainy because there are a lot of people who don't want to work or who can't hold jobs because of psychological reasons too numerous to mention.

We are getting a lot of unemployment figures these days. I submit they are "loaded" as statistics only and not relevant as to the real condition existing. I believe you will find that a big share of the unemployed no longer want to work; others are only temporarily jobless during a shift in the employment emphasis among industries. And, I submit, the figure isn't nearly as bad as some "scarehead" writers would have you believe. Somebody is just getting panicky.

So, I say to the President:

"Dear Ike, watch your step. Take a good look at the national debt. Why follow the past? Why not create a program of your own?

Pope Asks Ban On Nuclear Bombs

Vatican City, April 19 (AP)—Pope Pius XII has called for an international agreement banning the use of atomic and hydrogen bombs except in self-defense.

The head of the Roman Catholic Church, broadcasting his annual Easter message yesterday, appealed for outlawing of the "destructive arms of unprecedented violence." He said the new bombs and germ and chemical warfare have brought "the fear of a third world conflict and a dreadful future" to the people of the world.

The world's rulers, the Pope said, should turn their new knowledge of atomic energy exclusively to the purposes of peace.

The 79-year-old Pontiff, convalescing from a serious stomach ailment which has curbed his activity since Jan. 25 spoke from his Vatican apartment. Shortly afterward he appeared briefly on the balcony of St. Peter's Basilica to pronounce his Easter blessing. More than 300,000 pilgrims and tourists cheered from the square below.

UJA Workers Are To Report Tonight

Campaign workers of the United Jewish & Welfare Fund Drive will make their first report at a meeting to be held tonight at 8 o'clock at the home of Arthur B. Ewig, general chairman, it was announced today.

After the campaign breakfast held at the Jewish Community Center last Sunday, the workers proceeded on a house-to-house solicitation and since that time have been following up on calls that were not completed at that time.

Ewig urged support of the local drive declaring that the advancement of the ideals of freedom and democracy by strengthening the democratic people of Israel is one of the prime missions of the local campaign.

Funds given to the United Jewish Welfare Fund Drive also finance the life-saving and life-building programs of two other constituent agencies, the Joint Distribution Committee and the United Service For New Americans. The Jewish Community Center of Kingston also depends largely on the results of the local drive.

Conant Is Optimistic

New York, April 19 (AP)—James B. Conant, U. S. high commissioner for Germany, says he expects western Germany to obtain "essential sovereignty" by July 1 or within a couple of months of that date." He says he feels optimistic about the end of that country's "occupational status," which will depend on final ratification of the European Defense Community treaty. Conant's views were given to newsmen yesterday at Idlewild Airport where he landed on his way to Washington to report to administration leaders and the Senate.

Twice-Year Check On Cars Will Begin In New York July 1

Albany, April 19 (AP)—Gov. Dewey has cleared the way for New York state to bar worn-out and unsafe automobiles from the highways.

The governor signed a bill Saturday establishing a system for mandatory, twice-yearly inspections of all autos registered in the state.

In a memorandum, Dewey said the legislation was designed to "rid the roads of ancient and dangerous vehicles."

The law, which goes into effect July 1, covers all but a specified group of motor vehicles. No inspection dates were specified, but the legislation stipulates that no vehicle bearing New York tags may be operated on state highways after Sept. 1, 1955, without an inspection certificate.

Starting in 1956, no vehicle will be registered unless it has been certified as safe.

To License 13,000 Garages

About 13,000 private garages will be licensed to inspect the vehicles. The inspectors will check brakes, steering gear, wheel alignment, horn, tires, lights, glass, windshield wiper and any other equipment the motor vehicle commissioner designates as important to safe operation.

The law leaves it up to the individual garages to fix their inspection fees. Each garage must report to the motor vehicle commissioner the amount it is charging. The commissioner can revoke or suspend the inspection license if the fee is excessive.

At Official Direction

If, after inspection, a vehicle is found to need repairs or adjustments, the owner will be directed to make them within a period set by the commissioner. The commissioner is directed to suspend the registration of autos not repaired within the specified time, or of those lacking a certificate.

If, after repairs, a vehicle is found still unsafe, its registration will be revoked.

Exempt from the inspection is such equipment as snow plows, road graders, farm equipment, vehicles operated under Public Service Commission authority and vehicles subject to local inspection.

Asks Uniform Order

New York, April 19 (AP)—Emil Rieve, general president of the CIO Textile Workers Union of America, asked President Eisenhower today to order an immediate start on procurement of the new army uniform. Rieve, noting unemployment in the woolen and worsted industry, said: "Inasmuch as the uniforms are to be bought eventually, the best time is now."

The army recently revealed its plans for a new style gray-green uniform to replace the olive drab. Rieve said employment in the industry has shrunk from a high of 167,000 to less than 70,000—many of whom are working only part time.

A special detail of state troopers will enforce the speed limits, the Authority said. The thruway will pay all costs of equipping the patrol, including salaries.

Speeders will be subject to fines up to $50, jail terms up to 30 days, or both.

Tallamy estimated that when completed the thruway would cut an hour and 45 minutes from New York-Buffalo driving time. The passenger car toll for that trip will be $5, somewhat less than the rate of 1¼ cents a mile announced last Friday.

Think It Through

By EDWARD F. HUTTON

I have a word of advice for the Republican Administration.

A public works program as a "cure" for a business decline is one of the oldest "fall backs" of Government. It's as old as the Emperors of Rome, the Pharoahs of Egypt. And how the New Deal used it! But actually, such programs solved nothing. In the end the taxpayers "got the works."

Mr. Hutton

Here are my reasons:

If you get the money to run these programs through taxes, the people have that much less to spend.

If you get the money inflating the currency, it decreases the value of every dollar the people hold.

As far as unemployment is concerned, we had it through the New Deal and we have had it since. We probably shall always have unemployment, mainy because there are a lot of people who don't want to work or who can't hold jobs because of psychological reasons too numerous to mention.

We are getting a lot of unemployment figures these days. I submit they are "loaded" as statistics only and not relevant as to the real condition existing. I believe you will find that a big share of the unemployed no longer want to work; others are only temporarily jobless during a shift in the employment emphasis among industries. And, I submit, the figure isn't nearly as bad as some "scarehead" writers would have you believe. Somebody is just getting panicky.

So, I say to the President:

"Dear Ike, watch your step. Take a good look at the national debt. Why follow the past? Why not create a program of your own?

Pope Asks Ban On Nuclear Bombs

Vatican City, April 19 (AP)—Pope Pius XII has called for an international agreement banning the use of atomic and hydrogen bombs except in self-defense.

The head of the Roman Catholic Church, broadcasting his annual Easter message yesterday, appealed for outlawing of the "destructive arms of unprecedented violence." He said the new bombs and germ and chemical warfare have brought "the fear of a third world conflict and a dreadful future" to the people of the world.

The world's rulers, the Pope said, should turn their new knowledge of atomic energy exclusively to the purposes of peace.

The 79-year-old Pontiff, convalescing from a serious stomach ailment which has curbed his activity since Jan. 25 spoke from his Vatican apartment. Shortly afterward he appeared briefly on the balcony of St. Peter's Basilica to pronounce his Easter blessing. More than 300,000 pilgrims and tourists cheered from the square below.

Needs Consent

UJA Workers Are To Report Tonight

Campaign workers of the United Jewish & Welfare Fund Drive will make their first report at a meeting to be held tonight at 8 o'clock at the home of Arthur B. Ewig, general chairman, it was announced today.

After the campaign breakfast held at the Jewish Community Center last Sunday, the workers proceeded on a house-to-house solicitation and since that time have been following up on calls that were not completed at that time.

Ewig urged support of the local drive declaring that the advancement of the ideals of freedom and democracy by strengthening the democratic people of Israel is one of the prime missions of the local campaign.

Funds given to the United Jewish Welfare Fund Drive also finance the life-saving and life-building programs of two other constituent agencies, the Joint Distribution Committee and the United Service For New Americans. The Jewish Community Center of Kingston also depends largely on the results of the local drive.

Conant Is Optimistic

New York, April 19 (AP)—James B. Conant, U. S. high commissioner for Germany, says he expects western Germany to obtain "essential sovereignty" by July 1 or within a couple of months of that date." He says he feels optimistic about the end of that country's "occupational status," which will depend on final ratification of the European Defense Community treaty. Conant's views were given to newsmen yesterday at Idlewild Airport where he landed on his way to Washington to report to administration leaders and the Senate.

Twice-Year Check On Cars Will Begin In New York July 1

Albany, April 19 (AP)—Gov. Dewey has cleared the way for New York state to bar worn-out and unsafe automobiles from the highways.

The governor signed a bill Saturday establishing a system for mandatory, twice-yearly inspections of all autos registered in the state.

In a memorandum, Dewey said the legislation was designed to "rid the roads of ancient and dangerous vehicles."

The law, which goes into effect July 1, covers all but a specified group of motor vehicles. No inspection dates were specified, but the legislation stipulates that no vehicle bearing New York tags may be operated on state highways after Sept. 1, 1955, without an inspection certificate.

Starting in 1956, no vehicle will be registered unless it has been certified as safe.

To License 13,000 Garages

About 13,000 private garages will be licensed to inspect the vehicles. The inspectors will check brakes, steering gear, wheel alignment, horn, tires, lights, glass, windshield wiper and any other equipment the motor vehicle commissioner designates as important to safe operation.

The law leaves it up to the individual garages to fix their inspection fees. Each garage must report to the motor vehicle commissioner the amount it is charging. The commissioner can revoke or suspend the inspection license if the fee is excessive.

At Official Direction

If, after inspection, a vehicle is found to need repairs or adjustments, the owner will be directed to make them within a period set by the commissioner. The commissioner is directed to suspend the registration of autos not repaired within the specified time, or of those lacking a certificate.

If, after repairs, a vehicle is found still unsafe, its registration will be revoked.

Exempt from the inspection is such equipment as snow plows, road graders, farm equipment, vehicles operated under Public Service Commission authority and vehicles subject to local inspection.

Asks Uniform Order

New York, April 19 (AP)—Emil Rieve, general president of the CIO Textile Workers Union of America, asked President Eisenhower today to order an immediate start on procurement of the new army uniform. Rieve, noting unemployment in the woolen and worsted industry, said: "Inasmuch as the uniforms are to be bought eventually, the best time is now."

The army recently revealed its plans for a new style gray-green uniform to replace the olive drab. Rieve said employment in the industry has shrunk from a high of 167,000 to less than 70,000—many of whom are working only part time.

NATIONAL YWCA WEEK

This week is National YWCA week. Each year at this time over 3,000,000 members of the Young Women's Christian Association in this country celebrate the anniversary of this organization which for nearly a century has dedicated its efforts to the welfare of women and girls. The theme for the week is "They go to church, they go to school, they go to work, they go to the YWCA—Let's keep them going." It is a theme which emphasizes the fact that the YWCA is a permanent force for good in our community and works side by side with other proved institutions for the welfare of our citizens.

Founded 99 years ago as a "fellowship of women and girls, devoted to the task of realizing in our common life those ideals of personal and social living to which we are committed by our faith as Christians" the YWCA for almost 100 years has worked among us, putting into everyday practice its ideals of Christian Democracy. Through the years it has lived and practiced what it believes in—the common brotherhood of all men. In our country the YWCA is part of normal living and development among our youth, even as the church, school and work. As an organization dedicated to helping meet the needs of young women, it offers varied opportunities for personal development and effective citizenship in a democracy. Its ensignia, the blue triangle, symbolizes its emphases on growth for mind, body and spirit.

In these times of tension and insecurity, especially for our youth, the YWCA provides a steadying influence for developing mature, effective individuals who can make the most of their capabilities and face the present and the future with courage. The strength of any democracy lies in the strength, both physical and spiritual, of its people. By helping our young people to a fuller, happier, healthier life, the YWCA fortifies freedom with faith and fellowship. It stands as a staunch bulwark for our way of life in America.

THE GREATEST POET

For centuries he has been universally honored and admired, yet his birthday goes without notice. That was William Shakespeare, born on April 23, 1564, held by all the civilized world supreme as poet and playwright. Of all other poets only Homer and Dante can be mentioned in the same breath. The Germans, who have that poet and universal genius, Goethe, have almost adopted Shakespeare. They publish more studies on him than on almost any other writer, and speak of him endearingly as "our German Shakespeare."

Little is known of his personal life, and so intense has been the search that there seems small likelihood of finding out more. This lack of information may be the chief reason for the attempts, failures so far, to fix his writings on some other figure of the period, chiefly the scientist, philosopher and jurist, Francis Bacon.

Perhaps the best answer to the question of authorship of the plays was given by the schoolboy who wrote, "Shakespeare's plays were not written by Shakespeare, but by another man of the same name."

Whoever wrote them gains from that achievement glory enough for any man.

ARTEMUS WARD

One of the best known anecdotes about Lincoln is of his opening the cabinet meeting which was to consider the issuance of the Emancipation Proclamation, by reading an amusing passage just written by the humorist of the day, Artemus Ward. This greatly disgusted his serious-minded Secretary of War, Edwin M. Stanton; but probably it made Lincoln's fellow Americans feel ever more strongly that he was one of them.

Ward's birthday occurs on April 26, but probably will not be celebrated. In his brief life from 1834 to 1867 he had time for little but humorous foolery, which got much of its effect from intentional misspellings and incorrect pronunciation. He was one of a number of satirists of the political scene, including Major Jack Downing and and Petroleum V. Nasby. They began the tradition carried on later by Mr. Dooley and Will Rogers. Most people, if they read the earlier writers, would feel that the later writers of political humor are far and away the better.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

THE RICE WAR

The greatest value of Indochina to the Soviet Universal State is that this and the adjacent area of Thailand can make China self-sufficient in the matter of rice. What wheat is to the people of Europe, rice is to a large part of Asia. In modern times, China failed to produce an adequate supply of rice for her people, which is one of the principal reasons for the mass disturbances in that country which have been continuous for about a century. Rice riots were not unusual in China during the years that I lived there.

All low standard of living countries prefer the stomach-filling, energy-giving grains to the expensive muscle meats which are favored in the high standard of living countries. Whereas in Eastern Europe bread accompanies the principal dish, in the rice-eating countries the grain is the major food, gravies, vegetables, fresh or dry fish or occasional meats are trimmings. Only the soy bean competes with rice in areas where the bean is used.

The surplus producers of rice in Asia have been Burma, Indochina and Thailand. China, before the war, depended most upon Burma and Thailand (Siam) for additional rice; Korea and Japan purchased additional rice in Burma, Thailand, Indochina and Formosa. It is not to be expected that China will ever be able to supply its rice requirements, the alternatives to imports being the reduction of the population or training the people to eat other grains such as wheat or rye or such vegetables as white potatoes, which do not fit well into the Chinese cuisine. In North China and Manchuria, considerable wheat is grown and eaten, and varieties of noodle dishes are popular throughout the country, but the principal dish from the Yellow River south is rice and without it the Chinese is a very hungry man.

Therefore it becomes critically important for the economy of Red China that rice be available at all times. In pre-war days, the British handled this trade; their ships, insurance, warehouses (godowns), and large trading companies are no longer available, nor their banks to provide exchange, credit and transfer documents. Communist China has not yet developed a substitute for the capitalist processes in foreign trade. Barter will not work among Asiatic countries, unless they are all joined in some kind of economic union.

The Communists would therefore say that historic necessity impels them to force the rice surplus countries, Burma, Indochina and Thailand, into such an economic union to assure a rice supply for all of them.

It was estimated that at the end of World War 2, nearly 12,000,000 acres of rice land in Southeast Asia were moving back into the jungle. Paddy fields require constant working and the labor is frightfully hard and unpalatable. As in all of these countries human excrement is the principal—and in most places, the sole—fertilizer, it is even dangerous work from the standpoint of health. The workers stand in the muck often to just below their knees. Whenever possible, peasants escape from rice farming to any other kind of work that will pay as well or better.

Thailand was able to maintain its rice fields during World War 2 and since and therefore is still a target for Red Chinese rice avarice. Should Indochina fall, Thailand must be the next country to be included in an Asiatic economic union dominated by Peking by military force. The rice bowl of the world would then be Chinese. The Manchus planned such an empire but they did not succeed.

Although considerable quantities of rice are grown in the United States the sum total is unimportant as about 90 per cent of the world supply is grown in the East of Africa. No Asiatic country could risk depending upon any supply of this grain from outside of Asia.

Those in the West who advocate a substitution of American surplus wheat for rice do not realize how the rice-eaters are wedded to that grain and how difficult it is to change the eating habits of a people. Furthermore, in Asia, farm holdings are usually small. Those who, to cover Communist activities, spoke of the Communists as "agrarian reformers" failed to say that until these countries developed large enough farms to permit the use of agricultural mechanization, little could be done to improve production. That is particularly true with regard to rice-growing.

PREVENTING MOTION SICKNESS

It is surprising the number of individuals who are afflicted with motion sickness to the extent that they have stopped planning motor or sea trips because of the frequent attacks of nausea and vomiting. On the market today there are various drugs that slow down or so quiet abdominal movements that many of these sufferers can now remain free of nausea and vomiting on trips of hundreds of miles.

Because I have personally seen the calmness or quietness of some of these remedies I try to pass this knowledge to my readers. I am frank to say that one or other of these remedies may not prevent motion sickness in every case but they do prevent nausea and vomiting in the majority of cases so that if one drug does not succeed, another might well be tried.

In a previous article I wrote about the quieting effects of a drug now well known, dramamine. In the Journal of the Medical Society of New Jersey, Dr. S. Keats writes about his experiences with this drug. The fact that dramamine is listed among the Nonofficial Remedies by the Council on Pharmacy is proof of its standing. It is particularly useful in children.

Dr. Keats states that whenever nausea, vomiting and dizziness are disturbing and complicating factors, dramamine may be used with confidence. He outlines the wide list of conditions in which this drug (a brand of dimenhydrinate) has proved valuable as follows: "It has been well established in the control of motion sickness. It has been used effectively in the treatment of seasickness, airsickness, certain ear disturbances. Fortunately there are few side reactions from its use."

The usual dosage for motion sickness is 50 mg. (one tablet) taken one-half hour before departure and, if necessary, before meals for the duration of the journey. Control of nausea and vomiting, severe motion sickness, and other conditions is achieved with but a small amount of drowsiness by a dosage of 100 mg. every four hours.

Dramamine is administered by mouth or by the rectum. The same doses which are given by mouth man be given by insertion of the tablet into the rectum.

It is indeed comforting to know that it is now possible to take a journey of several hours by car or airplane and the journey not be spoiled by nausea, vomiting, dizziness or other symptoms of motion sickness.

"Why Don't You Work the Other Side of the Street?"

Edson's Washington News Notebook

Washington (NEA)—There's a new comedy team on Capitol Hill—Douglas & Humphrey. Sen. Paul Douglas (D., Ill.), and Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.), both play their act straight and dead-pan. But they have begun to feed each other catch lines in an obvious effort to needle the Republicans.

Douglas led off the other day with: "Did the senator from Minnesota notice the full-page advertisement this morning, reprinting an article from Fortune Magazine—which certainly is not an organ of the Democratic Party—under the heading of, 'Is the Recession Over?'"

"The senator from Illinois should retract the word 'recession,'" Humphrey replied. "If he does not, he may be taken to the cloak room and made to stand in the corner for hours."

Douglas (innocently): "I was only quoting Fortune. . . . Fortune believes that it is only fair to assume that the recession has existed, inasmuch as something cannot be over unless it once began."

Humphrey: "Mr. President, the logic of the senator from Illinois is conclusive, persuasive and complete."

Douglas: "Does the senator from Minnesota think that as a result of that question, as published in Fortune Magazine, Speaker Martin, Chairman Hall, Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey and others of the Administration will denounce the publisher as one of the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse and one of the spreaders of the doctrine of doom and gloom?"

Humphrey: "Fortune Magazine may lose its postal subsidy if this keeps up. It is positively shocking."

EVER SINCE Army Pvt. G. David Schine arrived at the Camp Gordon, Ga., military police training base, the telephone wires from there to the Provost Marshal General's headquarters in Washington have been kept hot.

The other day P.M.G. William Maglin walked into his office just as one of his aides was calling Camp Gordon for the umpteenth time. General Maglin overheard his aide ask:

"Is this Camp Schine?"

Before he could correct himself, General Maglin said:

"Be sure to get Private Gordon on the phone, too."

GRIM FACTS ON the American schoolroom shortage have been revealed by U. S. Commissioner of Education Samuel Miller Brownell. Citing a recent "School Facilities Survey," Commissioner Brownell declares that the U. S. is now short more than 340,000 elementary and secondary school classrooms.

Making up the shortage will require expenditures of $10 billion—an average of $30,000 a room. This is a far cry from the days of the little red schoolhouse.

ADMIRAL ARTHUR W. Radford, chairman of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, is privately irked over widespread reports that the French are making only a half-hearted effort in the Indochina war against the Communists.

When he was U. S. commander-in-chief in the Pacific, he visited the battlefront a number of times. He became convinced the French were doing the best they could. Since then Admiral Radford has sent several hush-hush missions to Indo-China to keep in touch with the situation. All their reports are said to have indicated that French fighters are really trying to win the war.

In spite of the fact that Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin has tried to brand the American Civil Liberties Union as a Communist front organization, ACLU Director Pat Malin has come to the senator's support on one issue.

This is that McCarthy should have the right to cross-examine witnesses in the investigation of the Private David Schline influence case involving McCarthy Committee Counsel Roys Cohn and Army Counsel John Adams.

Mr. Malin goes beyond Senator McCarthy's claim to this right, however, The ACLU position is that every witness before a congressional committee should have the right to cross-examine his accusers.

U. S. Navy has developed a secret gadget to help pilots land their planes on aircraft carrier decks. One of the big problems in these landings is for the pilot to know the approach speed and altitude of his plane.

The new navy device is an electronic instrument placed between the feet of the landing officer on the carrier deck. This instrument reads the speed and altitude of approaching planes. The landing officer then relays this information to the pilot.

Today in Washington

U. S. Role in World Affairs Today Sharp Contrast to Isolated Aloofness

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, April 19—There is something inspiring about the resoluteness with which President Eisenhower has proclaimed anew America's fidelity to the principle of collective security as against the policy of isolated aloofness which prevailed two decades ago.

For in this age of the atomic bomb and the intercontinental bomber the old idea of the two-ocean defense with a strong Navy has been superseded by the more realistic concept that America's first line of defense is in Europe far away from our shores.

What the President has just said in his momentous pronouncement is that the United States is committed to the defense of all of free Europe, including Germany, and that those abroad who have had misgivings about the firmness of our view can dispel them now.

The fact that Mr. Eisenhower issued his statement just after the return of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles from conferences with the heads of the British and French governments means that in advance of the Geneva conference an Allied front of unmistakable solidarity is being presented. Mr. Dulles by his indefatigable labors and personal persuasiveness has brought to a dramatic climax a policy that didn't start with this trip but with many visits he has made to Europe in the last fifteen months.

Nor is the skill of Mr. Dulles and his statesmanlike approach to the tangled problems of the world fully revealed by the phrases of the statements themselves. What is beginning to be realized here is that the timing of certain statements and the careful preparation through discussions with the National Security Council and members of the Foreign Relations Committees of both parties in Congress is all part of a master plan to prevent a third world war. It tells the potential aggressor explicitly what to expect if he misconstrues our pacific attitude as weakness.

The Eisenhower statement is not in itself an executive agreement, but an interpretation. It is not a new commitment, but an explanation of an existing obligation The key to it all is the North Atlantic Treaty Organization which the Senate ratified by an overwhelming vote. It provides that an attack on any one of the thirteen other member countries will be regarded as if it were an attack on the United States itself. That's why American troops now are in Europe and an Allied command is set up in Paris. That's why Moscow is so anxious to break up the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, for it is designed as a deterrent to Soviet aggression.

But Germany has not been permitted—due to French fears to become a member of NATO and so the European Defense Community plan for continental countries only was devised. Germany ratified it. Britain last week said her troops would be integrated with E. D. C. though she is not a member. America is not a member but would associate her troops with it in defense of continental Europe. France has been hesitant to ratify the European Defense Community agreement. There have been contentions by French politicians that America would withdraw from NATO as soon as the European Defense Community plan was consummated.

To allay such fears Mr. Eisenhower pointed out that American troops were committed under the NATO plan to stay in Europe as long as there is a threat to peace. He now spells out clearly that American counts on both the E.D.C. and NATO plans to assure the defense of Europe and that American military strength will be integrated indefinitely in both.

Now, if France and Germany ever get to fighting again, America would have a free hand to decide what to do. But as things look today all the free countries, including West Germany, are together in showing a union front against the Soviet empire. The Communists have been trying to divide the Allies and frustrate their diplomacy, but on the eve of the Geneva conference the Allies are standing together as firmly as ever. This solidarity was of incalculable value before the Berlin conference and it is a tremendously important factor on the eve of the Geneva conference.

What a different page in history might have been written if those of us who urged American entry into the League of Nations in the 1920s had been able to persuade the Republican administrations of those years to adopt a policy of announcing in advance America's prospective military cooperation with France and Britain. Also what a profound impression on Hitler might have been made if President Roosevelt's so-called "quarantine speech" in Chicago in the 1930s, which so many of us supported, had been followed by as explicit a projection of American policy as President Eisenhower has just made. Maybe then the second world war would never have happened.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, April 18—A report by the FBI to the late Maj.-Gen. George V. Strong, chief of intelligence, in 1943, informed Strong that Colonel Ivan Yeaton, our military attache in Moscow, flatly expressed suspicions that another American army officer of high rank was giving secret military information to the Soviets. J. Edgar Hoover's letter transmitting the report to General Strong, said the FBI's investigation of "conditions involving" the officer accused by Yeaton was made by the FBI at the written request of General George C. Marshall, chief of staff

As far as the public knows, no court of inquiry or other such body of the army ever made the slightest effort to ascertain whether the charges which Colonel Yeaton and other officers made against this American army officer were true. Congress never got a look at the report, a copy of which came into my possession by legislative process. The officer in question was promoted to a higher grade and allowed to retire with honor to live on his pension for the rest of his days.

Colonel Yeaton was hauled home from Russia and punished for his temerity in opposing a White House pet. He served a year of absolute ostracism and uselessness at a desk in the Pentagon. Up to the time of his encounter with the officer who was the subject of the report, Colonel Yeaton had been regarded by professional army colleagues of objective mind as a first class authority on Russia as well as a high grade military man. For that matter, he still is. And of course, there never was the slightest doubt of his patriotism. He has now retired with the final rank of colonel even though he was called back from his first retirement for a year of duty in the United States in connection with the Korean war. By contrast, Telford Taylor, a mere lawyer in the New Deal bureaucracy with no military background, Elliott Roosevelt, a mere salesman and hustler, but the son of the Mahatma, and many other no better qualified, reached the rank of brigadier.

This case is one which would confirm Joe McCarthy's charge that army bureaucrats, including some officers with a flair for politics, have been guilty of negligence or worse. McCarthy's current fight with the White House, the Pentagon and the massed propaganda forces of the Roosevelt - Truman - Eisenhower party, concerns the promotion of a dentist from captain to major. This dentist, even though he had openly proclaimed himself to be a member of the Communist party, had relatively petty powers to injure the United States.

McCarthy never even suggested that this dentist was of himself a serious threat. He is fighting the Department of the Army, the Department of Defense and the White House, too, to prove that someone high in the chain-of-command was guilty of promoting and permitting a major to leave the army with honor who should have been treated otherwise.

Eisenhower is at the top of the chain-of-command and he has thrown in with those who hold that the army is not answerable to Congress or the people for flagrant errors or misconduct. One by-product of all this has been a proposition bitterly put by a number of Americans who served faithfully in war that their "honorable" discharges are contemptible inasmuch as a man may be discharged with "honor" who has refused to avow absolute loyalty.

Admiral William H. Standley, the American ambassador in Russia at the time of the FBI's inquiry, was reported to have said that the officer under observation had caused an intolerable situation. Standley said "it is essential that either he be made ambassador and I be recalled or that he be recalled."

The report to Marshall attributed to this officer conduct which would have been irregular to say the best of it, inasmuch as he is reported to have left posts of duty in the United States and travelled to Washington to call on Roosevelt at the White House, seeking assignment to Russia. Correct procedure would have required him to await orders and, in any case, to present himself to his superiors at the Pentagon first.

Amiral Standley is quoted in the report as having told the officer that he was not fit to wear the uniform he had on and that he was "just about" a traitor. Standley, himself, however, after a lapse of years, was unable to recall that he had gone that far in this angry scene. He did say however that he regarded the officer as "pro-Russian." He would not go so far as to call him a Communist.

The Lend-Lease Administration in Russia was handled in emotional terms. General Deane was one of the few Americans in Lend-Lease who soon and consistently thereafter complained of fantastic waste of American treasure on an ingrate nation which always was hostile to the United States. He repeatedly told Marshall of this hostility and was ignored. The Lend-Lease officers and the enlisted complement got enormous allowances on top of their pay. Bad blood therefore grew between the Lend-Lease group on one hand and the attaches and military observers and their enlisted people on the other.

Here was a case in which an American officer was named to the chief of staff and the chief of intelligence in a report by the FBI which impugned his loyalty to the United States. The pretext that the FBI, by itself alone, is a sufficient investigating agency and that congressional investigations, therefore, are useless and mere devices to make publicity for ambitious members, is shown to be false in this case. The FBI made its report on specific request of the chief of staff and that was the end of that.

Baby Arrives Via Truck

Huntville, Mo. (AP) — Mrs. Floyd Case told her minister husband that it was high time they started for the maternity ward of the hospital. The Rev. Mr. Case got out the car and away they went. A tire went flat. Then Case broke the car jack. He flagged a truck and the driver took Mrs. Case on to the hospital. Using a borrowed jack, the minister changed the flat tire and finally got to the hospita in time to greet his new daughter.

NATIONAL YWCA WEEK

This week is National YWCA week. Each year at this time over 3,000,000 members of the Young Women's Christian Association in this country celebrate the anniversary of this organization which for nearly a century has dedicated its efforts to the welfare of women and girls. The theme for the week is "They go to church, they go to school, they go to work, they go to the YWCA—Let's keep them going." It is a theme which emphasizes the fact that the YWCA is a permanent force for good in our community and works side by side with other proved institutions for the welfare of our citizens.

Founded 99 years ago as a "fellowship of women and girls, devoted to the task of realizing in our common life those ideals of personal and social living to which we are committed by our faith as Christians" the YWCA for almost 100 years has worked among us, putting into everyday practice its ideals of Christian Democracy. Through the years it has lived and practiced what it believes in—the common brotherhood of all men. In our country the YWCA is part of normal living and development among our youth, even as the church, school and work. As an organization dedicated to helping meet the needs of young women, it offers varied opportunities for personal development and effective citizenship in a democracy. Its ensignia, the blue triangle, symbolizes its emphases on growth for mind, body and spirit.

In these times of tension and insecurity, especially for our youth, the YWCA provides a steadying influence for developing mature, effective individuals who can make the most of their capabilities and face the present and the future with courage. The strength of any democracy lies in the strength, both physical and spiritual, of its people. By helping our young people to a fuller, happier, healthier life, the YWCA fortifies freedom with faith and fellowship. It stands as a staunch bulwark for our way of life in America.

THE GREATEST POET

For centuries he has been universally honored and admired, yet his birthday goes without notice. That was William Shakespeare, born on April 23, 1564, held by all the civilized world supreme as poet and playwright. Of all other poets only Homer and Dante can be mentioned in the same breath. The Germans, who have that poet and universal genius, Goethe, have almost adopted Shakespeare. They publish more studies on him than on almost any other writer, and speak of him endearingly as "our German Shakespeare."

Little is known of his personal life, and so intense has been the search that there seems small likelihood of finding out more. This lack of information may be the chief reason for the attempts, failures so far, to fix his writings on some other figure of the period, chiefly the scientist, philosopher and jurist, Francis Bacon.

Perhaps the best answer to the question of authorship of the plays was given by the schoolboy who wrote, "Shakespeare's plays were not written by Shakespeare, but by another man of the same name."

Whoever wrote them gains from that achievement glory enough for any man.

ARTEMUS WARD

One of the best known anecdotes about Lincoln is of his opening the cabinet meeting which was to consider the issuance of the Emancipation Proclamation, by reading an amusing passage just written by the humorist of the day, Artemus Ward. This greatly disgusted his serious-minded Secretary of War, Edwin M. Stanton; but probably it made Lincoln's fellow Americans feel ever more strongly that he was one of them.

Ward's birthday occurs on April 26, but probably will not be celebrated. In his brief life from 1834 to 1867 he had time for little but humorous foolery, which got much of its effect from intentional misspellings and incorrect pronunciation. He was one of a number of satirists of the political scene, including Major Jack Downing and and Petroleum V. Nasby. They began the tradition carried on later by Mr. Dooley and Will Rogers. Most people, if they read the earlier writers, would feel that the later writers of political humor are far and away the better.

'These Days'

THE RICE WAR

The greatest value of Indochina to the Soviet Universal State is that this and the adjacent area of Thailand can make China self-sufficient in the matter of rice. What wheat is to the people of Europe, rice is to a large part of Asia. In modern times, China failed to produce an adequate supply of rice for her people, which is one of the principal reasons for the mass disturbances in that country which have been continuous for about a century. Rice riots were not unusual in China during the years that I lived there.

All low standard of living countries prefer the stomach-filling, energy-giving grains to the expensive muscle meats which are favored in the high standard of living countries. Whereas in Eastern Europe bread accompanies the principal dish, in the rice-eating countries the grain is the major food, gravies, vegetables, fresh or dry fish or occasional meats are trimmings. Only the soy bean competes with rice in areas where the bean is used.

The surplus producers of rice in Asia have been Burma, Indochina and Thailand. China, before the war, depended most upon Burma and Thailand (Siam) for additional rice; Korea and Japan purchased additional rice in Burma, Thailand, Indochina and Formosa. It is not to be expected that China will ever be able to supply its rice requirements, the alternatives to imports being the reduction of the population or training the people to eat other grains such as wheat or rye or such vegetables as white potatoes, which do not fit well into the Chinese cuisine. In North China and Manchuria, considerable wheat is grown and eaten, and varieties of noodle dishes are popular throughout the country, but the principal dish from the Yellow River south is rice and without it the Chinese is a very hungry man.

Therefore it becomes critically important for the eceonomy of Red China that rice be available at all times. In pre-war days, the British handled this trade; their ships, insurance, warehouses (godowns), and large trading companies are no longer available, nor their banks to provide exchange, credit and transfer documents. Communist China has not yet developed a substitute for the capitalist processes in foreign trade. Barter will not work among Asiatic countries, unless they are all joined in some kind of economic union.

The Communists would therefore say that historic necessity impels them to force the rice surplus countries, Burma, Indochina and Thailand, into such an economic union to assure a rice supply for all of them.

It was estimated that at the end of World War 2, nearly 12,000,000 acres of rice land in Southeast Asia were moving back into the jungle. Paddy fields require constant working and the labor is frightfully hard and unpalatable. As in all of these countries human excrement is the principal—and in most places, the sole—fertilizer, it is even dangerous work from the standpoint of health. The workers stand in the muck often to just below their knees. Whenever possible, peasants escape from rice farming to any other kind of work that will pay as well or better.

Thailand was able to maintain its rice fields during World War 2 and since and therefore is still a target for Red Chinese rice avarice. Should Indochina fall, Thailand must be the next country to be included in an Asiatic economic union dominated by Peking by military force. The rice bowl of the world would then be Chinese. The Manchus planned such an empire but they did not succeed.

Although considerable quantities of rice are grown in the United States the sum total is unimportant as about 90 per cent of the world supply is grown in the East of Africa. No Asiatic country could risk depending upon any supply of this grain from outside of Asia.

Those in the West who advocate a substitution of American surplus wheat for rice do not realize how the rice-eaters are wedded to that grain and how difficult it is to change the eating habits of a people. Furthermore, in Asia, farm holdings are usually small. Those who, to cover Communist activities, spoke of the Communists as "agrarian reformers" failed to say that until these countries developed large enough farms to permit the use of agricultural mechanization, little could be done to improve production. That is particularly true with regard to rice-growing.

That Body of Yours

PREVENTING MOTION SICKNESS

It is surprising the number of individuals who are afflicted with motion sickness to the extent that they have stopped planning motor or sea trips because of the frequent attacks of nausea and vomiting. On the market today there are various drugs that slow down or so quiet abdominal movements that many of these sufferers can now remain free of nausea and vomiting on trips of hundreds of miles.

Because I have personally seen the calmness or quietness of some of these remedies I try to pass this knowledge to my readers. I am frank to say that one or other of these remedies may not prevent motion sickness in every case but they do prevent nausea and vomiting in the majority of cases so that if one drug does not succeed, another might well be tried.

In a previous article I wrote about the quieting effects of a drug now well known, dramamine. In the Journal of the Medical Society of New Jersey, Dr. S. Keats writes about his experiences with this drug. The fact that dramamine is listed among the Nonofficial Remedies by the Council on Pharmacy is proof of its standing. It is particularly useful in children.

Dr. Keats states that whenever nausea, vomiting and dizziness are disturbing and complicating factors, dramamine may be used with confidence. He outlines the wide list of conditions in which this drug (a brand of dimenhydrinate) has proved valuable as follows: "It has been well established in the control of motion sickness. It has been used effectively in the treatment of seasickness, airsickness, certain ear disturbances. Fortunately there are few side reactions from its use."

The usual dosage for motion sickness is 50 mg. (one tablet) taken one-half hour before departure and, if necessary, before meals for the duration of the journey. Control of nausea and vomiting, severe motion sickness, and other conditions is achieved with but a small amount of drowsiness by a dosage of 100 mg. every four hours.

Dramamine is administered by mouth or by the rectum. The same doses which are given by mouth man be given by insertion of the tablet into the rectum.

It is indeed comforting to know that it is now possible to take a journey of several hours by car or airplane and the journey not be spoiled by nausea, vomiting, dizziness or other symptoms of motion sickness.

Edson's Washington News Notebook

Washington (NEA)—There's a new comedy team on Capitol Hill—Douglas & Humphrey. Sen. Paul Douglas (D., Ill.), and Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.), both play their act straight and dead-pan. But they have begun to feed each other catch lines in an obvious effort to needle the Republicans.

Douglas led off the other day with: "Did the senator from Minnesota notice the full-page advertisement this morning, reprinting an article from Fortune Magazine—which certainly is not an organ of the Democratic Party—under the heading of, 'Is the Recession Over?'"

"The senator from Illinois should retract the word 'recession,'" Humphrey replied. "If he does not, he may be taken to the cloak room and made to stand in the corner for hours."

Douglas (innocently): "I was only quoting Fortune. . . . Fortune believes that it is only fair to assume that the recession has existed, inasmuch as something cannot be over unless it once began."

Humphrey: "Mr. President, the logic of the senator from Illinois is conclusive, persuasive and complete."

Douglas: "Does the senator from Minnesota think that as a result of that question, as published in Fortune Magazine, Speaker Martin, Chairman Hall, Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey and others of the Administration will denounce the publisher as one of the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse and one of the spreaders of the doctrine of doom and gloom?"

Humphrey: "Fortune Magazine may lose its postal subsidy if this keeps up. It is positively shocking."

EVER SINCE Army Pvt. G. David Schine arrived at the Camp Gordon, Ga., military police training base, the telephone wires from there to the Provost Marshal General's headquarters in Washington have been kept hot.

The other day P.M.G. William Maglin walked into his office just as one of his aides was calling Camp Gordon for the umpteenth time. General Maglin overheard his aide ask:

"Is this Camp Schine?"

Before he could correct himself, General Maglin said:

"Be sure to get Private Gordon on the phone, too."

GRIM FACTS ON the American schoolroom shortage have been revealed by U. S. Commissioner of Education Samuel Miller Brownell. Citing a recent "School Facilities Survey," Commissioner Brownell declares that the U. S. is now short more than 340,000 elementary and secondary school classrooms.

Making up the shortage will require expenditures of $10 billion—an average of $30,000 a room. This is a far cry from the days of the little red schoolhouse.

ADMIRAL ARTHUR W. Radford, chairman of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, is privately irked over widespread reports that the French are making only a half-hearted effort in the Indochina war against the Communists.

When he was U. S. commander-in-chief in the Pacific, he visited the battlefront a number of times. He became convinced the French were doing the best they could. Since then Admiral Radford has sent several hush-hush missions to Indo-China to keep in touch with the situation. All their reports are said to have indicated that French fighters are really trying to win the war.

In spite of the fact that Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin has tried to brand the American Civil Liberties Union as a Communist front organization, ACLU Director Pat Malin has come to the senator's support on one issue.

This is that McCarthy should have the right to cross-examine witnesses in the investigation of the Private David Schline influence case involving McCarthy Committee Counsel Roys Cohn and Army Counsel John Adams.

Mr. Malin goes beyond Senator McCarthy's claim to this right, however, The ACLU position is that every witness before a congressional committee should have the right to cross-examine his accusers.

U. S. Navy has developed a secret gadget to help pilots land their planes on aircraft carrier decks. One of the big problems in these landings is for the pilot to know the approach speed and altitude of his plane.

The new navy device is an electronic instrument placed between the feet of the landing officer on the carrier deck. This instrument reads the speed and altitude of approaching planes. The landing officer then relays this information to the pilot.

Today in Washington

U. S. Role in World Affairs Today Sharp Contrast to Isolated Aloofness

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, April 19—There is something inspiring about the resoluteness with which President Eisenhower has proclaimed anew America's fidelity to the principle of collective security as against the policy of isolated aloofness which prevailed two decades ago.

For in this age of the atomic bomb and the intercontinental bomber the old idea of the two-ocean defense with a strong Navy has been superseded by the more realistic concept that America's first line of defense is in Europe far away from our shores.

What the President has just said in his momentous pronouncement is that the United States is committed to the defense of all of free Europe, including Germany, and that those abroad who have had misgivings about the firmness of our view can dispel them now.

The fact that Mr. Eisenhower issued his statement just after the return of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles from conferences with the heads of the British and French governments means that in advance of the Geneva conference an Allied front of unmistakable solidarity is being presented. Mr. Dulles by his indefatigable labors and personal persuasiveness has brought to a dramatic climax a policy that didn't start with this trip but with many visits he has made to Europe in the last fifteen months.

Nor is the skill of Mr. Dulles and his statesmanlike approach to the tangled problems of the world fully revealed by the phrases of the statements themselves. What is beginning to be realized here is that the timing of certain statements and the careful preparation through discussions with the National Security Council and members of the Foreign Relations Committees of both parties in Congress is all part of a master plan to prevent a third world war. It tells the potential aggressor explicitly what to expect if he misconstrues our pacific attitude as weakness.

The Eisenhower statement is not in itself an executive agreement, but an interpretation. It is not a new commitment, but an explanation of an existing obligation The key to it all is the North Atlantic Treaty Organization which the Senate ratified by an overwhelming vote. It provides that an attack on any one of the thirteen other member countries will be regarded as if it were an attack on the United States itself. That's why American troops now are in Europe and an Allied command is set up in Paris. That's why Moscow is so anxious to break up the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, for it is designed as a deterrent to Soviet aggression.

But Germany has not been permitted—due to French fears to become a member of NATO and so the European Defense Community plan for continental countries only was devised. Germany ratified it. Britain last week said her troops would be integrated with E. D. C. though she is not a member. America is not a member but would associate her troops with it in defense of continental Europe. France has been hesitant to ratify the European Defense Community agreement. There have been contentions by French politicians that America would withdraw from NATO as soon as the European Defense Community plan was consummated.

To allay such fears Mr. Eisenhower pointed out that American troops were committed under the NATO plan to stay in Europe as long as there is a threat to peace. He now spells out clearly that American counts on both the E.D.C. and NATO plans to assure the defense of Europe and that American military strength will be integrated indefinitely in both.

Now, if France and Germany ever get to fighting again, America would have a free hand to decide what to do. But as things look today all the free countries, including West Germany, are together in showing a union front against the Soviet empire. The Communists have been trying to divide the Allies and frustrate their diplomacy, but on the eve of the Geneva conference the Allies are standing together as firmly as ever. This solidarity was of incalculable value before the Berlin conference and it is a tremendously important factor on the eve of the Geneva conference.

What a different page in history might have been written if those of us who urged American entry into the League of Nations in the 1920s had been able to persuade the Republican administrations of those years to adopt a policy of announcing in advance America's prospective military cooperation with France and Britain. Also what a profound impression on Hitler might have been made if President Roosevelt's so-called "quarantine speech" in Chicago in the 1930s, which so many of us supported, had been followed by as explicit a projection of American policy as President Eisenhower has just made. Maybe then the second world war would never have happened.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, April 18—A report by the FBI to the late Maj.-Gen. George V. Strong, chief of intelligence, in 1943, informed Strong that Colonel Ivan Yeaton, our military attache in Moscow, flatly expressed suspicions that another American army officer of high rank was giving secret military information to the Soviets. J. Edgar Hoover's letter transmitting the report to General Strong, said the FBI's investigation of "conditions involving" the officer accused by Yeaton was made by the FBI at the written request of General George C. Marshall, chief of staff

As far as the public knows, no court of inquiry or other such body of the army ever made the slightest effort to ascertain whether the charges which Colonel Yeaton and other officers made against this American army officer were true. Congress never got a look at the report, a copy of which came into my possession by legislative process. The officer in question was promoted to a higher grade and allowed to retire with honor to live on his pension for the rest of his days.

Colonel Yeaton was hauled home from Russia and punished for his temerity in opposing a White House pet. He served a year of absolute ostracism and uselessness at a desk in the Pentagon. Up to the time of his encounter with the officer who was the subject of the report, Colonel Yeaton had been regarded by professional army colleagues of objective mind as a first class authority on Russia as well as a high grade military man. For that matter, he still is. And of course, there never was the slightest doubt of his patriotism. New Weapons Add Fire Power, Also Create Problems

Washington, April 19 (AP)—New weapons—atomic cannon, guided missiles, rockets—are giving the army fire power undreamed of not many years ago but they also are creating serious problems in the already intricate business of running an orderly, efficient battle.

There are among the problems to be worked on in maneuvers, involving 100,000 army and air men, starting this week in the Carolinas. They are the first big-scale exercises involving the firing or simulated use of virtually all new weapons.

Deciding what weapons to shoot at what target has been a source of argument even with conventional artillery and aircraft. The advent on the battlefield of "artillery" that can range out from 20 to scores or even hundreds of miles and has a much greater demolition radius is confounding the problem.

New Cannon Is Example

The army's new 280-millimeter cannon, which like the "Corporal" missile or the "Honest John" heavy bombardment rocket fires either atomic or conventional explosive, is an example.

The approximately 11-inch gun has a maximum range of about 30 miles. Under present organization, the gun is considered "corps artillery." That means that control of batteries of the gun rests with the headquarters of a corps (a corps usually is composed of two or three army divisions). The control does not go back to a higher headquarters, such as a theatre command, where coordination of tactical bomber and fighter-bomber aircraft of the air force and navy is maintained.

Yet the range of the 280 mm. gun and bombardment rocket, and especially of the guided missile, reaches out far ahead obliquely to either side of the normal fighting front of a corps.

Some tacticians see in this rigidity of corps control both potential inefficiency and danger.

YMCA Will Start Canvass for '54 Drive Thursday

More than 100 workers will launch a house-to-house canvass Thursday as the 1954 YMCA fund drive begins, it was announced today by Chester Baltz, Jr., and George Silkworth, co-chairmen.

A goal of $20,000 has been set in the campaign for funds to carry on the educational, spiritual and recreational program of the YMCA.

Workers will meet at the Y tomorrow evening to receive final instructions and materials.

Cards for the canvass have been arranged alphabetically by General Secretary Lou Schafer, and literature has been mailed to the general public describing the YMCA program.

Program Explained

Residents have also been circularized with a statement over the signatures of Co-chairmen Baltz and Silkworth. They point out that the Y program deals with all ages of men and boys, starting at eight years of age. The Y also has a special program for girls and women during three months of each summer.

"As a Good Neighbor ask yourself this question: Where would the young boys and girls, between 15 and 18 years of age, meet for their leisure time social recreation of games, parties and dances, if they could not go to the YMCA Youth Center?

"The Youth Center at the Y is open two and three nights each week. It is the only institution in Kingston area serving young people in a delightful, entertaining and educational program, under expert adult guidance. This part of the YMCA program alone is worthy of your financial support."

Couple Is Rescued

Washington, April 19 (AP)—A Virginia couple were swept in a canoe over a 5-foot Potomac river dam yesterday. They clung to riverside brush for nearly 45 minutes until they were rescued unhurt. Richard F. Weber, 30, and his wife, Rae, of Alexandria, Va., plunged in their metal craft over Brookmont Dam at nearby Glen Echo, Md. The dam drops some 70 feet at a 30 degree angle. Firemen used a lifeboat to rescue the Webers, who clung to brush in 3 feet of water but couldn't gain a footing because of the current. Weber is a Foreign Operations Administration employe.

Dewey Signs Bills On Election Laws

Albany, April 19 (AP)—Gov. Dewey today signed a bill making it easier to nominate an independent candidate for public office.

Noting that the measure carried out proposals made in his annual message to the Legislature, Dewey said in a memorandum that it would "eliminate unnecessary technicalities which, in practice, have proved to be traps for the unwary."

The governor also approved two other changes in the election law.

One authorizes direct election, at primaries, of Assembly district leaders and associate leaders in New York city. The other makes valid a write-in vote at a primary election even though the name is preceded by a cross mark. Such votes previously have been void.

Po'keepsie Youth Severely Hurt as Vehicle Overturns

John Daniel Kelly, 21, of 41 Tulip street, Poughkeepsie, was severely injured when the automobile he was driving jumped the esplanade and overturned on Route 9W one mile north of the Highland traffic circle about 12:30 a. m. Sunday, state police reported.

Six other young people from Poughkeepsie and Hyde Park, who were riding in the vehicle, escaped with minor injuries, troopers said.

On Danger List

Kelly was taken to Vassar Hospital, Poughkeepsie, where it was reported today that he was still unconscious and was "on the danger list." The full extent of his injuries was not determined.

Also admitted to Vassar Hospital, but released later the same day, was Robert Rose, 20, of 14 Roosevelt avenue, Poughkeepsie.

Troopers said four other occupants of the vehicle were treated for minor injuries and another reported she received no injury.

The automobile was headed south when it "hopped" the esplande, or center island, in the four-lane highway and turned over coming to rest on its top, state police reported. There was no arrest made.

Local Man Held For Jury Action In Greene County

John Zitz, 34, who gave his address as Kingston, was ordered held for Greene County Grand Jury action on a first degree action on Thursday before Police Justice Alex Wiltse, Jr., of Catskill.

Zitz, sought by Catskill police for more than a year, was apprehended April 8 at Plattekill by state police of the Highland station. Catskill authorities said they held a warrant for Zitz' arrest since a year ago last fall, when he allegedly agreed to purchase an automobile from Jerry's Chevrolet, Inc., but drove off in it before the transaction was completed.

Troopers from Highland said Zitz attemped to elude them after he was spotted at Plattekill on April 8, but that they persuaded him to come from his hiding place under an automobile in a junk yard.

Man Is Described

Catskill and Highland authorities described Zitz as a "wanderer" and said his Kingston address consisted of a rented room in a house on Route 32, just south of the railroad crossing at the city line.

Zitz was represented by Attorney Michael Nardone of Highland in his hearing before Justice Wiltse on Thursday. He was later released on bail, the amount of which was set by the Greene county judge.

Catskill police said the grand jury is expected to consider the case this week, and the next grand jury report is due the end of the week.

Tito Goes Home

Istanbul, Turkey, April 19 (AP)—Yugoslav President Tito left for home yesterday after a seven-day state visit to Turkey. While in Turkey, Tito talked with Turkish leaders about a proposed military alliance. This pact, to include Greece, would expand a current agreement by the three nations to hold military consultations. The present agreement does not include any promise of aid in the event of an attack.

Aid Total Given

Washington, April 19 (AP)—United States aid to foreign nations hit a peak of nearly 6½ billion dollars last year, but was tapering off at year's end. Military aid shot up rapidly during the year, the Department of Commerce said in a study of U. S. foreign aid, while economic aid tailed off.

Offered Resolution Against Meetings

A resolution was offered at the meeting of the board of supervisors Thursday night by Supervisor Joseph J. Turck of the Fourth Ward, and seconded by Supervisor Harry Snyder of Marbletown, objecting to the holding of meetings during Holy Week. The resolution was unanimously approved.

Supervisor Turck's resolution called attention to the fact that during Holy Week services were held in most of the churches and many of the members of the board desired to attend such services. He moved that in the future no meeting be held at that time.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR AND TB

"That band of men who for long days and often weary nights struggle with the sorrows and sickness of our people and do honor to the name of doctor."

There words were spoken 50 years ago about the family doctors of our country. And they are as true today as they were when spoken by Dr. Charles Minor, one of the founders of the National Tuberculosis Association, which this year marks its golden anniversary.

In paying tribute to the general practitioner, Dr. Minor was expressing a basic belief of the new organization; that the family doctor stood in the front line of the battle against tuberculosis. The founders of the NTA believed that the spread of TB, then the first cause of death in the United States, could be checked by the combined efforts of doctors and laymen.

For 50 years both specialists and general practitioners have been active members of the team which has already made great progress in fighting TB and will keep fighting until the disease is defeated.

It is the family doctor who is in a position to make the early diagnosis of TB which is so important to satisfactory cure. We go to him with all our ailments, and he sees us through most of them or sends us on to the right specialist, if it seems necessary. He advised us on how to keep healthy, how to build resistance to disease. In his leisure, he reads journals, attends medical meetings and refresher courses to keep up with the latest developments in medicine, the better to serve us.

This day-to-day work of the family doctor is a vital part of the TB control movement. But he can't help us unless he knows we need help. We have to go to him. Everyone should see the family doctor once a year, or as often as he advises, for a complete physical check-up, including a chest X-ray.

Parked Cars Are Struck; Another Damaged by Horse

Two parked automobiles were reported damaged by other vehicles over the weekend, but it took a horse to show that something different can be done in that kind of a mishap.

Police were notified at 8 a. m., today that the car of Raymond H. Lang, RD 3, Box 33-E, Kingston, was damaged while it was parked on Bruyn avenue.

Officers Edward Leonard and Gerald Every investigated and reported that a horse owned by George Fitzgerald, of 96 Bruyn avenue, had jumped on top of the Lang car, pushing down the entire top and damaging the left side of the vehicle.

Tried Leap Over Car

The officers said it appeared as though the horse had attempted to jump over the car, and they reported a similar incident in the same area some time ago.

Officers Sheldon O'Rourke and Anthony Turck reported at 3:40 a. m., today that the sedan of George J. Sickler, of 87 Pearl street, had struck and damaged the car of Shirley A. Hornbeck, of 16 VanBuren street, as it was parked near 18 VanBuren street.

William Kitsos, of 25 Adams street, reported Saturday that a truck of the K & M Banana Co., of Poughkeepsie, left parked in front of 15 Rogers street, had been struck and damaged on the left front fender.

Two Are Executed

Vienna, Austria, April 19 (AP)—Romania's Communist government has announced the execution of two men and the jailing of 11 others as traitors and spies. Western observers believed one of those killed was Lucretiu Patrascanu, former justice minister who was accused in 1949 of spying for the United States.

This column is sponsored in the interest of better health by The Ulster County TB and Health Association, 74 John street.

It looks like we've got a weapon of frightening power and can give science full credit for the H-bomb, at least until Senator McCarthy starts to investigate it, says Arch Nearbrite.

Stiff Exams Recommended

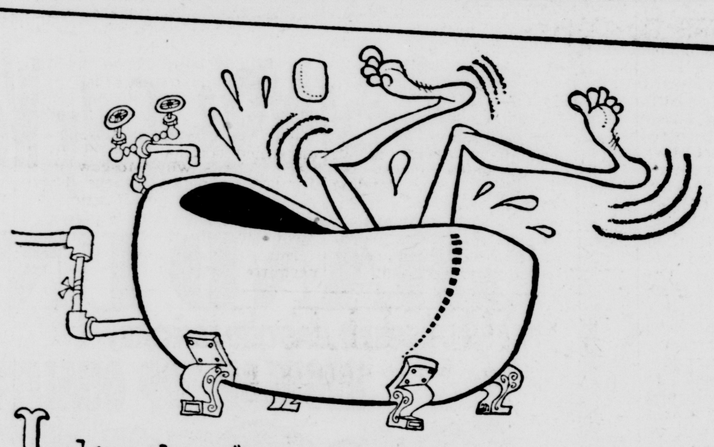

Washington, April 19 (AP)—The heat-stroke deaths of two marine corps officer candidates last year caused a House committee to recommend stiff physical examinations for trainees fresh from civilian life. The House Armed Services Committee, in a report made public last night, recommended also that the corps give "the highest priority" to studies dealing with susceptibility to heat or sunstroke. The two officer candidates, William E. Malone, Jr., of Pelham, N. Y., and Joseph J. Conwell Jr., of Greensburg, Pa., died at Quantico, Va., last summer. The House committee investigated the situation at the request of Sen. Lehman (D.-N. Y.) and Rep. Kelley (D.-Pa.), after parents of the two men complained of the treatment their sons received.

No Objections Made At Budget Hearing

Saugerties, April 17—No objections were voiced against the proposed budget for the Village of Saugerties at the public hearing Thursday night at the municipal auditorium. A smal group of taxpayers attended the hearing which was the formal presentation of the tentative budget to the public by the Village Board of Trustees.

As there were no objections or recommendations, no action was taken by the Village Board at that time. The proposed budget will now go to the Village Board meeting Monday, April 19, for any revision that may be necessary and eventually for final approval.

It is presumed that a recommendation received by the Village Board from the Saugerties Chamber of Commerce will be discussed at that time. The local merchants group in a letter to the board this week proposed setting aside provisions in the current budget for the formation of a Planning Commission whose primary function would be to study any plan for off-street parking. Should the Village Board act favorably toward the recommendation of the local Chamber then certain revisions of the current budget as it now stands will have to be made to allow for the expense of setting up such a Planning Commission.

THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME (Registered U. S. Patient Office) By JIMMY HATLO

Lighting a Light

By FRANK TRIPP

Who hasn't somehow felt the impact of the powerful movement abroad in the world to recall men to God? We all know that a cause is clicking when it seems to be aimed straight at us.

A feeling of fault comes over me that I have done so little about it; that I have let down this same God who has given me the power to reach many people.

The stern voice of guilt reminds me that it is not enough that writers keep their words clean, their sights high, their aims honest; just now and then faintly murmuring "too bad" or "poor fellow" of an unfortunate who might have been helped by something they could have said.

THIS EASTER TIME I resolved to make a payment on this past due debt. I don't know where or who he is, but I do know that somewhere there is a man who will get a lift out of this belated confession of faith by a passive believer whose pals have only known his worldly side.

I know this because over the years thousands of letters have acknowledged a memory or a laugh that this column inspired. It could not be that words only make people remember or laugh. They make them think, and these are written to make them think of God.

YOU QUESTION that? Well, it happened to me. I was literally shamed into writing this column by a series of Lenten Guideposts printed in our newspaper.

I started reading them mainly because they were earthly things, some from the theatre, baseball diamonds, football gridirons, tycoons' ivory towers; little sermons that got under my thick hide.

Many brought confessions of faith from unexpected people, incidents of God's goodness to them and of their dependence upon Him.

"And here you are," I said to myself, "writing every week to five million people and you have never told them what these men of the world are saying, betimes from supposedly Godless places."

I tore up an Easter release about bonnets, eggs and bunnies and wrote this. May it open some soul to its obligation, as those little sermons opened mine.

LAY PIETY has always seemed a sham to me. A senseless something has restrained many a devout impulse, lest it hint a hypocritical streak in a Hardboiled Charlie.

I had almost forgotten a Golden Text that my mother taught me, something about light; had to look it up. Oh yes, Mom's Bible still is there, among my most used tools. I found the verse at Matthew 5:16:

"Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven."

"THAT DOES IT," I thought; "you old fake, light your light and let the world know what you believe. As did those men who stepped from their roles to write messages to people who had thought of them as something they are not."

So, to cleanse my soul, and be counted, here it is:

Our house trusts in God, the Father Almighty. I thank Him every night for His tolerance of my unworthiness and His goodness to all who are dear to me.

He has answered my prayers, and I could have no peace without Him. Surely He will do as much for you.

I feel so much better now.

Why We Say--

When we say that something is a "flash in the pan" we mean that it starts off well but doesn't work out. The allusion is to the old fashioned gun that had to be ignited by setting a spark to the powder in a pan. Sometimes the gun didn't go off, resulting in just a flash in the pan.

Boston (AP) — The horse apparently is still a steed to be reckoned with in this age of automobile traffic congestion. A woman recently was awarded $1,000 by a Superior Court jury for injuries received when kicked by a horse.

YOU QUESTION that? Well, it happened to me. I was literally shamed into writing this column by a series of Lenten Guideposts printed in our newspaper.

I started reading them mainly because they were earthly things, some from the theatre, baseball diamonds, football gridirons, tycoons' ivory towers; little sermons that got under my thick hide.

Many brought confessions of faith from unexpected people, incidents of God's goodness to them and of their dependence upon Him.

"And here you are," I said to myself, "writing every week to five million people and you have never told them what these men of the world are saying, betimes from supposedly Godless places."

I tore up an Easter release about bonnets, eggs and bunnies and wrote this. May it open some soul to its obligation, as those little sermons opened mine.

LAY PIETY has always seemed a sham to me. A senseless something has restrained many a devout impulse, lest it hint a hypocritical streak in a Hardboiled Charlie.

I had almost forgotten a Golden Text that my mother taught me, something about light; had to look it up. Oh yes, Mom's Bible still is there, among my most used tools. I found the verse at Matthew 5:16:

"Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven."

"THAT DOES IT," I thought; "you old fake, light your light and let the world know what you believe. As did those men who stepped from their roles to write messages to people who had thought of them as something they are not."

So, to cleanse my soul, and be counted, here it is:

Our house trusts in God, the Father Almighty. I thank Him every night for His tolerance of my unworthiness and His goodness to all who are dear to me.

He has answered my prayers, and I could have no peace without Him. Surely He will do as much for you.

I feel so much better now.

Why We Say--

When we say that something is a "flash in the pan" we mean that it starts off well but doesn't work out. The allusion is to the old fashioned gun that had to be ignited by setting a spark to the powder in a pan. Sometimes the gun didn't go off, resulting in just a flash in the pan.

Horse Asserts Himself

Boston (AP) — The horse apparently is still a steed to be reckoned with in this age of automobile traffic congestion. A woman recently was awarded $1,000 by a Superior Court jury for injuries received when kicked by a horse.

Ryan Reports on Indochina

William L. Ryan AP specialist on Communist affairs, has reported the cold war from the Soviet Union and many other countries on four continents. A few weeks ago he went to Indochina to see the hot war involving communism on one side and the free world on the other. He then flew to Singapore to write his findings free of censorship. This is the first of several articles he will write this week on the eve of the Geneva conference.

BY WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

Singapore, April 19 (AP)—In North Indochina today you find it difficult to shake off the feeling you are standing by and watching a nation slowly die.

Viet Nam can be saved, you are told. But the solutions involve time—and time is running out in Indochina.

In Tonkin in the north and Cochin China in the south, I attempted to sift all shades of opinion—French, Vietnamese and American, optimistic and pessimistic, the wishfully thinking and the bluntly realistic. I could only conclude: Unless the west holds fast at the Geneva conference, opening next Monday, Indochina eventually will become another Communist-dominated people's democracy.

These questions are uppermost in many minds in Saigon and Hanoi:

Is Viet Nam to be another Korea? Can it be saved short of powerful military intervention? Is it in fact the sputtering fuse of World War 3?

Some Encouraging Signs

There are some encouraging signs on the horizon, but they are too few to warrant any pleasant optimism. There is a long hard road ahead for the French and the Vietnamese if the country is to survive. If it does not, the best American military opinion is the west can write off most of southeast Asia in the vast political and economic war.

Why are the French and Vietnamese, with so much superiority in equipment, such vastly greater firepower and such an economic advantage in Indochina still largely on the defensive after 7½ years of dreary jungle war?

For one thing, Ho Chi Minh and the other Communists who lead the Vietminh rebellion are fighting the war on three fronts—military, political and psychological. On the other side, the French and Vietnamese up to now have been waging only a military war, with little attention to the other fronts.

Little Opposition

Ho directs powerful propaganda to areas not yet within his grasp. There has been little to counter it. Ho's iron discipline, his rigid control and his total mobilization in areas he controls are met by the other side with half measures.

Gen. Rene Cogny, French commander in North Indochina, and Maj. Gen. Thomas J. H. Trapnell, retiring commander of the U. S. military assistance group, seem wholly agreed it is impossible to separate the political and psychological from the military aspects of the Indochina war. Yet little has been done by the French and Vietnamese.

Even the French—those who speak frankly—admit Ho has a strong grip on the imagination of a large number of illiterate, landless peasants and even on intellectuals outside the areas he controls. The Vietnamese masses know nothing about the global war between democracy and communism. To many of them, Ho is a Nationalist, a patriot who is going to drive out the foreigner and who is going to give them land.

No Cohesive Force

In free Viet Nam there is no cohesive force, no bandwagon, no ideal, no leader who can capture the imagination of a whole people. Nor has there been any adequate counter-propaganda to Ho's promises.

To say Chief of State Bao Dai is a respected leader is to deal in delusion. From all I could gather in Indochina, the most popular thing Bao Dai ever did was abdicate the throne of Annam in late 1945 and join Ho's cabinet as an adviser.

Bao Dai has almost no connection with the people. A peasant in a rice field knows nothing about him. Intellectuals of the country dislike and even despise him. His following is limited to a most narrow group. He has never been permitted in the past to be anything but a puppet of the French, never permitted to be a real leader of his country.

Is Patriotic Leader

On the contrary, to many Vietnamese, Ho is a patriotic leader. Only a few know anything about the fact that Ho belongs to Moscow. Some people drifting back from areas under Vietminh control have spread seeds of disillusionment about Ho. But for the most part, the peasant reaction is one of hope that all foreigners will go home. He wants land and he wants to be left to till it in peace. For him all other things are largely meaningless. Talking to him in terms of intangible ideologies is useless.

In Viet Nam, the reaction to the war against Ho ranges from apathy to outright hostility. Vietnamese young men are not happy about being drafted into the army. Many dodge the draft, or buy their way out, or flee to parts unknown when the draft is near.

There is much talk of tightening up loopholes, of rationing and clamping down on black markets and graft. It is well known that in Saigon an active black market trade supplies the Vietminh with food and supplies, for example. But thus far, the remedies are only in the talking stage.

At Peak, They Say

The French insist the Vietminh already have reached the peak of their effort, that the rebel forces can improve in quality with Chinese advice and supplies but not in quantity. Yet the same French admit that Ho's forces even now remain at full strength, despite his steady and heavy losses.

With his system or recruitment, starting at the village level, his pool of reserves seems almost bottomless.

The French say they hope by 1955 to develop a Vietnamese army which can take over national defense. There is even some French hope that by next fall the Vietnamese can take over large areas in the Red river delta of Tonkin and elsewhere, permitting the French to launch an all-out offensive against Ho. The prospects, however, seem dim.

In the opinion of experienced American military observers, the Vietnamese army will not be ready. They say it will be three years — maybe five — before the the Viet Nam army as an effective fighting force can shoulder responsibility for the defense of its own nation.

Viet Nam, one of the three associated states of Indochina, has an importance today vastly out of proportion to its size. In area—127,000 square miles—it is the size of Kansas and Pennsylvania combined. It has 22 million people, or as many as New York and Illinois together. This is not very big in sprawling Asia, but the whole continent is watching anxiously.

On the credit side of the ledger, the French still control the key delta areas—the pie-shaped wedge on the north with Hanoi as its focal point and most of Cochin China in the south. In the northern delta area some seven million people are nominally under French control, as compared with only two to three million under Vietminh control in Tonkin. In all Viet Nam, the French continue to control areas sheltering more than half the population. And the areas which the French control are rich producing ones which feed the land and used to feed much of Asia.

On the debit side, the Vietminh are strong inside the French-held Tonkin Delta, ready to strike when and if the signal is given. The Vietminh also retain the initiative, choosing the time and place of battle. The rebels have forces scattered all through the French-controlled areas, posing a constant danger to French control.

For the time being the battle is only for Viet Nam. The fighting in Laos and Cambodia is relatively unimportant. The Laotians appear to hate Communists and Chinese with equal fervor.

Might Turn to Reds

If Viet Nam should fall—even if part of Viet Nam should be turned over to Ho and his Communists—other Asians will be sure they see the handwriting on the wall. They could be expected to try salvaging what they could from what they would regard as an unstemmable tide of communism. Western influence and prestige would suffer and communism's drive through Asia would be considerably eased.

"We are over a barrel at Geneva," a high-ranking American told me in Indochina. "If there is an armistice, the political side goes into action. Ho Chi Minh has the only organized, disciplined force in Viet Nam. If this means a coalition government is in the offing, the Communists surely will win out in the long run. The only thing we can do at Geneva is not budge an inch."

But this war is being fought just as much in Paris as in Viet Nam, just as much in the French National Assembly as on the jungle battlefield. Soviet propaganda guns are aimed at metropolitan France, playing on its irritation with the costly conflict in southeast Asia. And in the long run, they say in Saigon, Paris will decide whether the Indochina War is won or lost.

Tomorrow: "The Vietminh are everywhere."

Trouble Spot in Southeast Asia

Darkened area in Indochina indicates the approximate portion now in hands of Red-led Vietminh rebels. French Union forces still have a tenuous hold on Dien Bien Phu (A), northwestern fortress, where recent fighting has been the heaviest in the seven-and-one-half-year war. Still in French hands also are the strategic supply ports and delta areas of Hanoi (B) and Cochin China (C). (AP Wirephoto map)

INDO-CHINA

The World's Oldest War (1)

By Walter Parkes and Ralph Lane

The Chinese Communists --- and, of course, behind them, the Russians---are after Indo-China. Just what is Indo-China and why is its fate important to the remaining free countries? Indo-China, half again as large as France, has been a French colony since early in the 19th Century. It is important to the free nations because it is the key to all southeast Asia.

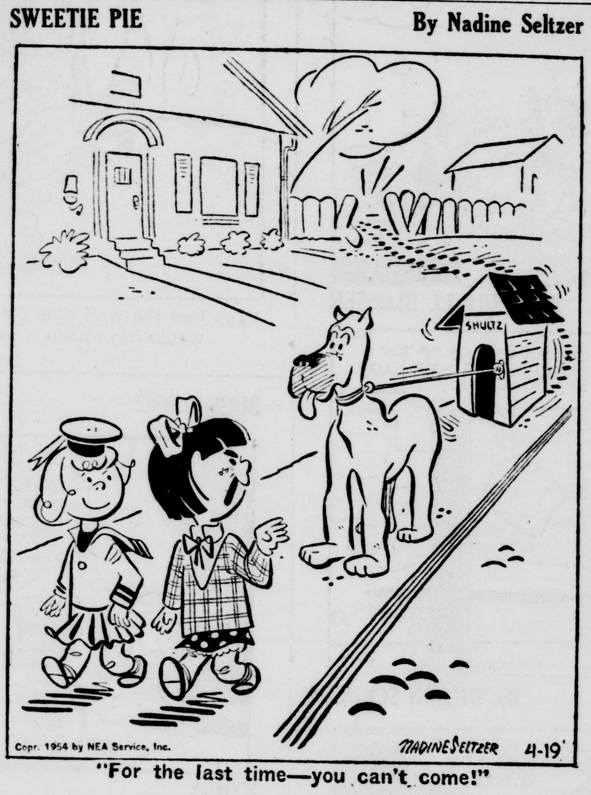

If Indo-China falls to the Reds, Malaya, Burma, Indonesia and perhaps the Philippines will be a soft touch. The Japs did it in '41, using Indo-China as a springboard. Southeast Asia is a prime source of rice (world's No. 1 crop) rubber, tin and other critical materials.

The Communist grip on Indo-China followed a familiar pattern. The Reds simply infiltrated a native nationalistic movement, gradually took it over and warped its aims from simple independence to becoming another Kremlin stooge country. Until recently, raw terrorism was the chief weapon.

Carolina Gamecock was the nickname given by his followers to General Thomas Sumter (1734-1832), of South Carolina, because of his pluck and courage in resisting the British in the South after the fall of Charleston in 1780. Lord Cornwallis himself said of Sumter that "He certainly has been our greatest plague in this country."

A native of Virginia, Sumter was a veteran of the disastrous Braddock expedition of 1755 as well as of the wars against the Cherokee Indians. During the Revolution, he never commanded large numbers of men and was little more than a partisan leader engaged in daring but effective guerrilla warfare.

A Chinaman was visiting Yellowstone National Park in winter. He had walked for some miles along a mountain trail covered with snow. Looking back over his shoulder he saw a bear sniffling at his tracks and rapidly gaining on him.

With a shrill yell he began to run. "You likee my tlacks? I makee you some more."

Young Man Held As Dress Slasher In Easter Parade

New York, April 19 (AP)—Easter paraders, happy and smiling in the spring sunshine, jammed Fifth avenue for their traditional stroll yesterday. But one man in their midst had little spirit for the occasion.

After dresses of about 15 women were slashed from behind, police arrested razor-carrying Joaquin Gonzales, 27. He denied cutting the dresses but told police, "I have no use for women—they cheat and they lie."

Later in court he struck at a patrolman and bit and scratched him. He was held for investigation of the dress slashing and for felonious assault on the policeman. Police said he had once been a mental patient.

Few Are Aware

Only a few in the Easter throng were aware of the dress slashing. Most enjoyed the fine weather and the display of new spring outfits.

Strollers were brought to a standstill as they were joined by thousands of worshippers who poured from big city churches.

The joy and hope of their greatest springtime religious rites were celebrated by both Christians and Jews on the same day this year, a rare coincidence that won't happen again for 27 years.

While Christians observed Easter and the Resurrection of Christ, Jewish families marked the first day Seder or Passover Feast, celebrating the escape of Israelites from Egyptian bondage.

A great meteorite swarm, the sound of which was heard nearly 1,000 miles away, fell in Siberia in 1908.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By BILLY ROSE

The other night a fellow who works for NBC told me a heart-warming story about an old lady. When he had finished, I opined that the yarn was too corny to be true.

"On the contrary," he said, "it's too true to be corny . . ."

As the NBC man told it, several months ago an old lady, whose husband had died a couple of weeks before, came east from St. Paul and went to live with her daughter in New Rochelle. Her daughter, Betty, had a 13-room house, and her mother was certain, with all that room, she wouldn't be a bother to anyone.

Well, as often happens, it didn't work out that way. Betty's husband was a middle wheel in the advertising business who hankered to be a big wheel, and one of his major strategies was to give fancy parties for people who might do him some good. And no sooner had the old lady arrived than he took his wife aside and said he didn't know how he was going to do all this important entertaining with an 80-year-old female on the premises, a woman who had about as much bounce as Whistler's mother.

A few weeks later, the advertising man made a more specific complaint. His principal account, he said, was a soap company, and it was important for him to get on a social footing with its president, Mr. R. J. Rutherford. Mr. Rutherford, he pointed out, had attended several of his parties, but of late he had been sending polite excuses.

"I'll bet I know why R. J. stopped coming," he told Betty. "He's a sophisticated fellow and used to mixing with sophisticated people. Chances are he's heard your mother is living with us now, and he doesn't care to rub elbows with a dame who was learning how to waltz when Cleveland was President."

Betty's mother happened to be in the hall and heard these remarks. In no time at all, she had her bag packed, and announced she was going to New York to stay at a hotel. The red-faced ad man drove the old lady to the station and put her on a train.

A few minutes later, as she was watching the manicured Westchester countryside roll by, a tall, gray-haired man asked if the seat next to her was occupied.

The old lady said no, certainly not, and the man thanked her and sat down. He read his paper for a while, then put it down on his lap and sighed.

"Fission, bombs, bombs, fission," he said. "That's all you read these days."

"In my time," said the old lady, "fission was something a kid did down by the swimming hole, and what he brought home, everybody ate for breakfast."

The gray-haired man looked startled. Then he chuckled and started chatting. He explained he was on his way to New York to have dinner with his daughter who was gettting married next month. "She's picked herself a fellow in a law office who's making $75 a week," he said. "Seems like she's determined to prove that two can live as cheaply as one."

"It may not be cheaper," said the old lady, "but sure as sassafras, it's a darn sight warmer."

The gray-haired man looked startled again. Then he complimented the old woman on her sense of humor and asked how old she was. When she said, "Going on 81," he suddenly became all business.

"It so happens," he said, "that I'm interested in a television show—one of those panel programs where the experts are 80 or over. You might be a big hit on it. Would you like to try?"

The old lady said she's try anything once. . . .

A week later, the perky old gal made her TV debut and walked away with the show. A month later, she was a permanent fixture on the program.

As of this writing, she is living in one of the better midtown hotels and having the time of her old life. Betty and her husband have tried a dozen times to get her to move back to New Rochelle, but their celebrated relative claims the crickets would keep her awake nights.

Last Saturday evening, according to my informant, Betty's husband threw a swank party in her honor, and the old girl arrived on the arm of a distinguished looking escort—the tall, gray haired gent who had recruited her for the TV show his soap company sponsored.

His name was—what else?—R. J. Rutherford.

NO RISK—SMALL PAY

"No risk, small pay" — every investor looking for riskless securities that pay well should have this phrase fixed firmly in his mind.

A $1000 Standard Oil of New Jersey bond that pays $23.75 interest a year costs about $950. The same amount of money invested in the company's common shares will pay about $50 annually.

A $1000 American Telephone and Telegraph obligation paying $27.50 annually will cost around $980. But such capital put into ATT common would produce $54 in income.

A $1000 debt of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad (Scranton to Montreal) paying $40 a year would cost about $1040. If held to maturity (ten years) a purchaser would lose $40 since it is a $1000 obligation. Such a sum placed in the common shares would pay (based on current dividends) $100 a year.

An investor simply can't eat his cake and have it, too. Every year my mail-bag carries hundreds of requests asking: "I want to get five, six, seven per cent on my money but I cannot afford to take chances."

Regardless of the fields of prime investment a person with money looks into, he will find the same "no risk—small pay" situation. The illustrations used here have been carefully chosen. An oil enterprise, a public utility corporation and a small railroad point up this universal condition.

Good bonds carry little risk. Interest is earned many times over. And maturity dates present few problems. Bonds are usually refunded and with money abundant in America, selling new issues poses no difficulties.

Into the indefinite future money rates will be low. The machinery for keeping interest rates down has been set up by the federal government authorities and this machinery is functioning very smoothly. The Federal Reserve Act that created the 12 Federal Reserve Banks legalized the whole business.

Thousands of investors around the country would find a reading and a study of the Federal Reserve Act in their own Public Libraries fascinating and instructive. Women's Clubs, Chambers of Commerce, Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions, Exchange and other clubs would do well to schedule a talk by some banker on: "How the Federal Reserve Act set in motion the machinery that makes money cheap."

The problems of most investors can be briefly summarized in two statements:

(1) If you can't take any chances with your capital, buy good bonds and be satisfied with low interest rates.

(2) If you must have five, six, or seven per cent a year income on your capital, search out diligently the best common stocks in America representing those with top-flight management. Spread the risk around. Proper diversification is the saving grace of good capital management.

The Forum

(Q) "I am a widow 66 years of age. I have $40,000 insurance money. How should I invest it?"

(A) Leave $5,000 in savings banks at 2¾ per cent interest. Purchase $15,000 good grade preferred stocks that sell to yield from four per cent to five per cent. With the rest buy the best grade common stocks. You can get growth and five per cent a year in selected New York city bank shares.

Moses Demands FHA Stop Moves Against Project

New York, April 19 (AP)—Robert Moses, the city official in charge of building the 30-million dollar New York Coliseum, demands that Federal Housing executives stop "attempts to bedevil this program.

Moses referred especially to a suggestion by J. W. Follin, of the Federal Housing and Home Finance agency, that federal aid already approved for the project might have to be revised.

Follin, director of the agency's Division of Slum Clearance and Urban Redevelopment, said changes from the Coliseum plans originally approved leave "no" alternative but to re-examine this whole matter." He asked that Moses send aides to discuss the problem with him in Washington on April 19.

Moses yesterday made public Follin's letter on the matter and the reply Moses sent to Albert M. Cole, agency administrator.

Moses said he found Follin's objections "astonishing" since the revised Coliseum plans had been verbally okayed by Cole in the presence of Follin and in any case the changes made no difference in the allotment of land to different phases of the redevelopment program.

Are Guests of Prince

Monte Carlo, Monaco, April 19 (AP)—Pfc. John W. Nason, 23, of Elmhurst, N. Y., and three other GIs from bases in France are spending a week as the guests of Prince Rainier III, ruler of this small Mediterranean principality. The visit was arranged by the French organization, Chain of Friendship, which provides holiday trips to French homes for U. S. servicemen. Rainier III entertained them all at lunch Saturday, and has placed a palace car and chauffeur at their disposal.

W. J. Gates Dies

Glens Falls, April 19 (AP)—William J. Gates, a former president of the New York State Assn. of Fire Chiefs, died last night in a nursing home. He was 84.

Wagner Urges Special Session

New York, April 19 (AP)—Mayor Robert F. Wagner, Jr., has urged Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to call a special session of the Legislature unmediately to help the city avoid extension of the three per cent sales tax to services.

Wagner, who released today the text of a telegram he had sent to Dewey, wants legislative reconsideration of proposals which city officials say would make extension of the sales tax unnecessary.

In his telegram, continuing the city-state financial feud, the mayor cited the widespread criticism of the city's plans to extend the sales tax to a number of commercial services.

Among the services which would be taxed are building trades, various repairs, advertising agencies, real estate and stock and commodity exchanges.

Four-Point Program

The mayor outlined this four-point program, which he said would make extension of the sales tax unnecessary:

1. Power to issue serial bonds for judgments and claims.

2. Authorization for funding of interborough rapid transit and Brooklyn Manhattan transit pension liabilities. (The city is now out of the transit business.)

3. Real estate taxing powers available under the 2½ per cent constitutional tax limitation.

4. Repeal of the gross receipts and financial tax and substitution of the business tax on net income.

City Councilman Edward A. Cunningham, chairman of the Council's Finance Committee, urged last night that State Comptroller J. Raymond McGovern give a "first-hand" explanation of his statement that the city does not need to extend the sales tax to get new revenue.

McGovern said last week that the city had $30,900,000 in "concealed" revenue and did not need to extend the sales tax to services.

Man Questioned In Girl's Death

New York, April 19 (AP)—Police early today questioned a Connecticut man in connection with the slaying of Marion Brown, a 17-year-old waitress, in the hallway of her tenement apartment building 11 days ago.

Police said the man mumbled something about being a detective. They later announced he was taken to Bellevue Hospital for treatment of alcoholism.

Police identified the man as Peter Evaniuk, 35, of Derby, Conn. He was arrested after neighbors of the slain girl reported he was roaming the neighborhood asking questions about her.

Miss Brown, who lived with her mother at 334 E. 65th street, was stabbed to death in the early morning hours a week ago last Thursday. Her screams aroused neighbors, but they did not get there in time to save her. Authorities said she was killed while resisting an attempted rape.

New York, April 19 (AP)—The 71-year-old Brooklyn Bridge—modernized in a job that took four years and cost about seven million dollars—will be reopened for traffic in both directions May 3. One roadway has been open since last Sept. 30. Two vehicular roadways, each with three lanes, have replaced the four old narrower lanes. Traffic will be limited to passenger automobiles and emergency vehicles. Trolley and elevated tracks have been eliminated. The improvements are expected to make it possible to accommodate 50,000 cars a day, according to a report today to Mayor Robert F. Wagner by Public Works Commissioner Frederick H. Zurmuhlen. The pedestrian walk also will be reopened May 3.

New York, April 19 (AP)—The body of a man, on whom were found documents with the name of Joseph Hopkins, 53, of Verplanck, N. Y., was hauled from the Harlem river yesterday. The body had been in the water for some time, police said. A newspaper dated March 21 was in a pocket.

The gray-haired man looked startled. Then he chuckled and started chatting. He explained he was on his way to New York to have dinner with his daughter who was gettting married next month. "She's picked herself a fellow in a law office who's making $75 a week," he said. "Seems like she's determined to prove that two can live as cheaply as one."

"It may not be cheaper," said the old lady, "but sure as sassafras, it's a darn sight warmer."

The gray-haired man looked startled again. Then he complimented the old woman on her sense of humor and asked how old she was. When she said, "Going on 81," he suddenly became all business.

"It so happens," he said, "that I'm interested in a television show—one of those panel programs where the experts are 80 or over. You might be a big hit on it. Would you like to try?"

The old lady said she's try anything once. . . .

A week later, the perky old gal made her TV debut and walked away with the show. A month later, she was a permanent fixture on the program.

As of this writing, she is living in one of the better midtown hotels and having the time of her old life. Betty and her husband have tried a dozen times to get her to move back to New Rochelle, but their celebrated relative claims the crickets would keep her awake nights.

Last Saturday evening, according to my informant, Betty's husband threw a swank party in her honor, and the old girl arrived on the arm of a distinguished looking escort—the tall, gray haired gent who had recruited her for the TV show his soap company sponsored.

His name was—what else?—R. J. Rutherford.

NO RISK—SMALL PAY

"No risk, small pay" — every investor looking for riskless securities that pay well should have this phrase fixed firmly in his mind.

A $1000 Standard Oil of New Jersey bond that pays $23.75 interest a year costs about $950. The same amount of money invested in the company's common shares will pay about $50 annually.

A $1000 American Telephone and Telegraph obligation paying $27.50 annually will cost around $980. But such capital put into ATT common would produce $54 in income.

A $1000 debt of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad (Scranton to Montreal) paying $40 a year would cost about $1040. If held to maturity (ten years) a purchaser would lose $40 since it is a $1000 obligation. Such a sum placed in the common shares would pay (based on current dividends) $100 a year.

An investor simply can't eat his cake and have it, too. Every year my mail-bag carries hundreds of requests asking: "I want to get five, six, seven per cent on my money but I cannot afford to take chances."

Regardless of the fields of prime investment a person with money looks into, he will find the same "no risk—small pay" situation. The illustrations used here have been carefully chosen. An oil enterprise, a public utility corporation and a small railroad point up this universal condition.

Good bonds carry little risk. Interest is earned many times over. And maturity dates present few problems. Bonds are usually refunded and with money abundant in America, selling new issues poses no difficulties.

Into the indefinite future money rates will be low. The machinery for keeping interest rates down has been set up by the federal government authorities and this machinery is functioning very smoothly. The Federal Reserve Act that created the 12 Federal Reserve Banks legalized the whole business.

Thousands of investors around the country would find a reading and a study of the Federal Reserve Act in their own Public Libraries fascinating and instructive. Women's Clubs, Chambers of Commerce, Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions, Exchange and other clubs would do well to schedule a talk by some banker on: "How the Federal Reserve Act set in motion the machinery that makes money cheap."

The problems of most investors can be briefly summarized in two statements:

(1) If you can't take any chances with your capital, buy good bonds and be satisfied with low interest rates.

(2) If you must have five, six, or seven per cent a year income on your capital, search out diligently the best common stocks in America representing those with top-flight management. Spread the risk around. Proper diversification is the saving grace of good capital management.

(Q) "I am a widow 66 years of age. I have $40,000 insurance money. How should I invest it?"

(A) Leave $5,000 in savings banks at 2¾ per cent interest. Purchase $15,000 good grade preferred stocks that sell to yield from four per cent to five per cent. With the rest buy the best grade common stocks. You can get growth and five per cent a year in selected New York city bank shares.

Moses Demands FHA Stop Moves Against Project

New York, April 19 (AP)—Robert Moses, the city official in charge of building the 30-million dollar New York Coliseum, demands that Federal Housing executives stop "attempts to bedevil this program.

Moses referred especially to a suggestion by J. W. Follin, of the Federal Housing and Home Finance agency, that federal aid already approved for the project might have to be revised.

Follin, director of the agency's Division of Slum Clearance and Urban Redevelopment, said changes from the Coliseum plans originally approved leave "no" alternative but to re-examine this whole matter." He asked that Moses send aides to discuss the problem with him in Washington on April 19.

Moses yesterday made public Follin's letter on the matter and the reply Moses sent to Albert M. Cole, agency administrator.

Moses said he found Follin's objections "astonishing" since the revised Coliseum plans had been verbally okayed by Cole in the presence of Follin and in any case the changes made no difference in the allotment of land to different phases of the redevelopment program.

Are Guests of Prince

Monte Carlo, Monaco, April 19 (AP)—Pfc. John W. Nason, 23, of Elmhurst, N. Y., and three other GIs from bases in France are spending a week as the guests of Prince Rainier III, ruler of this small Mediterranean principality. The visit was arranged by the French organization, Chain of Friendship, which provides holiday trips to French homes for U. S. servicemen. Rainier III entertained them all at lunch Saturday, and has placed a palace car and chauffeur at their disposal.

W. J. Gates Dies

Wagner Urges Special Session

New York, April 19 (AP)—Mayor Robert F. Wagner, Jr., has urged Gov. Thomas E. Dewey to call a special session of the Legislature immediately to help the city avoid extension of the three per cent sales tax to services.

Wagner, who released today the text of a telegram he had sent to Dewey, wants legislative reconsideration of proposals which city officials say would make extension of the sales tax unnecessary.

In his telegram, continuing the city-state financial feud, the mayor cited the widespread criticism of the city's plans to extend the sales tax to a number of commercial services.

Among the services which would be taxed are building trades, various repairs, advertising agencies, real estate and stock and commodity exchanges.

Four-Point Program

The mayor outlined this four-point program, which he said would make extension of the sales tax unnecessary:

1. Power to issue serial bonds for judgments and claims.

2. Authorization for funding of interborough rapid transit and Brooklyn Manhattan transit pension liabilities. (The city is now out of the transit business.)

3. Real estate taxing powers available under the 2½ per cent constitutional tax limitation.

4. Repeal of the gross receipts and financial tax and substitution of the business tax on net income.

City Councilman Edward A. Cunningham, chairman of the Council's Finance Committee, urged last night that State Comptroller J. Raymond McGovern give a "first-hand" explanation of his statement that the city does not need to extend the sales tax to get new revenue.

McGovern said last week that the city had $30,900,000 in "concealed" revenue and did not need to extend the sales tax to services.

Man Questioned In Girl's Death

New York, April 19 (AP)—Police early today questioned a Connecticut man in connection with the slaying of Marion Brown, a 17-year-old waitress, in the hallway of her tenement apartment building 11 days ago.

Police said the man mumbled something about being a detective. They later announced he was taken to Bellevue Hospital for treatment of alcoholism.

Police identified the man as Peter Evaniuk, 35, of Derby, Conn. He was arrested after neighbors of the slain girl reported he was roaming the neighborhood asking questions about her.

Miss Brown, who lived with her mother at 334 E. 65th street, was stabbed to death in the early morning hours a week ago last Thursday. Her screams aroused neighbors, but they did not get there in time to save her. Authorities said she was killed while resisting an attempted rape.

Two-Way Use May 3

New York, April 19 (AP)—The 71-year-old Brooklyn Bridge—modernized in a job that took four years and cost about seven million dollars—will be reopened for traffic in both directions May 3. One roadway has been open since last Sept. 30. Two vehicular roadways, each with three lanes, have replaced the four old narrower lanes. Traffic will be limited to passenger automobiles and emergency vehicles. Trolley and elevated tracks have been eliminated. The improvements are expected to make it possible to accommodate 50,000 cars a day, according to a report today to Mayor Robert F. Wagner by Public Works Commissioner Frederick H. Zurmuhlen. The pedestrian walk also will be reopened May 3.

Body Is Found

New York, April 19 (AP)—The body of a man, on whom were found documents with the name of Joseph Hopkins, 53, of Verplanck, N. Y., was hauled from the Harlem river yesterday. The body had been in the water for some time, police said. A newspaper dated March 21 was in a pocket.

Famous Lawman From Texas Will Address Dinner Club Meeting

T. W. "BUCKSHOT" LANE

T. W. "Buckshot" Lane, former sheriff for 18 years of Wharton county, Tex., will be the speaker at the final Kingston Dinner Club meeting of the season, Wednesday, April 28, at 6:30 p. m.

The colorful ex-law enforcement officer is just a "little guy" who doesn't look a bit like a Texas sheriff is supposed to, but he's a whale of a fellow according to his friends down Wharton County way. Lane, who decided to run for Congress last fall, is accredited with tripping up Public Enemy No. 1, Peter Norris, and several other desperados.

His exploits have been written up in many of the nation's popular magazines, including the Saturday Evening Post, Time and Life.

According to "Buckshot" Lane, who got his name because his eyes look like buckshot, public opinion is among the most powerful of all weapons when it comes to keeping the peace. To back up his thinking, the quiet looking fellow whose eyes sparkle when he talks, inaugurated a daily program of radio announcing to his citizens of Wharton County, keeping them advised of his activities and informing them on items of interest.

Apparently it worked, for the records show that law enforcement during Lane's time was something to brag about, even for Texans, and they kept him on the job for 18 years before he resigned last fall.

"Modern law enforcement," says Lane, "begins with informing your people of the problems and enlisting their help. Letting them know what is going on keeps them alert and puts them on your side. It is positively amazing how much more good can be done when folks are helpful instead of critical."

He believes a lie detector is cleaner than a rubber hose, brain work is more powerful than brawn, and the pen is mightier than the sword. His views on keeping law and order will be of interest to all Dinner Club members, and others who would like to know more about this subject.

Information regarding memberships for the 1954-55 season of the Kingston National Dinner Club may be obtained by contacting Warren Smith, 95 John street, secretary.

TACTLESSNESS IS NO EXCUSE

A reader asks: "Will you please print something in your column about these people who always greet others with some unpleasant remark, and how to cope with them? I mean, for example, the person who upon meeting you says, 'My how fat you are getting,' or 'How thin and drawn you look' or 'That color gives you a very sallow complexion.' I am sure you know the type I mean, Mrs. Post, and I know that your comments on this will be of help to many people."

It is true that such unthinking tactless people do exist, but fortunately they are in the very great minority. The best thing to do is to take what they say lightly and answer, in the first instance, "I thought I was getting thinner," and to the second remark you might say, "I've been trying my best to lose weight" and to the third, "I thought the color so very becoming!"

Invitation to Office Force

Dear Mrs. Post: I work in an office and am on quite friendly terms with everyone working here. Most of the men are married but I do not know their wives. I would like very much to invite them to my wedding, but don't know what to do about their wives. Must they be included?

Answer: If you ask the office force as a group and say that you are being married on such and such a day and that you would like all of them to come to your wedding, then the wives need not be included, unless you know them. But if you are sending engraved invitations, then they must be addressed to Mr. and Mrs.

On Eating an Olive

Dear Mrs. Post: What is the proper way to help oneself to an olive and then what is the proper way to eat it?

Answer. Help yourself with your fingers. If it is a big olive, hold it in your fingers, eating it in three or four bites. If it is a small, stuffed one, you can put it in your mouth whole.

Is it good manners to break crackers into soup? How should baked potato be eaten? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. Answers to these questions are included in leaflet E-16. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to Dept. EP, in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Easter Sunday Bride

Miss Elsie Catherine Proper, niece of Miss Beatrice C. and Earl W. Proper of Port Ewen, and Robert H. Rice, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Rice of Port Ewen, were married Easter Sunday at 1:30 p. m. at St. Peter's Church. The Rev. Joseph A. Geis performed the double ring ceremony.

Miss Nan Goldrick was organist with Richard Scherer as soloist in the selections, Ave Maria and Panis Angelicus. The altar was banked with Easter lilies and spring flowers.

The bride was escorted by her brother, Robert A. Proper, Jr. She wore a gown of nylon tulle delicately embroidered in a nosegay effect, styled with panniers. Her full tiered bouffant skirt terminated in a swirling cathedral train of embroidered nylon tulle, with the tiered motif repeated at the neckline of the bodice. She also wore long mitts of matching tulle. The fingertip veil of imported silk illusion was attached to a calot of the same illusion, banded in seed pearls. She carried a hand bouquet of white orchids, lilies of the valley, dendrobium orchids and white hyacinths garnished with tropical variegated foliage.

Mrs. John Scheid of Port Ewen was matron of honor. She wore a gown of white Swiss organdie over yellow taffeta fashioned with a bodice and cap sleeves of embroidered organdie. A wide sash of matching taffeta terminated in a bow and streamers at the back. She carried a hand bouquet of yellow dendrobium orchids and yellow marguerites garnished with matching foliage and wore a headpiece of variegated vine.

Miss Patricia Rice of Port Ewen, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Betty Ann Whispell of Kingston were bridesmaids. They wore gowns identical to the matron of honor's, of white Swiss organdie over Nile green taffeta. They carried hand bouquets of yellow snapdragons trimmed with yellow marguerites, and garnished with matching foliage. Their headpieces were identical to that of the matron of honor. Donald Rice of Connelly was best man for his brother. George Proper of Kingston, brother of the bride, and Leo Bechtold, of Connelly, cousin of the bridegroom, were ushers. Robert Proper, nephew of the bride, was ringbearer.

A reception was held at the Yacht Club for 100 guests following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Rice left on a wedding trip through the southern states. For traveling, the bride wore a dusty pink suit with navy and white accessories and a white orchid corsage. On their return they will live at Bayard street, Port Ewen.

The bride is a graduate of the class of 1948 of Kingston High School, and attended Moran-Spencerian School of Business. She is employed as a representative in New York Telephone Company Business Office. Mr. Rice is employed by Harry B. Van Ormer, Plumbing, Port Ewen.

During the war he was interned in Yokohama, Osaka and Kobe. Upon returning to the United States he was appointed to be the civilian chaplain and counsellor to the Japanese-Americans at the War Relocation Center, Manzanar, Cal. His war-time service also included a brief ministry on the staff of the First Presbyterian Church in Detroit, Mich.

His exploits have been written up in many of the nation's popular magazines, including the Saturday Evening Post, Time and Life.

According to "Buckshot" Lane, who got his name because his eyes look like buckshot, public opinion is among the most powerful of all weapons when it comes to keeping the peace. To back up his thinking, the quiet looking fellow whose eyes sparkle when he talks, inaugurated a daily program of radio announcing to his citizens of Wharton County, keeping them advised of his activities and informing them on items of interest.

Apparently it worked, for the records show that law enforcement during Lane's time was something to brag about, even for Texans, and they kept him on the job for 18 years before he resigned last fall.

"Modern law enforcement," says Lane, "begins with informing your people of the problems and enlisting their help. Letting them know what is going on keeps them alert and puts them on your side. It is positively amazing how much more good can be done when folks are helpful instead of critical."

He believes a lie detector is cleaner than a rubber hose, brain work is more powerful than brawn, and the pen is mightier than the sword. His views on keeping law and order will be of interest to all Dinner Club members, and others who would like to know more about this subject.

Information regarding memberships for the 1954-55 season of the Kingston National Dinner Club may be obtained by contacting Warren Smith, 95 John street, secretary.

Good Taste Today

By EMILY POST

(Author of Etiquette, Children Are People, etc.)

TACTLESSNESS IS NO EXCUSE

A reader asks: "Will you please print something in your column about these people who always greet others with some unpleasant remark, and how to cope with them? I mean, for example, the person who upon meeting you says, 'My how fat you are getting,' or 'How thin and drawn you look' or 'That color gives you a very sallow complexion.' I am sure you know the type I mean, Mrs. Post, and I know that your comments on this will be of help to many people."

It is true that such unthinking tactless people do exist, but fortunately they are in the very great minority. The best thing to do is to take what they say lightly and answer, in the first instance, "I thought I was getting thinner," and to the second remark you might say, "I've been trying my best to lose weight" and to the third, "I thought the color so very becoming!"

Invitation to Office Force

Dear Mrs. Post: I work in an office and am on quite friendly terms with everyone working here. Most of the men are married but I do not know their wives. I would like very much to invite them to my wedding, but don't know what to do about their wives. Must they be included?

Answer: If you ask the office force as a group and say that you are being married on such and such a day and that you would like all of them to come to your wedding, then the wives need not be included, unless you know them. But if you are sending engraved invitations, then they must be addressed to Mr. and Mrs.

On Eating an Olive

Dear Mrs. Post: What is the proper way to help oneself to an olive and then what is the proper way to eat it?

Answer. Help yourself with your fingers. If it is a big olive, hold it in your fingers, eating it in three or four bites. If it is a small, stuffed one, you can put it in your mouth whole.

Egg Position Studied

East Lansing, Mich. (AP) — With an egg, which end is up? For packing purposes, the large end, says Michigan State College's poultry department. The yolk has a tendency to rise in eggs packed with the small end up. An off-center yolk means a lower grade—and that means a lower price.

Easter Sunday Bride

Miss Elsie Catherine Proper, niece of Miss Beatrice C. and Earl W. Proper of Port Ewen, and Robert H. Rice, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Rice of Port Ewen, were married Easter Sunday at 1:30 p. m. at St. Peter's Church. The Rev. Joseph A. Geis performed the double ring ceremony.

Miss Nan Goldrick was organist with Richard Scherer as soloist in the selections, Ave Maria and Panis Angelicus. The altar was banked with Easter lilies and spring flowers.

The bride was escorted by her brother, Robert A. Proper, Jr. She wore a gown of nylon tulle delicately embroidered in a nosegay effect, styled with panniers. Her full tiered bouffant skirt terminated in a swirling cathedral train of embroidered nylon tulle, with the tiered motif repeated at the neckline of the bodice. She also wore long mitts of matching tulle. The fingertip veil of imported silk illusion was attached to a calot of the same illusion, banded in seed pearls. She carried a hand bouquet of white orchids, lilies of the valley, dendrobium orchids and white hyacinths garnished with tropical variegated foliage.

Mrs. John Scheid of Port Ewen was matron of honor. She wore a gown of white Swiss organdie over yellow taffeta fashioned with a bodice and cap sleeves of embroidered organdie. A wide sash of matching taffeta terminated in a bow and streamers at the back. She carried a hand bouquet of yellow dendrobium orchids and yellow marguerites garnished with matching foliage and wore a headpiece of variegated vine.

Miss Patricia Rice of Port Ewen, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Betty Ann Whispell of Kingston were bridesmaids. They wore gowns identical to the matron of honor's, of white Swiss organdie over Nile green taffeta. They carried hand bouquets of yellow snapdragons trimmed with yellow marguerites, and garnished with matching foliage. Their headpieces were identical to that of the matron of honor. Donald Rice of Connelly was best man for his brother. George Proper of Kingston, brother of the bride, and Leo Bechtold, of Connelly, cousin of the bridegroom, were ushers. Robert Proper, nephew of the bride, was ringbearer.

A reception was held at the Yacht Club for 100 guests following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Rice left on a wedding trip through the southern states. For traveling, the bride wore a dusty pink suit with navy and white accessories and a white orchid corsage. On their return they will live at Bayard street, Port Ewen.

The bride is a graduate of the class of 1948 of Kingston High School, and attended Moran-Spencerian School of Business. She is employed as a representative in New York Telephone Company Business Office. Mr. Rice is employed by Harry B. Van Ormer, Plumbing, Port Ewen.

Missionary to Japan Will Speak at Hurley Reformed Church

REV. HENRY G. BOVENKERK

The Rev. Henry G. Bovenkerk, at present treasurer of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Reformed Church in America, will be the speaker at the Congregational pot luck supper at the Hurley Reformed Church. The supper Tuesday will begin at 6:30 p. m.

The Rev. Mr. Bovenkerk has had more than two decades of intimate contact with Japan as a missionary and administrator; he has both written and spoken extensively about that country and its people. As the secretary of the Interboard Committee for Christian Work in Japan he made repeated post-war journies to Japan; in this capacity he served eight major North American denominations.

The Rev. Mr. Bovenkerk has been in a liaison position between these communions and the Church of Christ in Japan from the time he returned to that country at the end of the late war until the spring of 1953 when he was invited to his present position.

During the war he was interned in Yokohama, Osaka and Kobe. Upon returning to the United States he was appointed to be the civilian chaplain and counsellor to the Japanese-Americans at the War Relocation Center, Manzanar, Cal. His war-time service also included a brief ministry on the staff of the First Presbyterian Church in Detroit, Mich.

The Rev. Bovenkerk was born in Chicago, Ill., was graduated from Hope College and Western Theological Seminary in Holland, Mich., and took graduate work at Cornell University. The Rev. and Mrs. Bovenkerk have four children and live at Glen Rock, N. J.

The Mature Parent

Too Many Parents Forfeit Responsibility to Selves

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

The principal of a certain big-city junior high school came to work this week to find these things: a flooded gymnasium; smashed laboratory equipment; a burned school banner; overturned desks; ripped couches in the teachers' lounge and paint-splashed walls.

Said the principal to the press: "Too many parents have forfeited their responsibilities."

Responsibilities to whom?

Our children? Of course, our children. Always, the children. Doesn't "responsibility to children" define the American parents' success or failure? Isn't it on our minds day and night?

Yet the children go on destroying. And on the charts, the delinquency rate creeps up and up . . .

I am tired of exhortations urging more of this "responsibility to children." What I'd like to see is someone stand up and shout across this nation. "Too many parents have forfeited responsibility to themselves."

Because the destructive and undisciplined children are made by people who feel no responsibility to themselves.

I have seen them standing before judges beside their sullen young. In their faces, I have seldom seen awareness of what the judgment means to their children. Mostly, I've seen hate and shame of what it means to them. Because the only self-respect these parents have is what the children's conduct permits them.

So they have pursued the children with their terror of this power to make or break their self-respect. They have had to either overlook or scream at the bad behavior which threatens it—or plead slavishly for the good conduct which can justify it.

We simply cannot love children who have the power to make us feel a success or a failure.

To teach Jimmy to be reponsible for his conduct, we have first to find a self-respect that is independent of it. Then we are free of the bondage that makes his public tantrum or his lie our disgrace. And out of our independent self-respect, we can deal with his conduct firmly, kindly and convincingly.

If the authorities want more responsibility for children, they better start telling us to regain control of our own integrity.

YWCA Week Is To Be April 19-25

Mayor Frederick H. Stang today proclaimed the week of April 19 through 25 as National YWCA Week.

"At this time each year," the proclamation said, "the 3,000,000 members of the YWCA throughout the country of ours unite to celebrate their national week, honoring an organization dedicated to serving women and girls."

The organization has been in force for 99 years, he noted, and "Its record is a proud one for it pioneered in promoting the welfare of the young women of the nation for nearly a century—a challenging century of unprecedented growth in every field of human endeavor."

Based on the Christian principle of service, it has applied its ideal in daily life to enrich the lives of young women and girls and helped them "to become more effective citizens of the community and the world."

The week's theme, he said, is: "They go to church; they go to school; they go to work; they go to the YWCA." The organization, he said, is "a dynamic contributor and worker for a better way of life for all." He congratulated the YWCA in behalf of citizens of the city and wished it continued growth for the future.

Poughkeepsie Cabs Honored For First HVBL Championship

Mayor Fred Stang Is Guest Speaker

Poughkeepsie Cabs, the 1953-54 champions, and Jones Dairy shared the spotlight at the Hudson Valley League's 17th annual banquet Saturday night at the Capri.

The Cabs were honored for being the first Poughkeepsie squad ever to win the coveted crown. They nosed out Jones Dairy by a game and a half.

The Dairymen, led by Johnny Ferraro, were cited for setting five all-time league records: Ferraro's 212-13 average, 1012 team average, 11 consecutive 1000 games; four consecutive 3000 series, and Larry Weishaupt's individual record of 18 straight 200 games.

Jones Dairy already owned the two all-time individual marks of 300 by Larry Weishaupt, set on Jan. 30, 1949; and Johnny Ferraro's 818 on March 28, 1953.

Eight "200" Average

On a league basis another record was established when eight keglers completed the season with a "200" average.

Trailing Ferraro in the individual ratings were Phil Versace, anchor on the championship squad, with 205-31; Larry Weishaupt 203-20, George Baird, Cabs, 202-12; Harold Broskie 201, Wally Gerken, Newburgh, 200-89; Frank Greco, Ellenville, 200-26; Dick Howard, 200-9. Twelve other keglers finished in the "190" bracket.

Finn President

Frank Finn, of Liberty, was elected president for 1954-55, succeeding Charles Manfro of Kingston, who presided at Saturday's banquet.

Wally Gerken, Newburgh veteran, was named vice-president and Bert Rhea, of Poughkeepsie, re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Mayor Fred Stang was the principal speaker. Other personalities introduced by toastmaster Charles J. Tiano were John "Flash" Hopshe of Newburgh; Peter Keresman, founder of the Kingston Bowling Association; Addison Jones, who formed the Hudson Valley League in 1934; Arman Happel and his wife, Ann Happel, treasurer of the New York State Woman's Bowling Association; William "Chief" Mueller, of Poughkeepsie, Wally Gerken and Fred Rice. George Palmateer, sports editor of the Poughkeepsie New Yorker and Alan Black of the Middletown Times-Herald also attended. The well known Poughkeepsie radio bowling commentators—Ma and Pa Rhea—also were introduced.

Phil Versace of Poughkeepsie took down second high average with 205. John Ferraro and Jim Torelli of Middletown shared high single honors at 289 and Ferraro's 764 was high series. Jones Dairy won the team prizes with a 1238 single (all-time record) and 3403 series.

By Charles J. Tiano
Sports Editor

The weatherman continues to indulge in weekend caprices designed to drive the impatient duffer frantic. But don't let that fool you. The biggest golf season in area history is ready to bust out all over our beautiful landscape.

It is a further continuation of the post-war trend of American participation in sports. The average family can get all the spectator sports it desires in its own living room—via TV.

The average guy and gal wants to play outdoors these days. They have the time and the money, what with the almost universal five-day week. Golf, archery, hunting and fishing have recruited a fantastic number of devotees in recent years. And the spiral still continues upward.

A RECORD NUMBER of women and young folks will be playing golf for the first time in Ulster county this year. Spectator sports, dependent on the customer's dollar, are in a big slump, but participant sports are thriving. And golf is the one game which can embrace a whole family, from grandma to the youngest tike who can lift a club.

Golf, within reasonable limitations, is the finest family sport we have today. Give it a try, you may surprise yourself. You may like it.

PITCH AND PUTT—Alex Gerlak took some of the Twaalfskill boys for pin money betting on Sam Snead over Ben Hogan in the Masters playoff. But Alex is sharpening his game for the Northeastern PGA qualifying round. His one big ambition is to qualify and then ask the USGA executive committee to pair him with Hogan, who played his first U. S. Open tournament with Gerlak several years ago. Seymour "Cy" Werbalowsky, the barrister, has been named chairman of local eliminations for the annual Junior Chamber of Commerce golf tournament early in June. The state finals are slated for Syracuse July 11-12-13, with the nationals at the University of New Mexico sometime in August.

• The Nineteenth Hole:

RAY SMITH READYING Palenville for a banner season. And Julian Raper says Ellenville folks are already looking forward to the Father Herdegen Memorial (county amateur championship) scheduled the last two weekends in June. The U. S. Open at Baltusrol, N. J., in June expected to attract all-time attendance records, with large delegations from Kingston and Woodstock making the trek. Alex Gerlak won't lack for supporters if he qualifies. Dick Overbagh and the Twaalfskill tournament committee are planning a series of diversified weekend tournaments for the membership.

THE SO-CALLED CALCUTTA tournaments are under heavy fire across the country. Many of the leading Eastern courses have dropped this type of competition from their calendar. Golf is one sport that has never been victimized by a major scandal and the USGA and PGA are anxious to preserve that spotless record. They feel, and rightly so, that when huge sums of money are involved, the element of human temptation to cheat cannot be discounted. The Greenbrier Calcutta which annually ran close to a quarter million has been scrapped. Clubs that insist on continuing Calcuttas have been warned to keep the jackpot at a reasonable maximum.

JOE WILLIAMS wasn't highly impressed by that recent magazine spread of Ben Hogan's "secret." The sports columnist says Ben's "secret" is that, even at 42, he works harder on his game than any other player. The mag spread was ballyhoo for a new set of golf slubs Hogan's putting on the market. Technically, the Hogan "secret" is that he plays a fade shot better than anybody else. Is it the club or is it the player? Well, says Mr. Williams, you can't buy Hogan, but you can buy his clubs. . . .

Schatzel-Lapine Still Hold Second In State Doubles

Rose Schatzel and Charlotte Lapine of Kingston still hold down second place in the Class A doubles with a 1082 count. The leaders are Mary Dascomb and Ethel Vogelsang of Buffalo with 1092.

Pat Hegenauer of Poughkeepsie, who rolled her team event with Kingston's Old Capital Motors squad, continues to lead the A singles with 598.

The only changes in the holiday shooting were in the Class B doubles, where Ethel Drees and Alice Jerger of Rochester took the lead with a 1005 score. Ruth May and Lillian Blanchard of Rochester moved into fourth with a 995 total.

Yukon Eric Surprise Visitor To YMCA Saturday Sports Day

The night before the Alaskan giant had amused spectators at the municipal auditorium by tossing 265-pound Hans Herman around the ring.

As Lou Schafer, the Y general secretary reports it, he (Schafer) was sitting at his desk when a large form clouded the area around his work bench. He looked up and was startled to see the familiar and massive figure of a man who could be nobody but Yukon Eric. But just to make sure, Lou inquired,

"Are you Yukon Eric?"

"Yes," replied the young giant with modesty. The men shook hands and Yukon produced a YMCA membership card out of Gary, Indiana.

"May I work on your weights a while?" Yukon asked.

Schafer showed him the business men's locker room, as all the boys' lockers were occupied with three different operations going on at once Saturday.

Yukon stripped down to a workout uniform of shorts and went to work on the weights for about 45 minutes, while the young boys who make up the Saturday morning activity period swarmed around the TV star.

Talks to Kids

After the workout, Schafer assembled the boys in the auditorium where Yukon spoke to them briefly. He urged them to learn all phases of sports to build a strong and healthy body and become better men in future years.

Yukon said he had been a member of YMCAs in Canada and several states in this country. After the usual rush for autographs, the amiable giant departed for another wrestling engagement in New York.

"That was quite a surprise," remarked Schafer. "As a matter of fact it was a real big one."

Hurricane Jackson, Third Ranked, Heads Imposing Crop of Newest Heavyweights

By HARRY GRAYSON
(NEA Sports Editor)

This is after no more than 21 months of legalized mayhem.

Hurricane Jackson, 22-year-old Negro out of Rockaway Beach, L. I., via Georgia, heads an imposing list of young heavyweights. They're popping up around the country like McCarthy arguments. There are a dozen or more of them.

Carter Is Prospect

One of the brightest is Harold Carter, Linden, N. J. high school boy fighting main events in Newark. Carter, former national Golden Gloves light-heavyweight leader, is unbeaten in seven starts as a professional, has five knockouts.

He packs an authoritative wallop, takes one and pugilistic pundits like the way he moves. He isn't being fed set-ups. He had Joe Lindsay on the deck, where Jackson failed to put him in two outings. He twice knocked out Ike Thomas, who similarly disposed of Charlie Norkus.

Pat McMurtry, marine veteran of Korea, has Tacoma fans excited with five kayoes in a row, could be the most formidable of the lot.

Albright Hailed

Bob Albright has attracted attention in Los Angeles the past six months, had it out with Jake Williams, another prospect out of Pendleton, Oregon.

Charlie Powell, the 49er end, hasn't been discouraged in four bouts and is to be built up in San Francisco. Ed Sanders, the Olympic champion out of Los Angeles, has turned in three knockouts.

Jack Scheberies, who attended San Jose State, is expected to make headway. Bill Hagerty, who played so much tackle for Villanova, is working out preparatory to a whirl upon graduation in June. Like several others, Hagerty sees a quicker future in beak busting than he does in money football. He is the property of the Washington Redskins.

Old Managers Return

The new heavyweight fever is bringing back old managers. Suey Welch, who had Kayo Christener and Gorilla Jones, is guiding Charlie Powell, the erstwhile 49er. Hutch Hutchinson, who managed Jack Silvers, a Grade A lightweight out of 'Frisco in the early 1920s, is campaigning out of Portland, Ore., with Jimmy Byrne, who has four knockouts.

Byrne is the son of Jimmy Byrne, who did a spot of pretty fair heavyweighting in the late 20s. He stands 6 feet 2½, came down from 265 to 220.

There is plenty of room for all the new heavyweights they dig up.

SPORTS

By Charles J. Tiano
Sports Editor

The weatherman continues to indulge in weekend caprices designed to drive the impatient duffer frantic. But don't let that fool you. The biggest golf season in area history is ready to bust out all over our beautiful landscape.

It is a further continuation of the post-war trend of American participation in sports. The average family can get all the spectator sports it desires in its own living room—via TV.

The average guy and gal wants to play outdoors these days. They have the time and the money, what with the almost universal five-day week. Golf, archery, hunting and fishing have recruited a fantastic number of devotees in recent years. And the spiral still continues upward.

A RECORD NUMBER of women and young folks will be playing golf for the first time in Ulster county this year. Spectator sports, dependent on the customer's dollar, are in a big slump, but participant sports are thriving. And golf is the one game which can embrace a whole family, from grandma to the youngest tike who can lift a club.

Golf, within reasonable limitations, is the finest family sport we have today. Give it a try, you may surprise yourself. You may like it.

PITCH AND PUTT—Alex Gerlak took some of the Twaalfskill boys for pin money betting on Sam Snead over Ben Hogan in the Masters playoff. But Alex is sharpening his game for the Northeastern PGA qualifying round. His one big ambition is to qualify and then ask the USGA executive committee to pair him with Hogan, who played his first U. S. Open tournament with Gerlak several years ago. Seymour "Cy" Werbalowsky, the barrister, has been named chairman of local eliminations for the annual Junior Chamber of Commerce golf tournament early in June. The state finals are slated for Syracuse July 11-12-13, with the nationals at the University of New Mexico sometime in August.

• The Nineteenth Hole:

RAY SMITH READYING Palenville for a banner season. And Julian Raper says Ellenville folks are already looking forward to the Father Herdegen Memorial (county amateur championship) scheduled the last two weekends in June. The U. S. Open at Baltusrol, N. J., in June expected to attract all-time attendance records, with large delegations from Kingston and Woodstock making the trek. Alex Gerlak won't lack for supporters if he qualifies. Dick Overbagh and the Twaalfskill tournament committee are planning a series of diversified weekend tournaments for the membership.

THE SO-CALLED CALCUTTA tournaments are under heavy fire across the country. Many of the leading Eastern courses have dropped this type of competition from their calendar. Golf is one sport that has never been victimized by a major scandal and the USGA and PGA are anxious to preserve that spotless record. They feel, and rightly so, that when huge sums of money are involved, the element of human temptation to cheat cannot be discounted. The Greenbrier Calcutta which annually ran close to a quarter million has been scrapped. Clubs that insist on continuing Calcuttas have been warned to keep the jackpot at a reasonable maximum.

JOE WILLIAMS wasn't highly impressed by that recent magazine spread of Ben Hogan's "secret." The sports columnist says Ben's "secret" is that, even at 42, he works harder on his game than any other player. The mag spread was ballyhoo for a new set of golf slubs Hogan's putting on the market. Technically, the Hogan "secret" is that he plays a fade shot better than anybody else. Is it the club or is it the player? Well, says Mr. Williams, you can't buy Hogan, but you can buy his clubs. . . .

Schatzel-Lapine Still Hold Second In State Doubles

Area keglerettes held their positions in the New York State women's bowling tournament at Rochester after heavy firing over the weekend.

Rose Schatzel and Charlotte Lapine of Kingston still hold down second place in the Class A doubles with a 1082 count. The leaders are Mary Dascomb and Ethel Vogelsang of Buffalo with 1092.

Pat Hegenauer of Poughkeepsie, who rolled her team event with Kingston's Old Capital Motors squad, continues to lead the A singles with 598.

The only changes in the holiday shooting were in the Class B doubles, where Ethel Drees and Alice Jerger of Rochester took the lead with a 1003 score. Ruth May and Lillian Blanchard of Rochester moved into fourth with a 995 total.

Yukon Eric Surprise Visitor To YMCA Saturday Sports Day

The small fry at the YMCA got an unexpected thrill Saturday morning when Yukon Eric, the professional wrestling headliner showed up for a workout with the weights.

The night before the Alaskan giant had amused spectators at the municipal auditorium by tossing 265-pound Hans Herman around the ring.

As Lou Schafer, the Y general secretary reports it, he (Schafer) was sitting at his desk when a large form clouded the area around his work bench. He looked up and was startled to see the familiar and massive figure of a man who could be nobody but Yukon Eric. But just to make sure, Lou inquired,

"Are you Yukon Eric?"

"Yes," replied the young giant with modesty. The men shook hands and Yukon produced a YMCA membership card out of Gary, Indiana.

"May I work on your weights a while?" Yukon asked.

Schafer showed him the business men's locker room, as all the boys' lockers were occupied with three different operations going on at once Saturday.

Yukon stripped down to a workout uniform of shorts and went to work on the weights for about 45 minutes, while the young boys who make up the Saturday morning activity period swarmed around the TV star.

Talks to Kids

After the workout, Schafer assembled the boys in the auditorium where Yukon spoke to them briefly. He urged them to learn all phases of sports to build a strong and healthy body and become better men in future years.

Yukon said he had been a member of YMCAs in Canada and several states in this country. After the usual rush for autographs, the amiable giant departed for another wrestling engagement in New York.

"That was, quite a surprise," remarked Schafer. "As a matter of fact it was a real big one."

Hurricane Jackson, Third Ranked, Heads Imposing Crop of Newest Heavyweights

By HARRY GRAYSON
(NEA Sports Editor)

This is after no more than 21 months of legalized mayhem.

Hurricane Jackson, 22-year-old Negro out of Rockaway Beach, L. I., via Georgia, heads an imposing list of young heavyweights. They're popping up around the country like McCarthy arguments. There are a dozen or more of them.

Carter Is Prospect

One of the brightest is Harold Carter, Linden, N. J. high school boy fighting main events in Newark. Carter, former national Golden Gloves light-heavyweight leader, is unbeaten in seven starts as a professional, has five knockouts.

He packs an authoritative wallop, takes one and pugilistic pundits like the way he moves. He isn't being fed set-ups. He had Joe Lindsay on the deck, where Jackson failed to put him in two outings. He twice knocked out Ike Thomas, who similarly disposed of Charlie Norkus.

Pat McMurtry, marine veteran of Korea, has Tacoma fans excited with five kayoes in a row, could be the most formidable of the lot.

Albright Hailed

Bob Albright has attracted attention in Los Angeles the past six months, had it out with Jake Williams, another prospect out of Pendleton, Oregon.

Charlie Powell, the 49er end, hasn't been discouraged in four bouts and is to be built up in San Francisco. Ed Sanders, the Olympic champion out of Los Angeles, has turned in three knockouts.

Jack Scheberies, who attended San Jose State, is expected to make headway. Bill Hagerty, who played so much tackle for Villanova, is working out preparatory to a whirl upon graduation in June. Like several others, Hagerty sees a quicker future in beak busting than he does in money football. He is the property of the Washington Redskins.

Old Managers Return

The new heavyweight fever is bringing back old managers. Suey Welch, who had Kayo Christener and Gorilla Jones, is guiding Charlie Powell, the erstwhile 49er. Hutch Hutchinson, who managed Jack Silvers, a Grade A lightweight out of 'Frisco in the early 1920s, is campaigning out of Portland, Ore., with Jimmy Byrne, who has four knockouts.

Byrne is the son of Jimmy Byrne, who did a spot of pretty fair heavyweighting in the late 20s. He stands 6 feet 2½, came down from 265 to 220.

There is plenty of room for all the new heavyweights they dig up.

Cincinnati and Detroit Stir Early Phase of Pennant Race

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Yanks and Dodgers, struggling at .500 definitely do not look like runaway pennant winners on their form for the first week of the new season. Lefthanders baffle the Yanks and Sal Maglie has cast his old spell over the Brooklyns.

Cincinnati and Detroit, generally picked to bounce around the second division, and the much-maligned Philadelphia Phillies are right up there at the head of the class if you pay attention to standings at this date.

Cincinnati might bear watching. There is a strong suspicion that the Reds were sold short in the pre-season rundown. Philadelphia, too, has reversed its sorry Florida showing on the strong pitching of Robin Roberts, Curt Simmons and Murry Dickson.

"Greengrass mows Braves" a New York paper headlined this morning to call attention to the batting feats of Jim Greengrass, the Cincinnati left fielder, who has 12 runs batted in and a .611 average for the first five games.

Greengrass had two hits in each game yesterday as Cincinnati knocked off Milwaukee's highly rated pitching staff in both ends of a doubleheader, beating Chet Nichols 6-4 and Bob Buhl 5-3.

Roberts and Simmons teamed up on the Pirates 6-0 and 7-1. After Roberts bounced back from his opening day defeat to blank Pittsburgh with four hits for the Phils' third straight shutout, Simmons stretched the string to 32 innings before he yielded a run in the sixth. Earl Torgeson's homer with two on gave Roberts all he needed. Del Ennis hit two home runs behind Simmons.

Maglie Halts Brooks

Maglie's old charm worked at Ebbets Field where he is unbeaten in nine starts as he went the route for the first time since last July 16 for New York's 6-3 triumph over the Dodgers. Pitching superbly in the clutches, the 37-year-old righthander ran his career record against Brooklyn to 20-6. Slump-busting Monte Irvin drove in four runs with a homer and two singles.

A three-run pinch homer by Tom Alston off the first pitch Chicago's Jim Davis ever threw in the majors helped the St. Louis Cardinals finally make the win circle 6-4 over Chicago. The second game went only two innings before darkness stopped it. Vic Raschi, the ex-Yankee, won his first National League game with relief help from Gerry Staley.

Two spring training phenoms failed in their American League debuts. The Yanks' Bob Grim was knocked out and beaten by Washington's Maury McDermott 9-3. And Boston's Tom Brewer, who ran a long string of scorless innings in Florida, was chased by Philadelphia as the A's won the first game from the Red Sox behind Rookie Bob Trice, 6-4. Jackie Jensen's 13th inning homer gave Red Sox reliefer Ellis Kinder the second game 4-3.

Gromek Wins 2nd

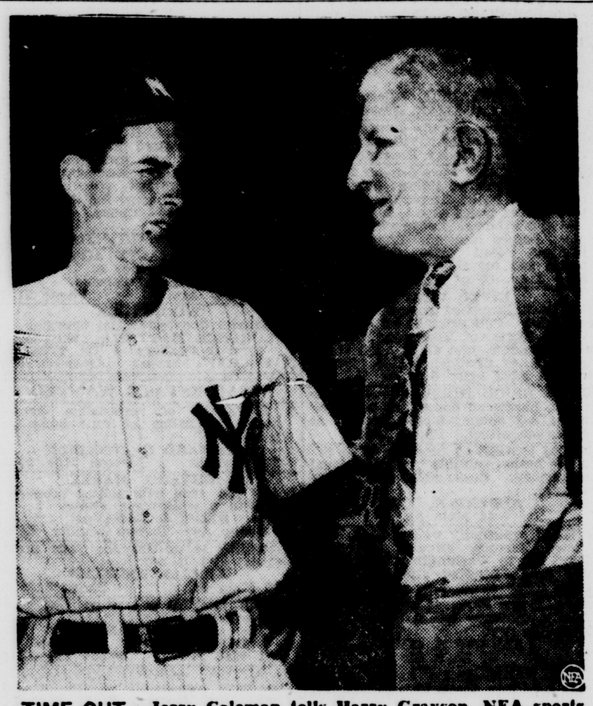

Steve Gromek, a seven-game winner with two clubs last year, copped his second straight for Detroit 8-3 over Baltimore's Don Larsen with Walt Dropo and Harvey Kuenn doing the heavy hitting.

Jim Rivera, Minnie Minoso and Ferris Fain hit home runs that made Billy Pierce's spotty 10-hit pitching stand up for a 6-2 Chicago edge over Cleveland in a game cut to six innings by rain. The second game was postponed.

The White Sox made a move after the game that may solve their third base problem by acquiring Grady Hatton from Cincinnati for Johnny Lipon and cash. Hatton originally was a third baseman although Cincinnati had played him at second as a utility man.

The holiday crowds were disappointing, only 146,411 for the full program with the largest turnout, 27,267, at Milmaukee. The Yanks had only 16,952 and Cleveland but 10,063 with a storm on the way.

Mickey Mantle hit a 470-foot triple off the centerfield bleacher wall at Yankee Stadium that sent the world champs looking for the tap measure. It was one of five hits off McDermott who allowed only two hits for seven innings.

TIME OUT—Jerry Coleman tells Harry Grayson, NEA sports editor, that he is gradually regaining the touch after a second hitch as a Marine flier. (NEA)

Fifth Golf Title For Louise Suggs

Beaumont, Tex., April 19 (AP)—Louise Suggs of Atlanta held her fifth championship today as the ladies' PGA winter tour came to a close and the gals of the fairways scattered for their homes—all except Babe Zaharias, who has a date with her doctors for a physical check.

Little Miss Suggs wrapped up the Babe Zaharias $3,500 open yesterday with a par 73 over the Club course that gave her 224 for the 54 holes and brought her $700 more for her bulging bank account.

She has won the Titleholders Sea Island Open, Betsy Rawls Open, Carrollton Open and Zaharias Open as the top feminine linkster of the year.

Mrs. Zaharias, who made a gallant bid for the championship of the tournament named for her here in her home town, said the checkup with her doctors was "routine" and indicated she expected no adverse report on her progress from an operation for cancer here a year ago.

The Babe, who had been complaining of tiredness in the final rounds of tournaments along the tour, has said she won't be back on the golf swing for six weeks at least. Reports around the tournament here were that she might have to have another operation but she said yesterday, as she shot a 74 to finish second in the tournament with 226 that won her $500, that she was feeling "grand."

Pick Patterson Over Williams

New York, April 19 (AP)—Floyd Patterson, unbeaten, 19-year-old Brooklyn light heavyweight contender, is favored to rack up his 12th straight pro victory tonight when he faces Alvin (Chief) Williams, of Wichita, Kas., at Eastern Parkway Arena.

The strong, fast Patterson has scored eight knockouts and won three decisions since turning pro a month after he won the Olympic 165-pound crown at Helsinki in '52. Williams, a Caddo Indian who has been a pro since 1948, has a 38-9-5 record. He never has been stopped.

The bout is limited to eight rounds because Patterson is under 20. It will be telecast (Dumont) starting at 10 p. m., EST.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Batting—Jim Greengrass, Redlegs, drove in four runs with four hits in double victory over Milwaukee 6-4 and 5-3 boosting average to .611 and runs-batted-in to 12.

Pitching — Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons, Phillies, held Pirates to one run in doubleheader sweep 6-0 and 7-1.

IMITATE A YOUNG CROW'S SQUALL

ABOUT ONE MONTH AFTER THE SPRING MATING SEASON, A YOUNG CROW'S SQUALL IS EFFECTIVE UNTIL FALL. PARENTS RESPOND FOR AN ATTACK UPON A SUSPECTED OWL OR OTHER ENEMY OF THEIR YOUNG TO ANSWER THE CALL. ITS UNSEASONABLE USE AT OTHER TIMES DRIVES CROWS AWAY.

THIS HIGH-PITCHED CALL IS USUALLY IMITATED BEST WITH A METAL REEDED CALL. OTHER TYPES MAY BE USED BY PINCHING MOUTHPIECE WITH TEETH, BUT RESULT ISN'T AS PERFECT.

AN OWL DECOY IS MOST EFFICIENT DURING THIS SEASON.

By WARREN PAGE
(Shooting Editor)

Phoned a friend of mine the other evening to see if he had an extra pound of DuPont 3031 powder I could borrow—reloaders are like women baking cakes, always borrowing the makin's—and behind his voice I could hear a raucous cacaphony of squawks and caws.

"What's the racket? Your youngster studying to be a bugler or have you gone in the poultry business?" I asked.

"Nope, I bought one of those crow-calling records and have been doing a little practicing," he said. "Can't wait to try my new call on those black so-and-sos. My wife can't wait for me to get out of the house, either."

In banging around the back country after varmints, I've run into one or two farmers who objected to the shooting of woodchucks not because of any possible bullet menace to their cattle or buildings, but just because they like groundhogs, I guess. But I've never met a farmer who put up much argument in defense of crows.

The Crow Is Black

And to sportsmen, bird-shooters in particular, the crow's name is blacker than his tail feathers because crows, ravens and all the rest of the family are inveterate nest-robbers. They'll punch pheasant or quail eggs just as fast as they will clutch a song-bird. The carnage among nesting ducks in the marshes of upper Canadian prairies is downright gruesome on occasions.

All through the middle west, crow-busting has developed from an occasional scattergun exercise to a serious sport, with huge kills made along flyways and close to roosting areas. A good many chaps have moved into what might be termed the semi-professional stage, with investments in live owls as decoys or tamed crows—they're all descendants of Judas, these black birds—portable blinds, camouflage suits picked up from army surplus and shells by the case.

But all the needs, other than his scattergun and a few leftover loads, is a call, and one of those practice records to learn how to work it. No decoys or other gadgetry. If he spots a few crows feeding in a field, and a clump of trees on a rise of ground nearby, all he needs to do is park his car at a discreet distance, disappear into the tree clump, and start working his call.

Chances are he'll get at least one, perhaps two or three, investigatory passes from that cluster of crows—and shots at birds flashing over the treetops. And if you don't think a crow zooming across the openings in a leafed-out hardwoods makes a tough target, brethren, you've got another think coming.

Cincinnati and Detroit Stir Early Phase of Pennant Race

Associated Press Sports Writer

The Yanks and Dodgers, struggling at .500 definitely do not look like runaway pennant winners on their form for the first week of the new season. Lefthanders baffle the Yanks and Sal Maglie has cast his old spell over the Brooklyns.

Cincinnati and Detroit, generally picked to bounce around the second division, and the much-maligned Philadelphia Phillies are right up there at the head of the class if you pay attention to standings at this date.

Cincinnati might bear watching. There is a strong suspicion that the Reds were sold short in the pre-season rundown. Philadelphia, too, has reversed its sorry Florida showing on the strong pitching of Robin Roberts, Curt Simmons and Murry Dickson.

"Greengrass mows Braves" a New York paper headlined this morning to call attention to the batting feats of Jim Greengrass, the Cincinnati left fielder, who has 12 runs batted in and a .611 average for the first five games.

Greengrass had two hits in each game yesterday as Cincinnati knocked off Milwaukee's highly rated pitching staff in both ends of a doubleheader, beating Chet Nichols 6-4 and Bob Buhl 5-3.

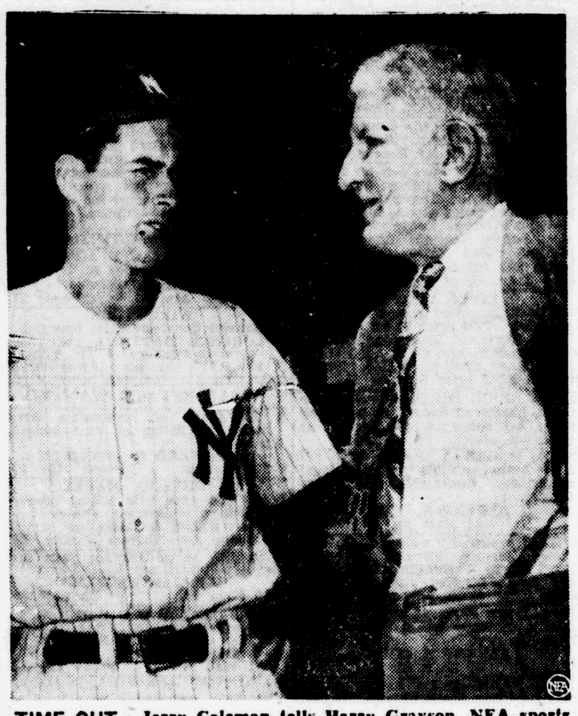

Roberts and Simmons teamed up on the Pirates 6-0 and 7-1. After Roberts bounced back from his opening day defeat to blank Pittsburgh with four hits for the Phils' third straight shutout, Simmons stretched the string to 32 innings before he yielded a run in the sixth. Earl Torgeson's homer with two on gave Roberts all he needed. Del Ennis hit two home runs behind Simmons.

Maglie Halts Brooks

Maglie's old charm worked at Ebbets Field where he is unbeaten in nine starts as he went the route for the first time since last July 16 for New York's 6-3 triumph over the Dodgers. Pitching superbly in the clutches, the 37-year-old righthander ran his career record against Brooklyn to 20-6. Slump-busting Monte Irvin drove in four runs with a homer and two singles.

A three-run pinch homer by Tom Alston off the first pitch Chicago's Jim Davis ever threw in the majors helped the St. Louis Cardinals finally make the win circle 6-4 over Chicago. The second game went only two innings before darkness stopped it. Vic Raschi, the ex-Yankee, won his first National League game with relief help from Gerry Staley.

Two spring training phenoms sailed in their American League debuts. The Yanks' Bob Grim was knocked out and beaten by Washington's Maury McDermott 9-3. And Boston's Tom Brewer, who ran a long string of scoreless innings in Florida, was chased by Philadelphia as the A's won the first game from the Red Sox behind Rookie Bob Trice, 6-4. Jackie Jensen's 13th inning homer gave Red Sox reliefer Ellis Kinder the second game 4-3.

Gromek Wins 2nd

Steve Gromek, a seven-game winner with two clubs last year, copped his second straight for Detroit 8-3 over Baltimore's Don Larsen with Walt Dropo and Harvey Kuenn doing the heavy hitting.

Jim Rivera, Minnie Minoso and Ferris Fain hit home runs that made Billy Pierce's spotty 10-hit pitching stand up for a 6-2 Chicago edge over Cleveland in a game cut to six innings by rain. The second game was postponed.

The White Sox made a move after the game that may solve their third base problem by acquiring Grady Hatton from Cincinnati for Johnny Lipon and cash. Hatton originally was a third baseman although Cincinnati had played him at second as a utility man.

The holiday crowds were disappointing, only 146,411 for the full program with the largest turnout, 27,267, at Milmaukee. The Yanks had only 16,952 and Cleveland but 10,063 with a storm on the way.

Mickey Mantle hit a 470-foot triple off the centerfield bleacher wall at Yankee Stadium that sent the world champs looking for the tap measure. It was one of five hits off McDermott who allowed only two hits for seven innings.

Fifth Golf Title For Louise Suggs

Beaumont, Tex., April 19 (AP)—Louise Suggs of Atlanta held her fifth championship today as the ladies' PGA winter tour came to a close and the gals of the fairways scattered for their homes—all except Babe Zaharias, who has a date with her doctors for a physical check.

Little Miss Suggs wrapped up the Babe Zaharias $3,500 open yesterday with a par 73 over the Club course that gave her 224 for the 54 holes and brought her $700 more for her bulging bank account.

She has won the Titleholders Sea Island Open, Betsy Rawls Open, Carrollton Open and Zaharias Open as the top feminine linkster of the year.

Mrs. Zaharias, who made a gallant bid for the championship of the tournament named for her here in her home town, said the checkup with her doctors was "routine" and indicated she expected no adverse report on her progress from an operation for cancer here a year ago.

The Babe, who had been complaining of tiredness in the final rounds of tournaments along the tour, has said she won't be back on the golf swing for six weeks at least. Reports around the tournament here were that she might have to have another operation but she said yesterday, as she shot a 74 to finish second in the tournament with 226 that won her $500, that she was feeling "grand."

Pick Patterson Over Williams

New York, April 19 (AP)—Floyd Patterson, unbeaten, 19-year-old Brooklyn light heavyweight contender, is favored to rack up his 12th straight pro victory tonight when he faces Alvin (Chief) Williams, of Wichita, Kas., at Eastern Parkway Arena.

The strong, fast Patterson has scored eight knockouts and won three decisions since turning pro a month after he won the Olympic 165-pound crown at Helsinki in '52. Williams, a Caddo Indian who has been a pro since 1948, has a 38-9-5 record. He never has been stopped.

The bout is limited to eight rounds because Patterson is under 20. It will be telecast (Dumont) starting at 10 p. m., EST.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Batting—Jim Greengrass, Redlegs, drove in four runs with four hits in double victory over Milwaukee 6-4 and 5-3 boosting average to .611 and runs-batted-in to 12.

Pitching — Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons, Phillies, held Pirates to one run in doubleheader sweep 6-0 and 7-1.

IMITATE A YOUNG CROW'S SQUALL

C-A-W C-A-W C-A-W

ABOUT ONE MONTH AFTER THE SPRING MATING SEASON, A YOUNG CROW'S SQUALL IS EFFECTIVE UNTIL FALL. PARENTS RESPOND FOR AN ATTACK UPON A SUSPECTED OWL OR OTHER ENEMY OF THEIR YOUNG TO ANSWER THE CALL. ITS UNSEASONABLE USE AT OTHER TIMES DRIVES CROWS AWAY.

THIS HIGH-PITCHED CALL IS USUALLY IMITATED BEST WITH A METAL REEDED CALL. OTHER TYPES MAY BE USED BY PINCHING MOUTHPIECE WITH TEETH, BUT RESULT ISN'T AS PERFECT.

AN OWL DECOY IS MOST EFFICIENT DURING THIS SEASON.)

Phoned a friend of mine the other evening to see if he had an extra pound of DuPont 3031 powder I could borrow—reloaders are like women baking cakes, always borrowing the makin's—and behind his voice I could hear a raucous cacaphony of squawks and caws.

"What's the racket? Your youngster studying to be a bugler or have you gone in the poultry business?" I asked.

"Nope, I bought one of those crow-calling records and have been doing a little practicing," he said. "Can't wait to try my new call on those black so-and-sos. My wife can't wait for me to get out of the house, either."

In banging around the back country after varmints, I've run into one or two farmers who objected to the shooting of woodchucks not because of any possible bullet menace to their cattle or buildings, but just because they like groundhogs, I guess. But I've never met a farmer who put up much argument in defense of crows.

The Crow Is Black

And to sportsmen, bird-shooters in particular, the crow's name is blacker than his tail feathers because crows, ravens and all the rest of the family are inveterate nest-robbers. They'll punch pheasant or quail eggs just as fast as they will clutch a song-bird. The carnage among nesting ducks in the marshes of upper Canadian prairies is downright gruesome on occasions.

All through the middle west, crow-busting has developed from an occasional scattergun exercise to a serious sport, with huge kills made along flyways and close to roosting areas. A good many chaps have moved into what might be termed the semi-professional stage, with investments in live owls as decoys or tamed crows—they're all descendants of Judas, these black birds—portable blinds, camouflage suits picked up from army surplus and shells by the case.

But all the needs, other than his scattergun and a few leftover loads, is a call, and one of those practice records to learn how to work it. No decoys or other gadgetry. If he spots a few crows feeding in a field, and a clump of trees on a rise of ground nearby, all he needs to do is park his car at a discreet distance, disappear into the tree clump, and start working his call.

Chances are he'll get at least one, perhaps two or three, investigatory passes from that cluster of crows—and shots at birds flashing over the treetops. And if you don't think a crow zooming across the openings in a leafed-out hardwoods makes a tough target, brethren, you've got another think coming.

Yacht Reaches Port

New Bedford, Mass., April 19 (AP)—The 100-foot yacht Ballerina, owned by Lawrence D. Ely of New York and valued at $250,000, sprung a leak off Hens and Chickens light yesterday but was maneuvered into port successfully.

Capts. Arthur A. Small of Annapolis, Md., and Fenley Petersen of City Island, N. Y., and Seaman Donald S. Wilson, also of Annapolis, bailed water with buckets until the craft was met near port by the coast guard cutter Frederick Lee. The yacht was reported out of danger.

National Guard Battery Launches Recruit Drive

A "spring offensive" to enlist recruits in Headquarters Battery, 156th Field Artillery Battalion, New York National Guard, is now being launched, it was announced today by Capt. Andrew B. Grier, commanding officer of the battery.

Any eligible young men who desire information about the Guard may contact Sgt. 1/c John E. Kirn at the New York State Armory on North Manor avenue, telephone 156. Capt. Grier is available for personal interviews on Tuesday evenings.

Obligation Satisfied

According to Grier, a young man, 17 years of age, who joins the National Guard, serves his military obligation at home by serving with the Guard for a period of nine years. All young men of today have a military obligation of eight years, even those who serve two, three or four years of active duty. During the period of his enlistment the young Guardsman is available for county, state or federal duty when required.

Under the present Selective Service Law there is a provision whereby a young man enlisting in the Guard prior to attaining the age of 18½ shall be deferred from induction as long as he remains a member of the Guard in good standing. Young men who take advantage of this opportunity do not, in fact, avoid the draft, but are using a prescribed medium other than active duty under the draft to perform the military training which was anticipated for all by the Selective Service Law. in other words, they are performing their duty just as much as any young man who is drafted and trained in the active Armed Forces and assigned to some local post in the Continental United States and returned to his home within two years.

Advantages Listed

Grier listed the following advantages: It permits some to continue their higher education and others to engage in civil occupations while performing their military duty locally; it makes available to members of the National Guard an opportunity to compete for and win an appointment to the U. S. Military Academy; it makes available to Guardsman the New York State Offices Candidate School, graduates of which are qualified for commission as reserve commissioned officers in the army with appointment and assignment to the New York National Guard (the school conducted on selected weekends throughout the year at five branch schools located in Brooklyn, Manhattan, Troy, Syracuse and Buffalo); it is possible to obtain high school credit for active participation in the Guard.

The matter of pay, retirement benefits are covered in folders available at the armory. Members are entitled to the facilities of the armory, consisting of basketball, badminton, pool, deck shufle board and indoor tennis. A rifle team was formed recently for which members of the battery are eligible.

The battery is currently forming an aviation section with a few openings remaining, it was said. A radar section is also being formed.

LEGAL NOTICE

Sealed bids are requested for the transportation of approximately 40 pupils of School District #1, Town of Ulster, for the school year 1954-55. The following is the route: Start picking up pupils on Route 32 at Gehrer's. Continue on Route 32 to DeWitt Lake, turning left through Cutler Hill, the lower part of the village, out Route 213 to Abeel Street to St. Peter's Church, thence to Saint Mary's School, thence to the High School, thence to George Washington School, thence to Saint Joseph's School and return. A bus or taxi will be needed to return approximately 5 kindergarten pupils from George Washington School at noon.

Sealed bids are to be sent to Clerk Jane Zell, Eddyville, Ulster County, New York, by April 26.

JANE ZELL, District Clerk

Port Ewen Woman

about 3 a. m. today. Both vehicles were headed north, the bus following the truck, when the truck pulled to the right "as if to stop," the deputies were told by John A. Dickert, Jr., 131 Washington avenue, Elizabeth, N. J., the driver of the bus.

Dickert started to pass the truck when Atkins began to make a left turn, the authorities reported, and the right front of the bus was in collision with the left side of the truck.

The bus, owned by Central Greyhound Corp., of Cleveland, Ohio, received damage to its right front headlamp, passenger door, step well, bumper and possible hidden damage, according to the report. The left side of the truck, which is owned by Atkins, a contractor, was damaged, the deputies said.

Names of the 35 passengers on the bus were taken by the deputies but no personal injuries were listed.

Deputy Eisele placed Atkins under arrest, alleging that he refused to comply with an order to surrender his truck registration and driver's license, and also that he "abused" the bus driver as the latter was attempting to administer first aid to Mrs. Atkins.

The Ulster Board of Supervisors last year rejected a two-way radio proposal. They indicated a need for more detailed information and cited the cost of $53,000 for installing 49 mobile units for 65 fire companies.

The firemen are still interested in the system, however, and Chief Winfred Snyder of Hurley, is chairman of a new committee to make further investigations.

The convention committee will report on progress made on plans for the annual sessions and parade this year to be held at New Paltz on July 22, 23, and 24. The parade, under a new association ruling will be held at 5 p. m., on July 24, instead of earlier in the afternoon as during former years. By starting the parade later in the day, the firemen said, they avoid the intense mid-afternoon July heat.

$25 and a carton of cigar $2.03, stolen from the car.

Will Check Glass

A drinking glass found near the parked car was brought to police headquarters for fingerprint tests.

Other places reported broken into early Saturday were the S & C Lunch, 44 East Strand, Ray's Riverside Rest, 86 Ferry street, and the Ashdown service station at Greenkill avenue and the Boulevard. The total loss at the three places was estimated at $100. Other gas stations were reported entered during the past several weeks.

Proposal Denounced

United Nations, April 19 (AP)—Nationalist China's T. F. Tsiang today denounced a Soviet proposal to include Red China in a UN subcommittee on disarmament, a subject in which recent hydrogen bomb tests have spurred interest. He told the UN Disarmament Commission that the Russian move showed Moscow is not interested in disarmament, but only in enhancing the Soviet position in the world.

Maybe it's the threat of the H-Bomb, or maybe it's just a case of galloping public spiritedness, but NBC and Hallmark are doing a wonderful thing.

They're making available, free, prints of the two-hour "King Richard II" show with Maurice Evans to any school or college that wants one. That was the fine production Hallmark put on last January. The greeting card company is footing the bill—$250 for each kinescope—and will start off with an initial order of 50 prints. They'll make more if the demand warrants it.

NBC cooperated by getting clearances from all the actors, unions and such, who were all very helpful and agreed to waive additional fees.

The commercials will be left in, incidentally. So students will have a chance to learn about Shakespeare and birthday cards in the same class.

It's tough to be both an executive and a John Daly at the same time. Daly, the man, and Daly, the large wheel at ABC, has a schedule that would be rugged once a week. But he has it daily

Anyhow, John Daly, the vice-president of the American Broadcasting Company in charge of news and public affairs, is also as you know, very active on the business end of mikes and cameras. He does "What's My Line?" (CBS-TV) and a generous assortment of shows on his home network.

He lives in Rye, which is a suburb an hour's train ride from Grand Central. Every night at 7:15 he has a 15-minute news show on ABC-TV. The object of the game is to make the 7:55 from Grand Central, a good 15-minute cab ride away from the studio.

"There's always a few phone calls or a conference or something about tomorrow's show. If I get out of the building by 7:42 I can make the 7:55. If there's no taxi in sight I really worry.

"That train gets me home about ten to nine. My wife and I have a cocktail or two, then we eat dinner. We clean up the dishes ourselves—you can't get a maid to stay that late. By the time we're done it's close to 11 and time to go to bed.

"The whole routine is get up, eat, go to work, come home, eat and go to bed. I seem to be spending all my bloody life eating meals after everyone else has finished."

Bishop Fulton Sheen is off for the summer—but being off for him doesn't mean a vacation. He writes two religious columns weekly; edits two monthly mission magazines; serves as director in the U. S. of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith; oversees the operation of 128 mission offices; and still manages to fit in a game of tennis each week. The Bishop needs a summer replacement for himself.

Put yourself in the East seat in the hand shown today. You win the first trick with the king of spades, and it is now up to you to defend against the contract of five clubs doubled. What do you do next?

If you make a routine return, such as a spade, South will make his doubled contract. South ruffs a spade, draws one round of trumps with the ace, cashes dummy's top diamonds and leads a third diamond toward his own hand.

East can gain nothing by ruffing the third round of diamonds, so he discards. South ruffs, thus establishing the rest of dummy's long suit. Declarer gets back to dummy with the king of clubs and proceeds to lead good diamonds.

East can ruff with the high trump whenever he likes, but then dummy's last trump will be an entry to the rest of the diamonds. East can make one space trick and his high trump, but nothing else.

Put yourself back in the East seat and try a different defense. After you win the first trick with the king of spades, return a heart.

Dummy must ruff, of course, and now the contract goes up in smoke. Declarer has been obliged to use the ruff in dummy before he has established the long diamond suit. He can now set up the diamonds, but he will not be able to get back to dummy to cash them.

Serious students of the game may enjoy playing the hand out from this point on. Declarer can make several good tries for his contract, but alert defense will defeat him. The important point is to remember that one of the effective defenses against a long suit in the dummy is to make dummy use up trump entries before that long suit can be established.

Requests Authorized

Augusta, Ga., April 19 (AP)—President Eisenhower today authorized requests to Congress for supplemental appropriations totaling $68,708,000, nearly all of it for additional loans by Small Business Administration. The requests will be formally submitted to Congress tomorrow, the President's vacation headquarters said.

Hollyday Says

to 1950, when liberal FHA mortgage insurance was granted to encourage the building of large, multi-family apartments for "middle income" tenants.

Appraisal Much Higher

In 251 cases, Cole has said, the FHA appraisal was so much higher than the actual cost of construction that the promoters were able to pocket sums totaling 75 million dollars.

As an aid to the inquiry, President Eisenhower signed an order at Augusta, Ga., today permitting the banking committee to examine income tax returns. By law, the Treasury Department must keep income tax returns secret, even from congressional investigators, unless authorized by the President to disclose them.

The alleged over-sized loans for apartment building date back to the Truman Administration and were before Hollyday became connected with FHA.

Hollyday, a Baltimore banker, was appointed to the FHA post by Eisenhower a year ago. His resignation was requested last week. At that time, Cole said Hollyday had not taken action to stop abuses under Title I—the FHA's home repair and improvement program.

Larger Loans

Cole asserted that high-pressure home-improvement salesmen had induced householders to obtain larger loans than they needed, provided shoddy work and short value, and in some cases perpetrated outright fraud.

Hollyday, saying he knew of such abuses when he took office, told the senators that he undertook first of all to determine their extent and found them "small in proportion to the scope of the Title 1 program." He decided the remedy was to "prevent them at the source," he said.

Hollyday said he asked the vice presidents of seven banks, all active in making home repair loans, to come to Washington to study the problem. That was last June; by September the committee recommended new regulations which were adopted, Hollyday said.

Effective December 1

The cinched-up regulations went into effect Dec. 1. Hollyday said that not only was he satisfied then that the regulations "would go a long way toward preventing improper practices;" that they also were considered sufficient by President Eisenhower's advisory committee on housing, which developed the administration housing legislation now before the committee.

Nevertheless, Hollyday said, FHA continued to follow up complaints, even though FHA's investigative staff consisted of only three persons when he took office.

"The position of FHA commissioner is the only public office I have ever held," Hollyday said. Declaring himself grateful for the opportunity to serve the government, he went on:

"It is my earnest hope that this committee's hearings and studies will result in measures to strengthen FHA and make its usefulness even greater in the interest of our national housing policy."

In an interview before the hearing session, Sen. Capehart said housing officials had "consistently" told him "this could never happen."

Mayor, Others Will Attend Conference

Mayor Frederick H. Stang with Edwin T. Strong, of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp., and a party of city officials, will attend a conference and demonstration on modern street lighting in Lynn, Mass., Tuesday and Wednesday.

Ernest A. Steuding, public works superintendent, Alderman Benjamin A. Storms, of the second ward, and David Schechter of the Board of Public Works, will also make the trip.

General Electric has a model street lighting system installed in the city, and this will be inspected and discussed during the two-day conference.

Red China Unfit

captive subjects, and forced other millions into slave labor."

It "even stoops to an international extortion racket in squeezing millions of dollars from overseas Chinese who try to buy safety and protection for their relatives at home."

Lodge said that if the United Nations admitted Red China to membership it would be "flagrantly acting in contradiction of its primary and basic purpose to 'save succeeding generations from the scourge of war'."

The ambassador said the U. S. position in foreign relations as well as domestic affairs "is squarely based on public opinion."

"Whenever the conduct of foreign relations gets separated from public opinion, the results are uniformly disastrous," he said.

"To the extent that the state of public opinion is intelligent and realistic, our foreign policies will be successful; to the extent that public opinion is in error, our foreign policies will be in error."

Cautions Against Efforts

Lodge counseled Americans against expecting too much from diplomatic efforts to bring about basic changes quickly on highly complex and international problems.

He said it was an American trait to solve problems, to overcome obstacles and to get things done, but that the world was not a tennis court with neatly defined lines and edges.

"And we should not get impatient with proceedings of the United Nations or other international gatherings because they talk and do not reach basic solutions of some international questions," Lodge said.

"To many of these questions there is no basic solution under present conditions. In many of them, the choice is 'talk or fight.'

"The fact that the talk may be boring or turgid or uninspiring, should not cause us to forget the fact that it is preferable to war," he said.

The United Nations, Lodge continued, was a forum where initiative could be seized and where truth could be told.

He said the United States threw away the initiative when World War 2 ended, regained it when President Eisenhower called last December for an international stockpile of fissionable material to be used for peaceful purposes.

Praises Career Diplomats

Lodge paid high tribute to the vast majority of U. S. career diplomats in the foreign field. He said:

"There has been so much publicity since World War 2 about a few rotten apples that we have lost sight of the many excellent persons giving service that is only faithful but skillfull in a high degree and utterly indispensable to our survival as a nation."

Declaring "we all owe a real debt" to career men giving "priceless service," Lodge added:

"I wish we had more of them, and I hope the young men and women of similar quality from one end of our nation to the other will plan to make a career in the field of foreign relations so that for the future of our country we will have a supply of these indispensable public officials."

Rebels Are

The United States already has furnished Bearcat fighters, B26 bombers, C47 transports and C114 flying boxcars for the French-Vietnamese effort against Ho Chi Minh's legions. No planes have been used on the rebel side.

In Cambodia, a communique by King Norodom Sihanouk disclosed that he had turned the administration of his Indochinese kingdom back to Pen Nouth, its former premier.

The king has been running the government himself. It was said he decided to share responsibilities because he is busy directing troops in the north where two Vietminh battalions have invaded from Laos.

National Guard Battery Launches Recruit Drive

A "spring offensive" to enlist recruits in Headquarters Battery, 156th Field Artillery Battalion, New York National Guard, is now being launched, it was announced today by Capt. Andrew B. Grier, commanding officer of the battery.

Any eligible young men who desire information about the Guard may contact Sgt. 1/c John E. Kirn at the New York State Armory on North Manor avenue, telephone 156. Capt. Grier is available for personal interviews on Tuesday evenings.

Obligation Satisfied

According to Grier, a young man, 17 years of age, who joins the National Guard, serves his military obligation at home by serving with the Guard for a period of nine years. All young men of today have a military obligation of eight years, even those who serve two, three or four years of active duty. During the period of his enlistment the young Guardsman is available for county, state or federal duty when required.

Under the present Selective Service Law there is a provision whereby a young man enlisting in the Guard prior to attaining the age of 18½ shall be deferred from induction as long as he remains a member of the Guard in good standing. Young men who take advantage of this opportunity do not, in fact, avoid the draft, but are using a prescribed medium other than active duty under the draft to perform the military training which was anticipated for all by the Selective Service Law. in other words, they are performing their duty just as much as any young man who is drafted and trained in the active Armed Forces and assigned to some local post in the Continental United States and returned to his home within two years.

Advantages Listed

Grier listed the following advantages: It permits some to continue their higher education and others to engage in civil occupations while performing their military duty locally; it makes available to members of the National Guard an opportunity to compete for and win an appointment to the U. S. Military Academy; it makes available to Guardsman the New York State Offices Candidate School, graduates of which are qualified for commission as reserve commissioned officers in the army with appointment and assignment to the New York National Guard (the school conducted on selected weekends throughout the year at five branch schools located in Brooklyn, Manhattan, Troy, Syracuse and Buffalo); it is possible to obtain high school credit for active participation in the Guard.

The matter of pay, retirement benefits are covered in folders available at the armory. Members are entitled to the facilities of the armory, consisting of basketball, badminton, pool, deck shufle board and indoor tennis. A rifle team was formed recently for which members of the battery are eligible.

The battery is currently forming an aviation section with a few openings remaining, it was said. A radar section is also being formed.

A bus or taxi will be needed to return approximately 5 kindergarten pupils from George Washington School at noon.

about 3 a. m. today. Both vehicles were headed north, the bus following the truck, when the truck pulled to the right "as if to stop," the deputies were told by John A. Dickert, Jr., 131 Washington avenue, Elizabeth, N. J., the driver of the bus.

The bus, owned by Central Greyhound Corp., of Cleveland, Ohio, received damage to its right front headlamp, passenger door, step well, bumper and possible hidden damage, according to the report. The left side of the truck, which is owned by Atkins, a contractor, was damaged, the deputies said.

Names of the 35 passengers on the bus were taken by the deputies but no personal injuries were listed.

Deputy Eisele placed Atkins under arrest, alleging that he refused to comply with an order to surrender his truck registration and driver's license, and also that he "abused" the bus driver as the latter was attempting to administer first aid to Mrs. Atkins.

The Ulster Board of Supervisors last year rejected a two-way radio proposal. They indicated a need for more detailed information and cited the cost of $53,000 for installing 49 mobile units for 65 fire companies.

The firemen are still interested in the system, however, and Chief Winfred Snyder of Hurley, is chairman of a new committee to make further investigations.

The convention committee will report on progress made on plans for the annual sessions and parade this year to be held at New Paltz on July 22, 23, and 24. The parade, under a new association ruling will be held at 5 p. m., on July 24, instead of earlier in the afternoon as during former years. By starting the parade later in the day, the firemen said, they avoid the intense mid-afternoon July heat.

$25 and a carton of cigar $2.03, stolen from the car.

Will Check Glass

The car had been left parked at about 9 p. m., Saturday, the report said.

A drinking glass found near the parked car was brought to police headquarters for fingerprint tests.

Other places reported broken into early Saturday were the S & C Lunch, 44 East Strand, Ray's Riverside Rest, 86 Ferry street, and the Ashdown service station at Greenkill avenue and the Boulevard. The total loss at the three places was estimated at $100. Other gas stations were reported entered during the past several weeks.

Proposal Denounced

United Nations, April 19 (AP)—Nationalist China's T. F. Tsiang today denounced a Soviet proposal to include Red China in a UN subcommittee on disarmament, a subject in which recent hydrogen bomb tests have spurred interest. He told the UN Disarmament Commission that the Russian move showed Moscow is not interested in disarmament, but only in enhancing the Soviet position in the world.

Anyhow, John Daly, the vice-president of the American Broadcasting Company in charge of news and public affairs, is also as you know, very active on the business end of mikes and cameras. He does "What's My Line?" (CBS-TV) and a generous assortment of shows on his home network.

He lives in Rye, which is a suburb an hour's train ride from Grand Central. Every night at 7:15 he has a 15-minute news show on ABC-TV. The object of the game is to make the 7:55 from Grand Central, a good 15-minute cab ride away from the studio.

"There's always a few phone calls or a conference or something about tomorrow's show. If I get out of the building by 7:42 I can make the 7:55. If there's no taxi in sight I really worry.

"That train gets me home about ten to nine. My wife and I have a cocktail or two, then we eat dinner. We clean up the dishes ourselves—you can't get a maid to stay that late. By the time we're done it's close to 11 and time to go to bed.

"The whole routine is get up, eat, go to work, come home, eat and go to bed. I seem to be spending all my bloody life eating meals after everyone else has finished."

What this city—and Daly—needs is a nice suburb somewhere hard by Times Square.

Bishop Fulton Sheen is off for the summer—but being off for him doesn't mean a vacation. He writes two religious columns weekly; edits two monthly mission magazines; serves as director in the U. S. of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith; oversees the operation of 128 mission offices; and still manages to fit in a game of tennis each week.

The Bishop needs a summer replacement for himself.

George Shearing, the great jazz pianist, shook up his combo drastically during his latest engagement at The Embers. He added a bongo drummer and another guitar—sort of improvising on a grand scale.

Put yourself in the East seat in the hand shown today. You win the first trick with the king of spades, and it is now up to you to defend against the contract of five clubs doubled. What do you do next?

If you make a routine return, such as a spade, South will make his doubled contract. South ruffs a spade, draws one round of trumps with the ace, cashes dummy's top diamonds and leads a third diamond toward his own hand.

East can gain nothing by ruffing the third round of diamonds, so he discards. South ruffs, thus establishing the rest of dummy's long suit. Declarer gets back to dummy with the king of clubs and proceeds to lead good diamonds.

East can ruff with the high trump whenever he likes, but then dummy's last trump will be an entry to the rest of the diamonds. East can make one space trick and his high trump, but nothing else.

Put yourself back in the East seat and try a different defense. After you win the first trick with the king of spades, return a heart.

Dummy must ruff, of course, and now the contract goes up in smoke. Declarer has been obliged to use the ruff in dummy before he has established the long diamond suit. He can now set up the diamonds, but he will not be able to get back to dummy to cash them.

Serious students of the game may enjoy playing the hand out from this point on. Declarer can make several good tries for his contract, but alert defense will defeat him. The important point is to remember that one of the effective defenses against a long suit in the dummy is to make dummy use up trump entries before that long suit can be established.

Requests Authorized

Augusta, Ga., April 19 (AP)—President Eisenhower today authorized requests to Congress for supplemental appropriations totaling $68,708,000, nearly all of it for additional loans by Small Business Administration. The requests will be formally submitted to Congress tomorrow, the President's vacation headquarters said.

Hollyday Says

to 1950, when liberal FHA mortgage insurance was granted to encourage the building of large, multi-family apartments for "middle income" tenants.

Appraisal Much Higher

In 251 cases, Cole has said, the FHA appraisal was so much higher than the actual cost of construction that the promoters were able to pocket sums totaling 75 million dollars.

As an aid to the inquiry, President Eisenhower signed an order at Augusta, Ga., today permitting the banking committee to examine income tax returns. By law, the Treasury Department must keep income tax returns secret, even from congressional investigators, unless authorized by the President to disclose them.

The alleged over-sized loans for apartment building date back to the Truman Administration and were before Hollyday became connected with FHA.

Hollyday, a Baltimore banker, was appointed to the FHA post by Eisenhower a year ago. His resignation was requested last week. At that time, Cole said Hollyday had not taken action to stop abuses under Title I—the FHA's home repair and improvement program.

Larger Loans

Cole asserted that high-pressure home-improvement salesmen had induced householders to obtain larger loans than they needed, provided shoddy work and short value, and in some cases perpetrated outright fraud.

Hollyday, saying he knew of such abuses when he took office, told the senators that he undertook first of all to determine their extent and found them "small in proportion to the scope of the Title 1 program." He decided the remedy was to "prevent them at the source," he said.

Hollyday said he asked the vice presidents of seven banks, all active in making home repair loans, to come to Washington to study the problem. That was last June; by September the committee recommended new regulations which were adopted, Hollyday said.

Effective December 1

The cinched-up regulations went into effect Dec. 1. Hollyday said that not only was he satisfied then that the regulations "would go a long way toward preventing improper practices;" that they also were considered sufficient by President Eisenhower's advisory committee on housing, which developed the administration housing legislation now before the committee.

Nevertheless, Hollyday said, FHA continued to follow up complaints, even though FHA's investigative staff consisted of only three persons when he took office.

"The position of FHA commissioner is the only public office I have ever held," Hollyday said. Declaring himself grateful for the opportunity to serve the government, he went on:

"It is my earnest hope that this committee's hearings and studies will result in measures to strengthen FHA and make its usefulness even greater in the interest of our national housing policy."

In an interview before the hearing session, Sen. Capehart said housing officials had "consistently" told him "this could never happen."

More on Tuesday

France has an average of 14,500 fires a year and for some unexplained reason more of them occur on Tuesday than any other day.

Mayor, Others Will Attend Conference

Mayor Frederick H. Stang with Edwin T. Strong, of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp., and a party of city officials, will attend a conference and demonstration on modern street lighting in Lynn, Mass., Tuesday and Wednesday.

Ernest A. Steuding, public works superintendent, Alderman Benjamin A. Storms, of the second ward, and David Schechter of the Board of Public Works, will also make the trip.

General Electric has a model street lighting system installed in the city, and this will be inspected and discussed during the two-day conference.

Red China Unfit

captive subjects, and forced other millions into slave labor."

It "even stoops to an international extortion racket in squeezing millions of dollars from overseas Chinese who try to buy safety and protection for their relatives at home."

Lodge said that if the United Nations admitted Red China to membership it would be "flagrantly acting in contradiction of its primary and basic purpose to 'save succeeding generations from the scourge of war'."

The ambassador said the U. S. position in foreign relations as well as domestic affairs "is squarely based on public opinion."

"Whenever the conduct of foreign relations gets separated from public opinion, the results are uniformly disastrous," he said.

"To the extent that the state of public opinion is intelligent and realistic, our foreign policies will be successful; to the extent that public opinion is in error, our foreign policies will be in error."

Cautions Against Efforts

Lodge counseled Americans against expecting too much from diplomatic efforts to bring about basic changes quickly on highly complex and international problems.

He said it was an American trait to solve problems, to overcome obstacles and to get things done, but that the world was not a tennis court with neatly defined lines and edges.

"And we should not get impatient with proceedings of the United Nations or other international gatherings because they talk and do not reach basic solutions of some international questions," Lodge said.

"To many of these questions there is no basic solution under present conditions. In many of them, the choice is 'talk or fight.'

"The fact that the talk may be boring or turgid or uninspiring, should not cause us to forget the fact that it is preferable to war," he said.

The United Nations, Lodge continued, was a forum where initiative could be seized and where truth could be told.

He said the United States threw away the initiative when World War 2 ended, regained it when President Eisenhower called last December for an international stockpile of fissionable material to be used for peaceful purposes.

Praises Career Diplomats

Lodge paid high tribute to the vast majority of U. S. career diplomats in the foreign field. He said:

"There has been so much publicity since World War 2 about a few rotten apples that we have lost sight of the many excellent persons giving service that is only faithful but skillfull in a high degree and utterly indispensable to our survival as a nation."

Declaring "we all owe a real debt" to career men giving "priceless service," Lodge added:

"I wish we had more of them, and I hope the young men and women of similar quality from one end of our nation to the other will plan to make a career in the field of foreign relations so that for the future of our country we will have a supply of these indispensable public officials."

returned immediately to their ship.

The United States already has furnished Bearcat fighters, B26 bombers, C47 transports and C114 flying boxcars for the French-Vietnamese effort against Ho Chi Minh's legions. No planes have been used on the rebel side.

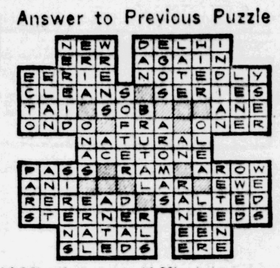

In Cambodia, a communique by King Norodom Sihanouk disclosed that he had turned the administration of his Indochinese kingdom back to Pen Nouth, its former premier.

The king has been running the government himself. It was said he decided to share responsibilities because he is busy directing troops in the north where two Vietminh battalions have invaded from Laos.
